Forward by Ambassador Kenneth M. Quinn

The World Food Prize created the Iowa Hunger Directory as a statewide platform for Iowa’s hunger fighters to network and collaborate, celebrating the accomplishments of Iowans and inspiring even greater efforts to confront hunger at home and abroad.

The Iowa Hunger Directory is also a tribute to the legacy and convictions of World Food Prize founder and Iowa’s great hero Dr. Norman E. Borlaug, who believed with all his heart that we have the power and moral duty to banish hunger forever from the face of the earth.

Born in 1914 on a small farm outside of Cresco in Howard County, Dr. Borlaug’s breakthrough achievements in agricultural science saved over one billion people from starvation. Though his accomplishments are known around the world, Dr. Borlaug’s efforts were first inspired at home when he saw hungry people sleeping in the streets of Minneapolis at the height of the Great Depression.

Dr. Borlaug was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1970 for his work to “provide bread for a hungry world.” Following his leadership, Mexico, India and Pakistan all went from being wheat importers to achieving self-sufficiency. He worked until his last days to bring the “Green Revolution” to Africa, a region that still deals with a massive hunger challenge. His last words were “Take it to the farmer.”

Dr. Borlaug founded the World Food Prize in 1986 to be the Nobel Prize for Food and Agriculture. With the invaluable support of John Ruan Sr., the Prize was relocated to Iowa, where it continues to provide inspiration to hunger fighters around the globe and here at home.

On March 25, 2014; national agriculture day and the centennial of Dr. Borlaug’s birth, the bipartisan leadership of the state of Iowa and the United States congress installed his statue in the US Capitol as an enduring tribute to this legacy and to Iowa’s great agricultural and humanitarian heritage.

It was Dr. Borlaug’s firm conviction that the fight against hunger begins at home, with the dedication and leadership of everyday Iowans. That’s why Dr. Borlaug and the World Food Prize started the Iowa Hunger Summit in 2007, with four Iowa governors serving as honorary co-chairs. This annual celebration recognizes Iowa’s great accomplishments in fighting hunger at home and abroad and encourages even greater efforts in the future.

Iowans across the state continue to demonstrate the spirit of innovation and collaboration that drove Norman Borlaug and Iowa’s other humanitarian heroes, including Henry A. Wallace, George Washington Carver, Herbert Hoover and Jessie Field Shambaugh. Business and civic organizations, schools, churches, food banks, and so many individuals are making wonderful progress against hunger.

I can think of no better birthday tribute to Dr. Borlaug than the ability to say that, someday soon, we in Iowa have ensured that all families have nutritious food on their tables and hunger is a thing of the past.

I hope that you will find the Iowa Hunger Directory a great resource as you continue to build upon the agricultural and humanitarian legacy that makes each of us proud to call Iowa home.
Introduction

Thank you for this opportunity to share your stories in print and online. We are incredibly inspired by the work that you do to alleviate hunger across Iowa and around the world.

Launched in 2012, the Iowa Hunger Directory at www.iowahungerdirectory.org highlights and promotes the great work that over 500 nonprofit, business and civic organizations are doing to fight hunger and provides Iowans with opportunities to become involved. There is no cost to be part of the Iowa Hunger Directory, which is built using a “relational” model that requires consent for each group to be included.

We are especially grateful to the 68 organizations who participated in an informal project evaluation in June 2015. Conclusions based on the full set of responses include:

Impact:
- The website and email newsletters have led to increased networking and led to several new collaborations among Iowa hunger fighters.
- People have applied ideas from the newsletters to their own work.
- Those who feel that they are part of the Hunger Directory network credit the newsletters with fostering a (loose) sense of community.
- Several people who do not regularly use the Hunger Directory website said that they value the existence of the Hunger Directory as a resource, even though they aren't using it much now.

Membership Structure:
- There is a "core" of people who regularly read newsletters and feel they are part of a network.
- There is also a “periphery” of people who occasionally use the directory and are glad to be included, but who don't feel that they are part of a network.
- All organization types (direct service, government, faith, corporate, education) are represented in the core; however, corporate organizations are less likely than other types to be part of the core.

Key Lessons:
- Most of the networking benefits rely on regular investments of World Food Prize staff time to develop newsletters and field requests for introductions.
- In addition to facilitating networking, the newsletters help keep the web directory current, as bouncing emails are a cue that our staff needs to identify new points of contact for a group.
- Many people value this printable, pdf directory as a complement to the online version. A pdf directory lets people see a full snapshot of the Iowa hunger network and is also a helpful story hook to help raise awareness of the hunger directory through the press.

Our hope is that you will continue to find the Iowa Hunger Directory useful as you identify and engage collaborators in the fight against hunger. We are anxious to have your feedback and suggestions about how we can make this resource even better.

Please don’t hesitate to contact us anytime at 515-245-3783 or wfp@worldfoodprize.org to register your organization for the Iowa Hunger Directory, submit an event to the Iowa Hunger Calendar, or update your organization’s profile by adding results, achievements and highlights of your programs and projects.

Sincerely,

Stephen Lauer

Part One: Stories of Iowans Fighting Hunger

Iowa has a rich agricultural and humanitarian legacy to draw from in fighting to end hunger locally and around the world. The Iowa Hunger Directory fosters continuing innovation and collaboration by celebrating the accomplishments of Iowans and Iowa organizations and inspiring even greater efforts to rid our communities and world of hunger.

As part of this mission, we periodically send a newsletter: “Stories of Iowans Fighting Hunger”, which celebrates innovative efforts and collaborations among Iowa’s Hunger Fighters.

We have included several of these newsletter stories in Part One of this printable Iowa Hunger Directory. They are also available at no cost at www.worldfoodprize.org/HDStories.

For more information, or to receive our newsletter in your inbox, please contact us at 515-245-3783 or wfp@worldfoodprize.org.

If you or someone you know are hungry and need immediate assistance, please dial 211 for referrals to local social services, including food pantries, supplemental food services, and more. The 211 service is an independent initiative and is not a program of the World Food Prize Foundation.

Sincerely,

Stephen

Collaborative Hunger Initiatives: Networks and Coalitions in Iowa (5/26/2016)

Iowans pride ourselves on knowing our neighbors and helping each other whenever we have a chance. What does it look like when we apply those values to our work alleviating hunger?

At first glance, there seem to be two stable configurations when organizations rally together to address hunger: Hunger Networks and Hunger Coalitions.

Panera Bread of Iowa and its customers raise over $30,000 to alleviate hunger

Over the course of 2015, Panera Bread of Iowa and its customers partnered to raise $30,910.40 in cash donations for local Feeding America member food banks across Iowa, who were able to translate these cash donations into more than 123,000 meals for those in need.

Panera Bread of Iowa’s 19 bakery-cafes collect change and other cash donations at their registers each day on behalf of the local Feeding America food bank serving the market. Panera Bread of Iowa then provides a 10 percent matching donation on all cash donations made. Additionally, the bakery-cafes host a fundraising drive each September on Hunger Action Day where 20 percent of sales associated with the fundraiser are donated back to the local food bank partners.

At the end of the 2015 fiscal year, cash donations in the following amounts were made to these area Feeding America member food banks:

- $12,793.39 – Food Bank of Iowa, Des Moines, Iowa
- $7,123.44 – River Bend Foodbank, Davenport, Iowa
- $7,089.07 – HACAP Food Reservoir, Hiawatha, Iowa
- $3,494.86 – Northeast Iowa Food Bank, Waterloo, Iowa
- $409.65 – St. Stephen’s Food Bank, Dubuque, Iowa

In addition to the annual cash donations, Panera Bread of Iowa donates all of its unsold bread and bakery items each day to more than 85 local hunger relief agencies across Iowa and Illinois through its Day-End Dough-Nation program.

For more information about the hunger-relief efforts of Panera Bread of Iowa, please contact Mr. John Kauffman at jkauffman@paneraiowa.com or 319-361-6091.

Boone students catalyze community hunger network (4/20/2016)

This spring, Boone High School students held their own Hunger Summit with leaders from the World Food Prize, Whispering Roots, Crop Production Services, and the Outreach Program participating. Students bagged 20,000 meals as they rotated to different speakers on the subject of food insecurity locally and worldwide.

The Hunger Summit had its origins in the 2014 Boone Community Hunger Banquet. In 2014, a Boone high school senior worked with Iowa-based Outreach Program, the school’s talented and gifted coordinator, and eighth-grade students to organize a community hunger banquet raising awareness and funds for community development in Tanzania. About 75 people battled winter weather to attend the Boone Hunger Banquet, where they participated in an educational hunger simulation, learned about Outreach and its work in Tanzania, and raised $756 to send Tanzanian children to school and equip a kitchen at a newly built children’s feeding center in Tanzania.

Students and adults from the community also discussed next steps, and there was substantial interest in sponsoring an Outreach Program meal-packaging event to provide meals for hungry people in the Boone area and overseas. This interest laid the foundation for the 2016 Hunger Summit and meal packaging event.

An important contributor to the success of the Boone Community Hunger Banquet was the emphasis on partnerships. Boone high school student-organizers worked closely with Outreach, and their decision to mentor eighth grade students supported the middle school’s service-learning and citizenship curriculum.

These connections led to the launch of the Boone Hunger Coalition organization in Boone County, which is now working collectively to bring services to residents of the community who are food insecure.

In addition, connections have been made to corporate businesses and non-profits who are collaborating with the 7-12th grade Boone students in ways that are extending the Science curriculum in Aquaponics. The program will be a part of the Life Sciences curriculum starting in the Fall of 2016.

For more information about Boone High School or the Boone Hunger Coalition, please contact Ms. Peggy Watkins at pwatkins@boone.k12.ia.us or 515-230-4233.
Senator Joni Ernst, smallholder farmer Olga Tumax honor women in agriculture at the Hall of Laureates (4/7/2016)

On March 29th, over 250 people gathered at the Hall of Laureates in Des Moines for “Women and Agriculture: The Road to Global Security”, organized by the World Food Prize, Oxfam America, and Foods Resource Bank to celebrate Dr. Norman Borlaug’s 102nd birthday and International Women’s Day.

The Honorable Joni Ernst, Iowa’s first female U.S. senator and an agriculture advocate, delivered the keynote address, raising awareness of the leadership of women in providing food for our families, economic development in our communities, and peace in our world.

Olga Tumax, a Guatemalan farmer and community organizer, described the importance of making space for women to participate in agriculture, household decision-making, and local government. The FAO reports that if women farmers had the same access to resources as men, the number of hungry people in the world could be reduced by up to 150 million.

Drawing on their experiences in Guatemala and Ghana, panelists Hugo Garrido of CIEDEG and Nora Tobin of Self-Help International emphasized the need to protect human rights and support women as they work for freedom and equality on the local, national, and international levels.

With the support of Foods Resource bank and Church World Service, Olga and Hugo are helping Guatemalan women to feed and nourish their families, attain an independent source of income, and challenge prevailing gender norms by opening spaces for women to claim their rights and participate in decision-making.

In addition to the presentations, the event featured ten local organizations that are dedicated to fighting hunger and are included in this 3rd edition of the Iowa Hunger Directory.
Midwest Dairy Council supporting Iowa schools to reduce stigma, increase access to breakfast (3/22/2016)

“You will love Breakfast in the Classroom, when we implemented the program we saw a significant improvement in classroom behavior. I had 50% fewer morning referrals to my office.” – School Administrator, Des Moines

While breakfast remains to be the most important meal of the day, only 13 million students consume school breakfast compared to the 31 million students who consume school lunch. Much of this is due to the stereotype that breakfast is for students who are certified for free or reduced priced meals. To help reduce stigma and encourage participation, the Midwest Dairy Council helps schools across Iowa implement programs such as Breakfast in the Classroom, Grab ‘n’ go breakfast, and second chance breakfast.

For example, Midwest Dairy is partnering with Marshalltown Community Schools to introduce Grab ‘n’ go breakfast into their middle and high schools. Students can now quickly grab a pre-packaged, nutritious breakfast from the school’s Grab ‘n’ go breakfast kiosk and eat it in the cafeteria, the classroom or on the school grounds in Miller Middle School. By providing students with more flexibility about where and when they eat breakfast, Marshalltown’s goal is to reach 50% student participation in the school breakfast program. Midwest Dairy is funding similar partnerships in Decorah, Iowa City, and Oskaloosa.

Another way for qualifying schools to reduce stigma and increase participation in school breakfast programs is to implement a universal breakfast program. Schools serving 80% free and reduced price breakfasts are eligible to eliminate the income test, and instead provide (and receive reimbursement for) free breakfasts for all students.

Midwest Dairy is partnering with three elementary schools in Des Moines to combine universal breakfast with Breakfast in the Classroom, with the goal of reaching 75% student participation. So far, the partnership has resulted in 97,920 additional meals served, improving student concentration and reducing disciplinary referrals.

The Midwest Dairy Council is currently soliciting applications for two funding partnerships as part of their continued focus on improving student and family nutrition:

School Nutrition Equipment Grants of up to $5,000 in total value are available for the 2016-2017 School Year. The purpose of these grants is to assist School Nutrition Directors in the purchase of equipment that will enhance the long term implementation of their school breakfast and lunch programs. More information and application details are online: www.fueluptoplay60.com/funding/nutrition-equipment-grant

Education mini-grants of up to $200 are available for RDN’s, school nutrition professionals, chefs, dietetic interns, or university extension nutritionists. This mini grant is intended to help educate families utilizing emergency food assistance about how to incorporate dairy foods into a healthy well balanced meal or snack to boost nutrition. The mini grant award will be used to educate clients and families in a food pantry setting by providing nutrition education and conducting a food demonstration preparing a low cost, minimal ingredient recipe which includes dairy as an ingredient. More information and application details are online at: www.surveycrest.com/s/56c47f39923c0

For more information about Midwest Dairy Council’s school breakfast partnerships and funding opportunities, or to be connected with current partner schools, please contact Ms. Erin Thole at ethole@midwestdairy.com or 515-965-4625.
Initiative, collaboration, relationships form Sioux City recipe for alleviating hunger in secondary schools (3/9/2016)

Over 140 middle and high school students in Sioux City are better fed on weekends thanks to the community initiative known as Food 4 Thought. The combined efforts of a diverse team of teachers, administrators, community members, businesses, and a local church provide participating students with supplemental food packs before weekends and school breaks.

Though fairly common among elementary schools, supplemental food pack programs are rarer within high schools. The success of the Food 4 Thought model in Sioux City has been emulated by several other districts, including Sergeant Bluff-Luton and a district in Wisconsin. The organizing team publishes a guide for middle and high schools that are interested in emulating the program.

Food 4 Thought overcame several barriers in successfully introducing a food pack program to secondary school students:

Access to Funding: To better access local business and grant funding, Food 4 Thought established an account housed under the nonprofit umbrella of the local Sunnybrook Church.

Avoiding Stigma: The Food 4 Thought program is promoted through signs that are posted in the school, and knowledge typically spreads through word-of-mouth. There is no income testing involved, and promotional materials emphasize how nutrition helps academic performance rather than including language about hunger or food insecurity. Supplemental food packs are distributed through a “self-serve” method. Packs are placed on a countertop in a designated classroom and students come by on their own to pick them up.

School and Community Acceptance: The Food 4 Thought program ensures acceptance by involving a broad cross-section of community members to participate in their activities. Students provide the labor to assemble the food packs. In the high school, students assemble packs once a week during their homeroom. In the middle school, packs are assembled by peer helpers. Most of the budget to purchase food is provided by individuals in the community. Individuals An individual volunteers to shop for the items in bulk at Sam’s Club. Businesses frequently contribute both funds and food.
The organizers of Food 4 Thought share the following recommendations for success:

If you see a need, act on it. The program began six years ago when a middle school teacher observed a young man who seemed lethargic in class, got to know him, and discovered that he had very little food to eat on weekends and school breaks. She began to offer cereal bars in the morning. Joined by colleagues, she began assembling food packs – initially for seven students. The program blossomed from there.

Network and ask other people for help. The Food 4 Thought program expanded in stages, and each expansion involved additional partners joining the endeavor. Key expansions included the involvement of colleagues to scale up the program to multiple students, help from a church to acquire nonprofit status, and the involvement of community members as donors and volunteers to ensure sustainability.

Emphasize relationships. Older students are often hesitant to ask for help, but needs often become apparent after getting to know them. In addition to the food pack program, teachers at Sioux City East High have established a clothing closet and installed a washer and dryer to better meet students’ needs. Relationships are strengthened by allowing students to not only receive help but also provide service through assembling the meal packs and through an annual holiday canned food drive. Relationships are also critical for increasing community support.

For more information about Food 4 Thought, please contact Ms. Janet Coon at 712-274-4021 or coonj@live.siouxcityschools.com or download their program guide.
Summer Food Service Program keeps kids fed when school's out (2/10/2016)

The Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) helps communities provide free, nutritious meals and snacks to children and teens during the summer months when school is not in session. Community organizations serve as site hosts, organizing and staffing SFSP meal distribution sites. Site hosts receive reimbursement from the USDA to cover the administrative and operating costs of preparing and serving the meals and snacks provided.

SFSP sites must be located in areas with significant concentrations of low-income children, and can include schools, churches, community centers, parks, libraries, swimming pools, medical clinics, farmers markets and more.

The Iowa Department of Education helps community organizations become site hosts, understand program guidelines, and navigate the Federal reimbursement process. Site host selection for 2016 is underway, and groups are encouraged to contact the Iowa Department of Education promptly to become involved.

Funding is available for all qualifying host sites that register through the Iowa Department of Education. The biggest challenge facing SFSP host sites in Iowa is attracting large numbers of children to participate at the site.

SFSP success stories from the summer of 2015 include:

Boys & Girls Club of Central SW Iowa, Lynn Hansen, Executive Director

We have had a GREAT summer and a GREAT turnout at our SFSP this year. On any given day, we have between 35-60 kids in attendance. These numbers may seem small on a large scale, but to a community of less than 800 total residents, this is quite a turnout. To help spread awareness to some of our community businesses, we sent out invitations to join us for Summer Lunch Bunch. Our cook designated six dates where local businesses can choose to come, along with 5 employees, and have lunch with our kids.

Council Bluffs CSD, Virginia Bechtold, Food Service Director

At the Broadway Skate Park and other sites, we have increased our counts on days that we have partnered with the City Library. They bring books to give away to lunch participants and it has been a big hit this year. Our customers are skaters, neighborhood kids, and families. Not always the same kids every day.

Tri-County CSD, Connie Zimmerman, Food Service Director

One of the activities that helped make our summer meal program successful is that in June when our Jr High Softball and Baseball teams hosted games, I invited the other team to come and eat with us! It was very well received. I received thank you cards from parents for feeding their children.

Also our school hosted several camps and with those being during the time we served lunch we invited all the camp attendees.
Southeast Webster Grand CSD, Karla Flickinger, School Business Official

We held our driver's education classes and our summer reading programs in the same building as our summer meals site to allow those students to participate in both the breakfast and lunch. We bus the students that live out of town in and then they can participate in the summer reading program and summer meals. We really appreciate the opportunity to participate in this program and I feel that the community and kids appreciate it also.

Red Oak CSD, Sharon Foote, Food Service Director

We have 2 summer meal sites in town and serve approximately 75 children at each site. We post menus in our buildings and ask for feedback from our kids about what they want to see served. We host a “Build Your Own Hoagie day” every Friday and have our best participation on those days, with 85 children or more. We serve our Hoagies on a fresh baked steak bun and offer lunch meat, cheese, and a variety of vegetables for fixing’s including onions, tomatoes, lettuce, banana peppers

An estimated 180,000 low-income Iowa children do not have access to summer meal programs. For more information, visit the Iowa Department of Education website or contact Ms. Stephanie Dross at 515-281-4760 or Stephanie.Dross@iowa.gov.
Secretary Vilsack, Central College fight hunger through MLK Day program

“Our tiny ripples of hope today, added to all the others, can reduce hunger and malnutrition. We like to think that change happens dramatically. In reality, change happens by people doing the right thing one day at a time.” – Secretary Tom Vilsack

Secretary of Agriculture Tom Vilsack joined students and volunteers at Central College to package over 7,000 meals for the hungry this Martin Luther King Jr. Day. The Secretary’s remarks emphasized how continuous acts of service by ordinary people make the United States a great nation. Meals were distributed to hungry Iowans through partnerships with community food pantries Central Iowa Shelter and Services, and Jasper County Veterans Affairs.

The meal packaging was part of an annual MLK Day of service at Central College, which also included a lecture by Diane Dillon-Ridgley, renowned environmentalist and human rights advocate, who emphasized the interconnectedness of environmental, economic and social justice in the thought and legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Planning for the day of service began in November and included a diversity of partners. The Central College Center for Community-Based Learning, Office of Intercultural Student Life, and Office of Global Sustainability Education collaborated to organize and host the day of service. The Outreach Program provided training and materials for the meal packaging event, which was funded by a grant from Iowa Campus Compact.

The organizers emphasize the following keys to success:

Work with partners. For this event, we relied a great deal on Outreach since we hadn’t done this particular kind of service project before. We are always indebted to National Service programs in our state: For this project at least five AmeriCorps VISTAs played crucial roles in planning and/or facilitation, and many other AmeriCorps members volunteered that day. Iowa Campus Compact is a wonderful partner for colleges and universities who want to be involved with community.

Value community voice: We believe it’s best practice to allow community members to define their own need. In this case, we knew from our relationships with community partners who work with food security that community members need convenient, healthy meals. For food security initiatives as well as other endeavors, we work with partners who have ongoing relationships with those who will ultimately be receiving the food or other outcome of service. A collaborative approach meets community needs and also helps students understand that expertise resides in the community as well as in the classroom.

Make your project accessible: Make sure you hold the event in a facility that’s accessible for everyone. If you’re serving refreshments, make sure you include food that fits a variety of dietary needs.

For more information about the event or to explore collaboration with Central College, please contact Ms. Cheri Doane at 515-628-5332 or doanec@central.edu.
Johnson County Hunger Taskforce releases guide to free neighborhood meals (12/2/2015)

The Johnson County Hunger Taskforce is a coalition of local governments and nonprofit service providers dedicated to alleviating hunger through research, collaboration and targeted action. The taskforce grew out of a conference in 2014, and is charged with presenting research and recommendations to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors early next year.

As they wrap-up their research, the Healthy Foods Committee of the Johnson County Hunger Taskforce has released a guide to free neighborhood meals as one way to alleviate hunger and build relationships between helpers and people struggling with hunger.

Guide to Free Neighborhood Meals

A Free Neighborhood Meal requires a lot of helping hands. It is recommended to form a planning committee of at least six people who can coordinate different aspects of the planning process – including sponsorship recruitment, food procurement, volunteer management, menu planning, & equipment rental.

Utilize local assets as much as possible:

- Identify and partner closely with a host organization that serves the community in which the meal will be served
- Recruit volunteers that live, work, or are invested in the community
- Engage sponsors that do business in the community.
- Involve churches that worship in the community.
- Procure food from local farmers.
- Promote through local influential leaders (teachers, churches, nonprofit organizations)

Lessons Learned:

- It is better to have too much food than too little – as long as you have a plan for the excess. Planning food purchases for a recent Free Neighborhood Meal in Johnson County proved to be challenging due to not knowing how many people would actually attend the event. While 150 attended, enough food was prepared to feed at least 300 people. Excess food was bagged up and distributed to event attendees and volunteers. While it was nice to distribute the leftover food, in retrospect, it would have been best to scale back the total amount of food purchased and prepared.

- Many hands make lighter work – especially during clean up! We highly recommend making sure you have plenty of volunteers willing to stick around afterwards to help tear down the venue, transport equipment back to the kitchen, and wash and dry dishes. We were lucky to have at least 10 people stay, which made a daunting clean-up task go relatively quickly.

- Find a sponsoring organization. To ensure a successful Free Neighborhood Meal, it is recommended to identify a local organization as the event’s “sponsoring organization,” which can take the lead on tasks such as securing a venue, finding financial support, promoting the meal, and mobilizing volunteers. The sponsoring organization should be active in the community in which the Free Neighborhood Meal will be held – with experience serving the target population and having strong relationships with local business and faith communities.

Meal packaging events come with built-in benefits for volunteers (10/29/2015)

The Meals from the Heartland Annual Hunger Fight is a four-day event in downtown Des Moines, the largest of its kind in the nation. Every year since 2008, thousands of volunteers from across Iowa come together to package millions of meals to alleviate hunger in Iowa and around the world.

Meal packaging events coordinated by Meals from the Heartland come with three built-in benefits for volunteers:

- Teamwork is built into the meal packaging experience.
- Volunteers can immediately see tangible results from their efforts.
- Meal packaging events are discreet commitments, especially important for beginning volunteers and those with uncertain and irregular schedules.

Nate and Erin Reagen have been volunteering at the Annual Hunger Fight for the past six years. Asked about volunteering at the Annual Hunger Fight, Nate emphasizes the visibility of tangible results:

“It's just so exciting to see all of the production. In my role, I help move finished pallets, so I am watching box after box stack up. Soon, I'm pushing thousands of meals across the floor, thinking about who in the world is going to get these meals. It's physical labor and also very emotionally very rewarding.”

Nate’s wife Erin emphasizes the benefits of teamwork:

“In so many volunteer roles, you feel underutilized. But not here [at Meals from the Heartland]. And I love that I can take my kids with me because I can't take them to the other side of the world. Watching the video helps us all realize the need and what we’re able to do about it. The kids can participate and they feel good about having a real job to help feed the hungry. I know that experience, being a part of that process, will impact them throughout their life.”

In addition to the Annual Hunger Fight, Meals from the Heartland hosts packaging events at its packaging center and at mobile packaging events all over Iowa in schools, churches, businesses and community centers. In 2014, more than 47,000 volunteers packaged over 10.6 million meals. At least one third of their volunteers are school-aged children.

Meals from the Heartland works with distribution partners both locally and globally to ensure the food gets to where it is needed most. Locally, Meals from the Heartland works with the Des Moines Area Religious Council (DMARC), the Food Bank of Iowa and other food pantries to distribute food to Iowans.

Convoy of Hope is Meals from the Heartland’s primary international distribution partner and meals are delivered through programs like Many Hands for Haiti, based in Pella, Iowa, and Blessman Ministries, based in Urbandale, with missions in South Africa.

To get involved you can contact Meals from the Heartland at www.mealsfromtheheartland.org

We are grateful to Katie McDermott and Susan Bunz at Meals from the Heartland for their collaboration on this newsletter article. We are also grateful to Ted Schierer and JETT for his recent observations on volunteerism and meal packaging events.
Recent Initiatives Highlight Power of Collaboration (9/22/2015)

Most people would agree that the complex challenge of hunger is best approached through partnerships. Two recent initiatives highlight the power of collaborations between business, nonprofit, and educational institutions to feed hungry kids in Iowa.

One initiative, led by the Land O'Lakes Foundation and the Food Bank of Iowa, is distributing 40,000 lbs of Mac and Cheese in 55 Iowa counties. The other initiative, led by the Midwest Dairy Council, is partnering with schools across Iowa to help students start each day with a healthy breakfast.

Are you part of a collaboration that should be highlighted in the Iowa Hunger Directory newsletter? Share your story with us anytime by contacting Stephen at slauer@worldfoodprize.org or 515-245-3730.

Midwest Dairy Council Partnering with Iowa Schools on Breakfast Programs
By Erin Thole, Iowa Health and Wellness Program Manager, Midwest Dairy Council

While breakfast remains to be the most important meal of the day only 13 million students consume school breakfast compared to the 31 million students who consume school lunch. Much of this is due to the stereotype that breakfast is for students who are certified for free or reduced priced meals. To help close the gap and move away from the stereotype, Midwest Dairy has helped schools across Iowa implement programs such as Breakfast in the Classroom, Grab ‘n’ go breakfast, and second chance breakfast.

For more information about Midwest Dairy’s school breakfast partnerships in Iowa, download their flier or contact Erin Thole at ethole@midwestdairy.com or 515-965-4625.

Land O'Lakes Foundation Donates 40,000 lbs. of Mac and Cheese
Premade product provides an easy-to-fix option for recipients
By A.J. Graves, Community Relations Manager, Land O'Lakes

This month, the Land O'Lakes Foundation First Run program donated 40,000 lbs. of macaroni and cheese to the Food Bank of Iowa in Des Moines. The product will be distributed through 390 partner agencies as well as direct service programs in 42 counties throughout the state, as well as an additional 13 counties through their redistribution organization, the Food Bank of Southern Iowa.

What makes our product donation unique is that it’s a premade, easy-to-fix option for recipients.

“The 5 lb. bags of LAND O LAKES® macaroni and cheese are perfect for the clients we serve,” said Carey Miller, executive director for the Food Bank of Iowa. “It can be paired with meat and produce clients receive from our partner agencies or programs to create a complete meal. And it’s great because no additional ingredients are needed for preparation.”

As Miller guided three Land O'Lakes corporate board members through the distribution center, she explained the ways they get food to people in need.

“Our partner agencies and food bank programs have access to an online ordering system 24 hours a day, seven days a week,” said Miller. “They order food based on the needs of their clients. The food is then distributed by us or picked up by the agency or program.”
There are a number of companies like Land O’Lakes that donate product, but that’s not the only source of support for the Food Bank of Iowa, a member of the Feeding America® food bank network.

“We partner with a great farming family in Madrid, Iowa,” said Miller. “They designate seven acres of their land for volunteers to plant, maintain and harvest produce. We also partner with the Newton Correctional Facility where inmates plant, grow and harvest food on 12 acres of land.”

The food bank also relies on donations from producers, manufacturers and retailers throughout the service area.

“We receive food donations from a number of places,” said Miller, nodding toward a stack of crates filled with various food items. “For instance, we will pick up meat and produce that nearing expiration, bring it back to the distribution center and refrigerator or freeze it to maintain quality.”

To help clients get the most out of the produce they receive, Miller and her team worked with Iowa State University Extension and Outreach. “The nutritionists and dieticians help develop great materials for our clients,” she said. “The handouts focus on the benefits, storage and uses of the produce that we distribute.”

More than 21 million children qualify for free or reduced-price meals throughout the National School Lunch Program and the National School Lunch Breakfast Program.* Many of these children count on the meals they receive during the school day to get enough to eat, making weekends an especially vulnerable time.

Near the end of the tour, Miller stopped next to a crate of peanut butter to explain how the food bank and partner agencies reach these children—and their families—in need.

As part of the Feeding America BackPack Program™, the Food Bank of Iowa and fill students’ backpacks with a variety of foodstuff to help them get through the weekend.

The program aims to fill backpacks with enough food to make at least two meals and have snacks on hand including cereal, fruit cups, sunbutter or peanut butter, 100 percent fruit juice, pop-top meals or soup. The Food Bank of Iowa expects to serve 5,000 low income elementary school aged children through the BackPack Program™ in 2015.

It takes 17 full-time employees and countless volunteers to keep the food bank and its programs running, something Miller doesn’t take for granted.

“Our employees and volunteers help unload, sort and pack food,” she said. “And our drivers cover our service area of 30,000 square miles. We appreciate what everyone does for the food bank.”

At the end of their tour, Miller and the board members watched as workers finished unloading a semi-truck of what seemed to be an endless supply of macaroni and cheese. But even though 40,000 lbs. is a lot, the stockpile won’t last long.

“As soon as we get it into the system—likely today—agencies will start ordering it and distribution will begin tomorrow,” she said. “This is wonderful product and it will go quickly.”

About First Run The First Run program, part of the Land O’Lakes Foundation, provides fresh product made by our Land O’Lakes, Inc. plant employees for donation to food banks across the country. To date, the program has donated 3 million lbs. of product to 83 food banks and their partner agencies.

September is Hunger Action Month in Iowa! (9/1/2015)

Starting Tuesday, September 1, Iowa's eight food banks, along with other food banks in the Feeding America network will kick off Hunger Action Month by holding events throughout the country to inspire people to take action to help the millions of people who are food insecure in the United States.

A full calendar of 30 Ways in 30 Days is available at www.northeastiowafoodbank.org. This is a listing of 30 different ways to take action during each of the 30 days in September.

Some of the Hunger Action Month events taking place include:

- Hunger Action Day (Thursday, September 3rd) - Wear orange to support hunger awareness.
- Mention the Northeast Iowa Food Bank at Panera Bread in Waterloo or Cedar Falls Thursday, September 3rd, or the Food Bank of Iowa at Central Iowa Panera stores, and 20% of your food bill will be donated to the Food Bank.
- The Food Bank is also participating in the new Spoontember online initiative. Supporters can share a ‘spoon selfie’ or video of themselves creatively using a spoon – a utensil that is most often used to prepare and provide food for others – and challenge others to join them to generate awareness about hunger in our communities.

To learn more about Hunger Action Month and Spoontember, please visit www.hungeractionmonth.org.
Using systems thinking to build hunger free communities (9/1/2015)

Systems thinking tools help teach “the how” of building a collective impact model for hunger-free communities. Participants at a quarterly Regional Food Systems Working Group Meeting were treated to a presentation by Ms. Kathy Zurcher, a consultant who specializes in facilitating systems change.

Highlights included three principles of systems change and several practical suggestions to help facilitate collective impact through systems thinking.

Three principles of systems change:

1. Relationships are fundamental. Foster group reflection and “generative conversations” that focus on each participant’s strengths and how their efforts can complement one another.
2. Slower is faster. Take time to see the whole system and build a shared understanding of the future you want to see.
3. What you focus on is what you get. An exclusive focus on analyzing the problems of the present tends to lead a group to discover even more problems and complexities. A focus on co-creating the future helps a group identify and pursue easy wins and builds energy for ongoing collaboration.

Practical Suggestions:

1. Good relationships tend to encourage even better relationships, while bad relationships tend to encourage even worse relationships. To reverse a vicious cycle of worsening relationships:
   a. Focus discussion on the purpose and mission of the work, and on what brings everyone together. There is usually a set of common values that bring participants to the table and these can provide the initial common ground for improving relationships.
   b. Also recognize that systems-change discussions rarely include everyone. While nobody is in favor of hunger, there may be people that fundamentally disagree with the strategies that the group is pursuing. If this is the case, it may be best to part ways on as friendly of terms as possible, ideally by mutual agreement and after a period of honest conversation and reflection.
2. The process of systems change emphasizes relationships and co-ownership of a group, which can make it difficult for new people to join. To bring new people in:
   a. Develop an intentional on-ramping process for new people. When someone new joins the group, have another conversation about what the group is doing and why. This will help integrate the newcomers into the effort.
   b. To save time, it may be best to decide on certain times of year that newcomers can enter as a cohort. This could be done once, twice, or four times a year.
   c. Before a prospective member joins, it is helpful for a senior member or facilitator to have a one-on-one conversation with the newcomer to orient them to the history and mission of the group and to help ensure they’re a good fit to join.
3. Many groups include some members that are more (or less) powerful than average. To manage unequal power in a partnership:
   a. Be very clear about member roles and norms of interaction, and have these conversations early, before problems surface.
   b. If possible, have the conversation about power. It’s often better to talk respectfully about power and how to exercise it, rather than to leave unequal power among partners as the elephant in the room.
   c. Be sure to emphasize common values and motivations, especially when discussing sensitive topics like power.
d. It can be helpful to intentionally take away the symbols and signs of power, and to intentionally mix power levels when assigning seating at meetings and forming working groups. For example, a group that includes members of the business community, nonprofit agency representation, and residents of an economically distressed neighborhood might institute a casual dress code at meetings.

4. It is difficult to make the mental switch between analyzing problems and envisioning the future, yet this is often necessary to generate solutions. To effectively switch between analyzing problems and envisioning the future:
   a. Begin by envisioning the future. The positive energy from this exercise will carry over throughout the meeting.
   b. Frame an analysis of the present using the collective vision: “given our vision, what’s happening in current reality?”
   c. Analyze problems later, and focus that analysis on the subset of problems that is directly relevant to the group’s chosen strategies and tactics for achieving their vision.

5. Funding is challenge for this type of work. While some funders are moving towards support for relationship-building and systems change, it is difficult to show concrete results on a short timeline.

In addition to these highlights, Ms. Zurcher shared three guides, which she has generously allowed us to share through the Iowa Hunger Directory online resources page.

Central Iowa hospitality industry partnership fights hunger, homelessness (8/5/2015)

The Iowa Hospitality Donation Network (IHDN) is a young initiative that shows great promise in bringing nonprofits, hotels and event venues together in win-win partnerships that support low income and homeless individuals in central Iowa.

By providing logistical assistance and a platform for sharing information, IHDN helps the hospitality industry donate excess food, leftover personal care items, and discarded housewares to nonprofit organizations and individuals in need.

The promise of IHDN rests on its ability to facilitate win-win partnerships that go beyond traditional motivations of corporate responsibility while recognizing and addressing the barriers that hotels and nonprofits face in rescuing food and personal items.

For example, as hotels upgrade and renovate the disposal of mattresses is becoming progressively more expensive due to the fact that landfills are now setting prices based on weight. The Iowa Hospitality Donation Network exists to find solutions for logistics of moving these products from the hotels to charities that can distribute to those in need, such as shelters and organizations that help people transition to independent living. In addition to the environmental and social benefits of reduced waste, participating hotels benefit from decreased trash hauling expenses.

For more information about the Iowa Hospitality Donation Network, please contact Ms. Mandy McWherter at mandy@mycem.com or 515-254-0289. Hospitality partners interested in becoming involved may contact Rio Maxwell at events@mycem.com or call 515-254-0289 for additional information or to receive a listing of known charities that accept donations.

Iowa Hospitality Donation Network: How the Hospitality Industry is working to End Hunger in Central Iowa

I originally started conceptualizing the idea for Iowa Hospitality Donation Network (IHDN) as an outreach effort to further support more hunger and homelessness initiatives in our community through hotels, event centers, and venues.

As the co-chair for Matthew 25 at Faith Lutheran Church in Clive focusing efforts toward addressing hunger and homelessness, my goal has been to help our committee organize our efforts into a scalable and trackable manner in order to make a greater impact in our community and throughout the world, as it relates to these issues.

In addition, in my role as President on the board of directors for Opportunity on Deck, I also see the good that comes out of volunteering with needy families every week and how providing nutritious snacks and meals is so rewarding and helpful to their budgets.
In my profession of traveling to and working with hotels all over the world, I see all the waste that goes on at hotels both from the guest sleeping room, to the kitchen where plates of uneaten food are tossed with shocking regularity. Growing up during a time when food issues and paying the bills were a challenge for my family, I was bothered by the fact that we did not have a local, collective effort to address the growing need among those who could use these products that would otherwise be thrown out. I knew there had to be a way to repurpose, recycle, or reuse these products and where better to start the effort than in Iowa where we rank seventh in the nation for volunteerism. Iowans love to rally behind a great cause and they don’t like to waste when they can help others.

I originally sat down with Cheryl Math with Heart of America Restaurants & Inns and shared with her my thoughts on starting a community-wide effort to collect unused food at hotels, and other items as well. We determined that the area hotels don’t have as much wasted food as they do other items and refocused on thoughts on other available products.

With the support of Abid Talic representing Paramount Hotel Group and many other influential hoteliers, including the Iowa Lodging Association, we came up with a plan to repurpose shampoo, conditioner, lotions, tissues, toilet paper, bedding, mattresses and other items currently going to the landfill – all at no cost to those participating hotels. This win-win proposal allows hotels, and venues as well, to get involved in a great cause, to support their community and to even reduce their landfill haul bills. After meeting as a group we were then able to design a turn-key operation to roll out to the hotels that would provide a simplified structure on how to collect the items, along with the bags to collect donations, a set schedule, and pick-up teams to deliver the items to the worthy charities.

During this new process, we will continue to look for ways to repurpose the food items and are equally excited about working with Eat Greater Des Moines to test out their new app [the app is currently in testing and the release date is not yet set] that will further enhance the ability for us to get food from hospitality partners (hotels and venues) to worthy charities immediately. Currently, hospitality partners must follow strict guidelines on timing that often results in having to toss the food. With this new app, a charity can pick up the food immediately, avoiding the need to waste perfectly good food that hungry people would greatly appreciate. With the Federal Bill Emerson Good Samaritan Food Donation Act, there is no reason to waste food when guidelines can be met.
Spencer's Feed Our Children initiative shares best practices for school backpack programs (7/23/2015)

Over the past school year, almost 180 elementary school students in Spencer received food each weekend through the community-led Feed Our Children initiative.

Each child in the program receives a bag at school every Friday with enough food for 4 meals and 2 snacks to help nourish them over the weekend. All food comes in a plastic bag and is provided ready-to-eat. Heating is optional and single-serve packages are distributed when possible. Children are identified for the program by their school guidance counselor or nurse, who also distributes a plastic bag containing the food individually to each child to ensure confidentiality.

Food for the program is purchased in bulk and at a discount from the local Fairway grocery store. Each bag of food costs approximately $6.20, and is funded entirely by donations from individuals, service clubs, businesses and local churches.

Teams of volunteers assemble the bags of food every Wednesday evening at Hope Church, and deliver the bags to the school staff every Friday morning. Volunteers include individuals and groups from the community, and serve on a rotating schedule. It has been especially inspiring for organizers to see area students helping to assemble meals.

With five years of experience and a network of connections across Northwest Iowa, Feed Our Children has become a source of advice and inspiration for other communities that are interested in feeding their children through weekend backpack programs. Most recently, Feed Our Children organizers presented on June 26th to a group in Emmetsburg that is organizing a new weekend backpack program.

The organizers of Feed Our Children in Spencer share the following recommendations for communities seeking to establish weekend backpack programs:

- Establish a core group of at least four key people to lead the backpack program. The leadership team should include a chair (visible leader and convener), an organizer (to handle logistics), a secretary and a treasurer.
- Open a bank account to receive donations and hold funds for the program. It can be helpful to use an existing nonprofit as a fiscal agent. The Feed Our Children team in Spencer uses Hope Church as their fiscal agent.
- Make sure that there is buy-in from the school and the broader community. School support is critical for the success of any backpack program, as school staff identifies children to participate and the school is the venue at which food is distributed. Broader community support is important to the sustainability of the program, as donations and volunteers are likely to come from area churches, businesses, and civic groups.
- Start with a small program and grow slowly and deliberately. Doing research and making connections early on builds efficiency and goodwill for the future.
- The Iowa Food Bank Association has additional resources and its member food banks often partner with communities that are launching weekend backpack programs. While the Feed Our Children initiative in Spencer has decided against a partnership with the food bank at this time, new backpack programs are encouraged to reach out to their regional food bank and explore whether a partnership would be mutually beneficial.

For more information about the Feed Our Children initiative in Spencer, please contact Ms. Jean Blok at jblok80@gmail.com or contact the organizing team at hrc@spencerhope.org or 712-262-3016.
2015 World Food Prize Laureate Leading a Generation out of Poverty (7/1/2015)

Sir Fazle Hasan Abed of Bangladesh was announced today as the 2015 winner of the World Food Prize, the most prominent global award for individuals whose breakthrough achievements alleviate hunger and promote global food security.

The $250,000 prize honors Sir Fazle’s unparalleled achievement in building the unique, integrated development organization BRAC, which is headquartered in Bangladesh and operates programs in 10 other countries around the globe. Since he created it over 40 years ago, Sir Fazle’s organization has provided the opportunity for nearly 150 million people worldwide to improve their lives, have enhanced food security and follow a pathway out of poverty through its dynamic and effective development programs.

Sir Fazle will receive the World Food Prize at a ceremony that will be held in the magnificent Iowa State Capitol building in Des Moines, Iowa on the evening of October 15, 2015. The event is the centerpiece of a three-day international symposium entitled the Borlaug Dialogue, which regularly draws over 1,200 people from 65 countries to discuss cutting-edge issues in global food security.

Also included in the World Food Prize week-long series of events is the Iowa Hunger Summit on October 13 the three-day Global Youth Institute, which includes 400 participants from the U.S. and abroad and is designed to inspire the next generation of high school students to explore careers in agriculture and fighting hunger.

Iowa Homeless Symposium Resources Now Online (7/1/2015)

Each year, the Iowa office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) hosts a Peer-to-Peer Homelessness Symposium.

On June 3rd and 4th, the third annual symposium provided a diverse range of topics and networking opportunities for approximately 300 professionals from across Iowa and neighboring states.

Topics included:
- An overview of the state of homelessness in Iowa,
- The role of schools in combatting homelessness,
- Recognizing and addressing trauma among vulnerable populations, and;
- Strategies for alleviating homelessness among veterans and in rural Iowa.

All presentations and participant contact information is available online at:

Gardens and food pantries are sharing the harvest (6/12/2015)

Across Iowa, school, faith-based and community gardens are partnering with local food pantries to provide their communities with increased access to healthy, nutritious food. Organizations such as Cultivate Iowa, Food Corps, and Iowa Interfaith Power and Light are helping gardens to get started.

Newer gardens join a variety of established gardens, including the 12-year old garden at Saint Paul Presbyterian Church in Johnston, which produced 1200 pounds of produce during the 2014 growing season. All 1200 pounds were distributed locally to people in need through collaboration with a food pantry operated by the Johnston Partnership for a Healthy Community.

Beginning last year, the church also shared produce through two Pop-Up Markets at the Johnston AHEPA complex where low-resource senior citizens live. Many residents of the complex do not have transportation and have limited incomes. This effort brought the produce directly to their site and was offered free of charge. There are plans to do that again this summer.

The Saint Paul Presbyterian Church garden thrives off of the combined efforts of the congregation and the wider community. Collaborators include the Church Garden Committee, Sunday school students, youth groups, service organizations, and other churches that provide volunteers to care for the garden.

The Community Garden has been blessed with several grant awards that allowed for the expansion:
- In 2013, they were awarded a United Way mini-grant to install a water source in the garden area
- In 2014, Hy-Vee provided additional funding to install a drip irrigation system
- In 2014, Johnston High School 9th grader Sydney Hedgepeth wrote a grant request while attending the Reformed Church of America (RCA) Conference in Colorado that was chosen out of 100 entrees and allowed for the addition of two composters that are operational for the 2015 growing season

Church garden organizers share the following insights from their experience:
1. We simply felt called to do it and it felt right, that we were pleasing the Lord.
2. Gardens, like life are messy. A lot of unforeseen problems come up, and you just have to have faith that it will work out.
3. Church ladies don’t like to ask for help – we are supposed to be the givers. But in the asking we have enjoyed new friends and gained a lot more insight into this project than if we had tried to do it all alone.
4. Gardens are like kitchens – if you are there working someone nearly always wanders in to see what you are doing or to talk.

For more information about the Saint Paul Presbyterian Church garden and its collaboration with the Johnston Partnership for a Healthy Community, please join their Garden to Table Celebration on June 20 or contact Ms. Kelly Renfrow at president@johnstonpartnership.org or 515-868-1357.
Summer Food Service Program nourishes Iowa youth (6/12/2015)

During the school year, more than 195,000 children receive free and reduced-price meals. The USDA Summer Food Service Program extends this investment in our children’s health by providing nutritious meals and snacks to low income children during the summer.

Families can locate summer meal sites by calling 1-866-3-HUNGRY (1-877-8-HAMBRE) or visiting www.fns.usda.gov/summerfoodrocks.

While there are many summer serving sites across Iowa, they are currently reaching only 10% of eligible children. There is a great need for additional schools and community based organizations to serve as program partners.

For more information, or to explore the possibility of becoming a program partner, contact the Iowa Department of Education program consultant Stephanie Dross at stephanie.dross@iowa.gov or 515-281-4760.

Interstate 35 Middle School students fill backpacks with food for community members in need (5/20/2015)

The Interstate 35 middle school student council recently created a local affiliate of the Feeding America Backpacks for Hunger campaign to reduce the impacts of hunger on students and families in their rural school district. In its first 12 weeks, the program served 1,217 meals to 311 people. The full story is available online on page 14 of the March 2015 Roadrunner Report.

For more information about the Interstate 35 program, please contact Ms. Sue Meggers at smeggers@i-35.k12.ia.us. For more information about backpack programs in Iowa, please contact Mr. Cory Berkenes, Director of the Iowa Food Bank Association, at cberkenes@iowafba.org or 515-288-3234.
Workforce development program quadruples wages, puts $3 million back into Iowa economy (5/20/2015)

It is well known that good jobs are among the most powerful antidotes to hunger. In 2011, the AMOS coalition of congregations and community leaders created Project Iowa to improve workforce development efforts and impact systemic change in central Iowa.

Since then, Project Iowa has provided skills training to 201 unemployed and underemployed people, 70% of whom found employment with local businesses in career-track, livable-wage jobs.

The average hourly wage of a Project Iowa graduate is $14.34, an increase from an average of $3.56 per hour before they completed the workforce training program. Initial estimates suggest that the increase in employment and wages among their graduates has put approximately 3 million dollars back into the Iowa economy.

Project Iowa continues to accomplish its mission through grassroots connections, collaborative relationships with business partners, and extensive services and coaching for participants during training and through one year of employment.

They have also made some significant changes since we wrote about their programs in February of 2014:

- Project Iowa’s new Incumbent Workers program works with businesses like Kemin Industries and nonprofits like Central Iowa Shelter and Services to provide customized curriculum that develops the personal and professional skills of existing employees. Intended outcomes include increased job satisfaction, retention and internal promotion rates; improved workplace functioning and reduced costs of external recruitment. In some cases, new Project Iowa graduates may be hired for positions vacated by an internally promoted incumbent worker.
- Based on feedback from their first two classes of graduates, Project Iowa modified their curriculum offered and added a new administrative and customer service skill track for participants whose strengths are outside of the advanced manufacturing and welding skill track.
- Project Iowa continues to develop their VIP curriculum and is preparing to roll out a 3-4 day institute-based training model to share their experiences and teaching methods with organizations across the state. They anticipate the first institutes being offered this fall or winter.

Keys to Project Iowa’s success include:

- Responsiveness to feedback and an emphasis on learning from participants and partners
- A heavy focus on documentation, monitoring and evaluation, to ensure that their claims are accurate and that their curriculum is valid and trustworthy
- A paced and methodical expansion, making sure that their model is sound before adding new programs or communities and always retaining time for learning and documentation

For more information about Project Iowa, please contact Ms. Mary Schlader at office@projectiowa.org or 515-280-1274.
Iowa elementary school students are paying it forward with Heifer International
(5/6/2015)

Fifth and sixth grade students at Valley Elementary School in Elgin are teaming up with Heifer International to make the world a better place.

Inspired by the book "Pay It Forward - Youth Edition", the 2015 5th and 6th Grade WIN Literacy Class is raising funds through bake sales, garage sales, donation baskets, and a go-fund-me page.

Funds raised will support Heifer International's work to end hunger and poverty by providing livestock and environmentally sound agricultural training to communities in the United States and more than 30 foreign countries.

Assisted by teachers Jeannie Krambeer and Julie Frieden, the Valley Elementary students graciously share the following reflections:

How the book inspired the service learning activity:
"Even though the book is fiction, we thought it was so cool that Trevor wanted to "Pay it Forward" to different people in need. So we decided to put the idea into action." - Student

"We read the book as part of an extension project for some of our 5th and 6th grade students. As a teacher, you go into the project hoping the students really delve deep into the book and get the bigger picture. These students have taken it to a whole new level with their development of and excitement for this project." - Teacher

How the partnership with Heifer International came about:
"We got the idea from a member of our group. He did this with his church and thought it would be a cool idea. He received photos from the family and they were happy about getting animals." - Student

"We are a rural community with deep roots in agriculture. We respect the power and importance of the family farm and wanted to share that possibility with others." - Teacher

How the educators are facilitating this service learning activity:
"The students have divided themselves into different groups planning the garage sale, bake sale, donation drive, GoFundMe site, public relations, etc. Our job as teachers is to keep them focused and offer guidance in making sure they are able to accomplish their goals." - Teacher

Some lessons from this experience:
"We learned that you can do big things no matter what age you are. In the book, Trevor, a 12 year old, by starting Pay It Forward, changed the world." - Student

"Our students have learned that even though they are young, they can still make a positive difference in the world. They have also learned that following through with their ideas is a lot of work, but there is also a lot of satisfaction in seeing the end result." - Teacher

For more information about the Valley Elementary school project, please contact Ms. Jeannie Krambeer or Ms. Julie Frieden, or visit their GoFundMe page. For more information about the work of Heifer International, please contact their volunteer coordinators.
Iowa High School students receive national honors for confronting hunger through social enterprise (5/6/2015)

While just in her first year of college at American University, Maria Belding of Pella has received multiple national awards, including the prestigious 2015 Clinton Hunger Leadership Award and the top prize for nonprofit social venture at the 2015 George Washington University Business Plan Competition.

Working with fellow Iowans Grant Nelson of Des Moines and Kota Olson of Keswick, Maria created the award-winning MEANS Database, an online system enabling food pantries to communicate with each other and their donors to reduce food waste and feed more people.

Maria credits the World Food Prize education programs for providing her with inspiration, mentorship and introductions to a diverse group of talented young people who share her enthusiasm. More information about Maria, Kota and other young Iowans fighting hunger is available online or by emailing Jacob Hunter or Stephen Lauer.

Iowa nonprofit launches innovative RAGBRAI fundraiser (4/14/2015)

Global Compassion Network, an Iowa nonprofit most known for their Safe T Home® (a Sukup grain bin turned into housing for needy families in Haiti) will be building a Safe T Home® along the RAGBRAI route this year. Overnight towns: Sioux City, Storm Lake, Fort Dodge, Eldora, Cedar Falls, Hiawatha, Coralville- July 19-25, 2015.

They are currently requesting help from churches and businesses in each of the overnight towns to host their Safe T Home on their property and provide water hookup. They need a big enough space for their Safe T Home, a camper, a truck and trailer, a couple tents, etc. This could be a great way for a local business to draw more attention to their store.

They also need 15 volunteers in each overnight town to set up and take down the Safe T Home and to help run a portable shower as a donation-based fundraiser.

For location suggestions, please contact Julie Anderson at 712-887-0150 or danderson1466@gmail.com. Volunteers should email Mary Graham at mary@globalcn.us to express their interest in helping.

Underused tax credit rewards Iowa’s growers for fresh food donations (4/14/2015)

An underutilized state tax incentive helps growers maximize their contributions to participating food banks and pantries, giving the gift of fresh and healthy food to Iowans who need it most. The Farm to Food Tax Donation Credit allows taxpayers to receive a 15% tax credit, up to $5,000, in return for fresh produce, meat, and other wholesome food items donated during the tax year.

The Drake University Agricultural Law Center has prepared a set of documents, available at www.law.drake.edu/aglaw, to help producers and food organizations understand and use the Farm to Food Donation Tax Credit.

For more information, please contact Mr. Aaron Jaco at aaron.jaco@drake.edu or 515-779-0526.
Schools Reduce Food Waste, Improve Menus through “No Thank You” Box

Acting within the framework of federal and state regulations, Des Moines Public Schools are reducing food waste and improving their menus by placing “No Thank You” boxes in ten elementary and middle school cafeterias. The district’s goal is primarily to avoid food waste by serving healthy food that students choose to eat and secondarily to redirect unwanted, healthful food to help students who need it.

The No Thank You boxes are placed near the cafeteria doors next to the garbage cans and give students the option of returning uneaten food items such as apples, bananas, and unopened cereal bowls. The returned food is inspected for integrity, washed, and given to the school nurse, who distributes it to students who are hungry or need to take food with their medicine. In partnership with the Food Bank of Iowa, the district is including some of the rescued food in its Backpack Buddies program.

In addition to rescuing unwanted but wholesome food, a primary objective of the No Thank You Box program is to improve the school menu by discovering and replacing the food items that are most often returned. Administration already knows from production figures how many of each food item is taken, but production figures alone do not show how many of the items taken are actually consumed. The No Thank You Box helps bridge this gap by indicating how many items are taken but not eaten.

A common concern with school food rescue programs is that students will decide not to eat food that they would otherwise consume so that they can share it with others. The Des Moines Public Schools addressed this concern in two ways:

1. They do not advertise to their students what happens with the rescued food. Students know that the food doesn’t go into the garbage, but they are not told that it goes to the school nurse for distribution to kids who might be hungry.
2. The name “No Thank You Box” was deliberately chosen instead of a “Sharing Table” name, in order to downplay the generosity aspects of the program.

Additional suggestions include:

- Because the primary goal is to improve the menu so that less food needs to be rescued, it is important not to evaluate school food rescue programs solely based on the amount of food rescued.
- Partnerships and collaboration are essential for this type of work. Outside partners include the Food Bank of Iowa and the FoodCorps VISTA program. Internal partners include school administration, food service personnel, nurses and teachers.

For more information about the Des Moines Public Schools food rescue program, please contact Ms. Amanda Miller at amanda.miller@dmschools.org or 515-242-8308.
Emmetsburg Borlaug Scholars Research and Combat Hunger (3/13/2015)

In the spirit of Dr. Norman Borlaug and his legacy of alleviating world hunger; the Emmetsburg High School sophomore class has researched, created posters and presented to their peers the plight of those who are food insecure in various countries. The students also proposed solutions to these barriers to food security.

In an effort to assist hungry people in their own community the "EHS Borlaug Scholars" responded to a Canned Food Drive challenge where they collected 288 lbs of food that has been delivered to the Upper Des Moines Food Pantry in Palo Alto. The students have the option of turning their research into a formal essay for the honor of attending the World Food Prize Iowa Youth Institute that will be held April 27, 2015 at Iowa State University.

For more information about the EHS Borlaug Scholars, please contact Ms. Tricia Richert at treichert@e-hawks.org or 712-852-2966.

February Question of the Month: Responses are In (3/13/2015)

Last month, we asked Iowa Hunger Directory members to share the most important constraint limiting the effectiveness of their work against hunger. Here are their answers:

- Too little support for objectively effective government nutrition programs. The politics of attacking government and marginalizing low income individuals and families is preventing communities, states, and our country from using highly cost effective programs to provide a springboard for people to improve their lives. – Matt Russell, Drake University Agricultural Law Center
- With nearly $50 million in cash and non-cash contributions to food banks in Iowa, we are able make food available to the 389,730 food-insecure Iowans. However, as retail contributions decrease and food prices rise, it is becoming increasingly difficult to meet the demand. Ninety-two percent of cash and non-cash contributions to food banks come from the private sector; the remaining eight-percent comes from federal and county sources. If we want to alleviate hunger in our state, we need to encourage state elected officials to invest in feeding our friends and neighbors. Investing in anti-hunger activities will have a tremendous impact on state’s economy, health, and education. – Cory Berkenes, Iowa Food Bank Association
- Food supply and identifying needs of families for our Backpacks Against Hunger school program. – Interstate 35 Middle School Backpacks against Hunger
- Money and Food. November 2014 was our highest month of usage in our Food Pantry Network's nearly 40 year history. We continue to see increases in use from month to month. Donated food and donated money for purchasing food help us keep up with this rising demand, but it is a constant struggle. – Luke Elzinga, Des Moines Area Religious Council
- Lack of flexibility from the Food Bank on how food is distributed and to whom. (income requirements, not allowing for proxy-pick up, self-imposed rules on donated fresh produce, etc). – Anonymous Respondent
- Lack of effective coordination among providers, funders and food banks. We are not addressing the systemic problems of fund insecurity, rather we are continuing to use models that we are familiar with and with which we can raise money. – Anonymous Respondent
Honduran Farmer Shares his Story with Iowa Partners (2/25/2015)

As a Christian response to world hunger, Foods Resource Bank (FRB) links the grassroots energy and commitment of the U.S. agricultural community with the capability and desire of small farmers in developing countries to grow lasting solutions to hunger. FRB engages volunteers to raise money through “Growing Projects” for between 50-60 overseas programs a year.

Last weekend, almost 60 representatives of Growing Projects across Iowa and the Midwest gathered at Zion United Church of Christ in Waukon to learn from one of the Honduran farmers who has benefited from their efforts. After receiving training from a local FRB partner in Honduras, Melecio Cantoral now grows 29 different crops on his 4 acre farm.

This diversity enabled his family to survive crippling weather extremes last year and to share his harvest with his neighbors. FRB staff and volunteers emphasize the importance of sharing the stories of farmers in Iowa and around the world to build community and solidarity as they confront hunger. In addition to his presentations, Melecio shared his story in the Sunday Des Moines Register.

For more information about FRB, please contact Rev. Joan Fumetti at joan@foodsresourcebank.org or 515-421-5545.
Growing Dome Project Supports Year-Round Gardening and Vocational Training (2/25/2015)

Lush beds of salad greens are a welcome sight on a cold February afternoon at the Central Iowa Shelter and Services (CISS) Growing Dome. The Growing Dome project provides vocational training to people living at risk of homelessness and helps Central Iowa Shelter and Services get a head start on its summer gardens.

The physical structure is a 33-foot-diameter dome which came in a box and took about a day to set up. The dome design allows it to maintain favorable temperatures without heaters or access to electricity and a large water tank absorbs heat in the daytime and releases it at night. Plans are being developed for raising Koi fish in the water tank and selling them to local pet stores.

Employees in the vocational training program practice soft job skills such as punctuality, emotional intelligence, and following direction; develop gardening and culinary food preparation skills; and build their employment histories. As the Growing Dome project matures, trainees will expand food production in the indoor and outdoor gardens, process the harvest in the CISS certified kitchen, and begin marketing produce through a street-side food cart.

CISS purchased their Growing Dome from Growing Spaces. Start-up cost is a barrier, with the 33 foot dome kit costing $30,000. CISS partnered with DuPont Pioneer to cover the cost of the dome infrastructure.

Based on their experience so far, CISS staff recommends:

- Start slow. CISS is focusing on streamlining production in the Growing Dome before expanding to culinary and marketing activities.
- Partnerships are essential. This project was only possible because of the support of DuPont Pioneer and United Way of Central Iowa.
- Share the story. The Growing Dome project is an exciting initiative, but outreach to media and community groups is essential to spread excitement and encourage support from the community.

For more information about the CISS Growing Dome project, please contact Mr. AJ Olson at aolson@centraliowashelter.org or Ms. Jorie Landers at jlanders@centraliowashelter.org or 515-564-5752.

Inspired by Iowa Youth Institute, Boone Students Continue Fight Against Hunger (2/12/2015)

Almost 100 people gathered in the Boone High School gymnasium on Friday to fight hunger through the second annual Boone Community Hunger Banquet. Participants learned about how food is distributed unequally in the world and raised money for a student-led meal packaging activity. The Boone student-organizers were inspired by ISU freshman Paige Myers, who was in turn inspired by her experiences as a high school delegate to the Iowa Youth Institute at Iowa State University.

The Iowa Youth Institute inspires the next generation of hunger fighters. Students work with a teacher-mentor to research and present their own solutions to food insecurity, participate in hands-on experiments and simulations led by ISU faculty, and network with peers and leaders in government, business, the nonprofit community and academia. Full details are online at http://www.worldfoodprize.org/iowayouth.
Corporate – Nonprofit Partnership Rescues over Two Million Pounds of Food (2/12/2015)

Since 2011, Kwik Trip and partner food banks, including the Northeast Iowa Food Bank, have rescued over 2 million pounds of food through the Kwik Trip Food Rescue program.

This corporate – nonprofit partnership combines the skills and assets of Kwik Trip and food banks to better reach the shared goal of food secure communities:

- Kwik Trip’s logistical and marketing skills are combined with food banks’ community needs assessment and client relations skills, and;
- Kwik Trip’s surplus food assets are combined with food bank’s food distribution assets;
- Resulting in more food secure communities, which food banks serve and where Kwik Trip does business.

Kwik Trip traditionally waits until there are at least ten of their stores in a food bank’s service area before initiating a food rescue partnership, and challenges partnering food banks to rescue food from every Kwik Trip store in their region.

Food bank staff and volunteers typically collect food two times a week from participating Kwik Trip stores.

To ensure quality as the rescued food is transported, Kwik Trip helps partner food banks:

- collect food from Kwik Trip stores in totes, and;
- transport food in climate controlled vehicles.

Kwik Trip, Inc. relies on the partner agencies each food bank has in their network. Each food bank will partner with a local agency that is able to conduct store pick-ups at a minimum of 2 times a week. Donated/Rescued food stays in the local communities and ultimately reduces hunger in the communities where Kwik Trip and Kwik Star are located. Even donations raised at store level are distributed through the food banks to the partner agencies that are picking up at the stores.

The program began as a small pilot in 2011 with the Channel One Regional Food Bank in Rochester, Minnesota. By September, 2012, the program expanded to include Second Harvest Heartland Food Bank in the Twin Cities and the Northeast Iowa Food Bank. Food banks serving Wisconsin were added in 2013, and the program will soon expand again to include the River Bend Foodbank serving Eastern Iowa and Western Illinois. With these expansions, the program is on track to rescue over 1 million additional pounds of food in the fiscal year ending in September 2015.

For more information about the Kwik Trip Food Rescue Program, please contact Mr. Marty Putz at MPutz@kwiktrip.com or at 608-793-6218.
Iowa Hunger Fighters Draft Sports Fans through the Souper Bowl of Caring

Iowa’s hunger-fighting community is reaching out to sports fans this season through the Souper Bowl of Caring – an opportunity for individuals, church congregations, and other groups to team up against hunger. Teams can join the national Souper Bowl movement online and raise funds for their local food banks and food pantries. Food banks and pantries can benefit from the Souper Bowl simply by encouraging members of their communities to participate. The Food Bank of Northeast Iowa is taking this approach. Meals from the Heartland is taking a similar approach to raising awareness through their independent Supper Bowl 2015 Challenge.

This year, Davenport Volunteer Connection is partnering with other area organizations to take the Souper Bowl of Caring to the next level through a kick-off event on Martin Luther King Day and a two week donation drive through Super Bowl Sunday.

Davenport Volunteer Connection, AmeriCorps member and RSVP collaborated to organize the local Souper Bowl drive to benefit the Kings Harvest Ministries food pantry. Over 150 community members participated in the very first Davenport area Souper Bowl kick-off event, which raised funds and awareness of the food pantry and of the importance of volunteering and national service organizations.

Organizers credit the event’s success to:
- Partnering with United Neighbors to hold the Souper Bowl kick-off during their annual MLK Day Celebration. This boosted participation in the kick-off without adding an additional competing event to the MLK Day of Service – especially important because the Souper Bowl kick-off had not been done in Davenport before.
- Bringing together three National Service groups to co-organize the event. By working together, Davenport Volunteer Connection, AmeriCorps, and RSVP were able to make their message of community service through collaboration much more powerful.
- Recruiting community ambassadors to help publicize and promote the kick-off and ongoing drive.

Recruiting more ambassadors and teaming up with other events to get more foot-traffic past the donation pots would further increase the success of the ongoing Souper Bowl drive.

For more information about the Northeast Iowa Food Bank’s Souper Bowl promotion, please contact Nikki Litzel at nlitzel@northeastiowafoodbank.org or 319-235-0507. For more information about Meals from the Heartland’s Supper Bowl 2015 Challenge, please contact Mr. Dave Bradley at dave.bradley@mealsfromtheheartland.org or 515-473-9530.
January Question of the Month: Responses are In (1/29/2015)

Last month, we asked Hunger Directory members to share what combination of relief (addressing the immediate needs of hungry people) and development (helping hungry people better meet their own needs over time) best describes the work that you do. Here is some of their feedback:

- “The focus changes as resources / donations become available. Without donations, we don’t have resources for relief. Our long term emphasis is on development. We are glad to be involved in both.”
- “We provide relief through student meals every day, but also development by education students and families which will help them be better able to seek and provide healthy food for themselves.”
- “It’s difficult for the Coalition to separate feeding and development. Our goal to alleviate hunger, especially childhood hunger requires a combination of feeding, empowering, and advocating.”

Rescued Food Helps Feed Muscatine’s Hungry (1/15/2015)

For a variety of reasons, grocery stores, restaurants, farmers markets and gardens often find themselves with a surplus of healthy food that they are unable to sell. Food rescue initiatives channel this extra food to meal sites and food pantries, thereby reducing waste and helping feed hungry people.

A new collaboration in Muscatine rescues a weekly average of 4,000 pounds of food, valued at $96,000, without any new source funding. Food is collected from Hy-Vee, Hy-Vee Mainstreet, Fareway and Pizza Ranch. It goes to the Muscatine Community Food Pantry, Pearl City Outreach and the Salvation Army.

Successful food rescue initiatives must master the logistics of communication (connecting groups with surplus food to groups needing food) and transportation (moving the food).

The Muscatine Blue Zones Food Policy Group, which launched the food rescue initiative in April 2014, manages the logistics of communication between organizations. Transportation is accomplished through the dedication of fourteen volunteers, supported by the Volunteer Center at the United Way of Muscatine.

More information about national food rescue best practices is available through the Food Waste Reduction Alliance.

Table to Table, a 30-year-old food rescue program in Iowa City is a go-to source for Iowa best practices. Table to Table provided the model for the food rescue initiative in Muscatine and is also advising an effort by Eat Greater Des Moines to improve the coordination of food rescue efforts in central Iowa through the use of the “Food Cowboy” mobile app.

For more information on Table to Table, please contact Mr. Bob Andrlik at bob@table2table.org or 319-337-3400. For more information about Eat Greater Des Moines, please contact Ms. Aubrey Alvarez at aalvarez@dmreligious.org or 515-491-1891.
Iowa CROP Walks Raise over $400,000 to Combat World Hunger in 2014
(12/18/2014)

Church World Service CROP Hunger Walks provide Iowans in nearly 80 cities and towns with the opportunity to walk to raise awareness and funds to fight hunger in their communities and around the world. In August and September, we wrote about how CROP Hunger Walks can become community-wide celebrations of Iowa’s agricultural heritage and service ethic.

Church World Service Field Director, Jordan Bles provides an update on this year’s walks:

From Dubuque to Sioux City, from Ames to Burlington, in nearly 80 communities overall, Iowans across the state walked to support the work of Church World Service in the United States and around the world, and to support local agencies working to end hunger in their communities. More than $400,000 was raised by more than 1500 walkers statewide. The communities of Dubuque, Wayland, Ames, Iowa City, Cedar Rapids, the Quad Cities, Muscatine, and Sioux City all raised more than $20,000! Thanks, Iowa, for another year of partnership working to end hunger and poverty locally and globally!

For more information about CROP Hunger Walks, contact Mr. Jordan Bles at 410-596-2664 or jbles@cwsglobal.org.

Over 200 Iowans Discuss “Women Doing Democracy” (12/18/2014)

The 2014 Women Food and Agriculture Network Conference on November 14 and 15 in Fairfield brought together over 200 people around the topic of “Women Doing Democracy: Building Grassroots Coalitions to Grow Healthy Food and Farming in Your Community”.

The keynote address was delivered by Karen Washington, a community activist, gardener and founder of Black Urban Growers delivered the keynote address. Black Urban Growers (BUGS) builds networks and community support for growers in both urban and rural settings, and nurtures collective black leadership on food and farm issues.

Ms. Washington lives and works in South Bronx, in one of the poorest congressional districts in the United States. Based on her experiences as an organizer working to improve access to healthy food in poor neighborhoods and among people of color, she recommended that Iowans consider to following:

- Explore the synergies between aging and youth populations. Elders often have knowledge of gardening, cooking, and the “home-economics” skills that much of society has forgotten. Young people often bring the most current computer and social media skills to a partnership.
- When doing outreach, find the community leaders who are already working in an area and partner with – and listen to – them.
- The best way to get people together is to share a meal. Invitations should be delivered in person or over the phone. Be mindful of challenges of transportation, childcare, work-schedules, and translation.

For more information about the Women Food and Agriculture Network, contact Ms. Bridget Holcomb at 515-460-2477 or bridget@wfan.org. The proceedings of the 2014 WFAN Conference are available on their website.
Successful Discussion Series Provides Lessons for Organizing Community Conversations (12/9/2014)

This fall, the Food Bank of Iowa held a “Food for Thought” discussion series in five communities in North-Central Iowa. The Food for Thought discussions brought together over 100 people in Storm Lake, Spencer, Sheldon, Estherville, and Humboldt. Participants shared and learned about food insecurity, and discussed types of food assistance programs and ways the Food Bank of Iowa can help. The discussions led to new partnerships to combat hunger in North-Central Iowa, including with: 4 community food pantries, 9 BackPack Program partners, 4 School Pantry partners, and a new Mobile Food Pantry site.

Christina Zink, Communications Manager at the Food Bank of Iowa, offers the following reflections on how they organized community discussions in North-Central Iowa:

When planning the series, we took a hard look at:
- Counties in our service area that have relatively high food insecurity rates
- Counties in our service area where we don’t have many partner agencies
- Distance, we wanted as many individuals as possible to attend so we chose towns that are easily accessible
- We also looked at availability of space to hold the meetings

In order to have a variety of individuals and groups represented, Food for Thought was open to the public. We did targeted invites as well to:
- County and local government
- Businesses and chambers
- Churches, community centers, senior centers
- Schools
- Media
- Non-partner organizations that we wanted to learn more from and start up conversations
- Our current partner agencies that attended were able to talk about our partnership and ways in which the Food Bank of Iowa can help

We were so pleased, not only with turnout, but the conversation between attendees and the Food Bank of Iowa. There are three takeaways from this event:

1. Community members are working very hard to solve food insecurity in their local communities. While we looked at locations with few food bank partner agencies, there are many existing food assistance programs doing great work. Local community partners from media outlets to churches to businesses are working together to provide volunteer, financial and awareness support. The Food Bank of Iowa sees its role as providing support to their current initiatives and helping to expand their services.

2. There is a need. Despite the incredible efforts going on in the community, there remains a significant gap in serving food insecure individuals. As we continue to converse and partner, there are many counties that have emergency food providers that require families to drive over 30 miles to receive help.

There are areas that have a high child hunger need and no program to help provide food assistance over the weekend. How can we get more partner agencies in these areas? Part of the Food Bank of Iowa’s mission is to educate and partner, we hope as we continue sharing and learning about the need, communities and leaders will come together to help solve hunger issues.

3. Our third takeaway is relationships. It is through relationships that we build trust and understanding. Being able to have face-to-face interaction and foster personal relationships with the communities in our service area can really drive a shared vision, open communication and accountability.
Food Banks at the Center of Hunger Efforts (11/20/2014)

Backbone organizations help communities tackle complicated problems by bringing people together and helping new groups plug-in and become part of the solution. When it comes to hunger in Iowa, Food Banks are well-placed to serve as backbone organizations. While Food Banks can’t solve hunger alone, their networks of partner-organizations, volunteers, advocates and resources across the areas they serve put them in a position to serve as conveners and matchmakers among hunger initiatives in their regions.

The Northeast Iowa Food Bank leverages its status as a backbone organization through a constant focus on community outreach, being present at a large number and variety of community events, and aggressively publicizing their activities and those of their partner organizations.

Barb Prather, Executive Director of the Northeast Iowa Food Bank, provides more details:

“A look at the Northeast Iowa Food Bank....

I was asked recently, how the Northeast Iowa Food Bank became the center point for hunger in northeast Iowa, so I paused to reflect on where we have come from over the past 30 plus years of existence.

The Food Bank began, as a food pantry, in 1981. Businesses were downsizing and closing in Black Hawk County and many people were in need. At the same time, nationally Second Harvest—now called Feeding America, began. Their purpose was to rescue food from manufacturers that was going in the dump and get it to people who need it.

Food Banks serve organizations, food pantries serve people. So in the beginning, locally, the Food Bank had a pantry that served Black Hawk County and was the first point of contact for people who needed food in our community. It then began serving nonprofit organizations in 16 counties.

The key to the Food Bank’s success from the start has been community collaboration. From the beginning we partnered with the community to pick up food donations and distribute it to people in need. When we started each of our programs, first the food pantry and then the food bank, we needed both food donors and community organizations. We also needed the community to support us with additional food, funding and volunteers.

Since 2000, we have really made great strides in combating hunger and building community partnerships. Kids Café was a partnership started with ConAgra and the Boys and Girls Club; the BackPack Program started as a partnership with the schools, United Way, John Deere and community groups; the Elderly Nutrition Program started as a partnership with Area Agencies on Aging; Mobile Pantries partner with community groups and this summer our new Community Garden was a partnership with UNI. These, however, are the big picture view of the collaboration and partnerships we have started and continued.

Through the years these have been sustained because of the work of many, whether it is a study or in the action we take to get the message across. Conducting Hunger Studies, advocating for a strong nutrition title in the Farm Bill and sharing the Feeding America and USDA studies are tools used to raise awareness. We use these when we talk about the Food Bank and do presentations, give tours of the Food Bank, prove volunteer opportunities, and network with businesses, churches and the community.
Being a resource on hunger issues in the community has helped us to increase awareness and be a strong voice for the people we serve. The Food Bank can’t do what we do alone, it takes all of us. We have strived to not only provide food but to be a resource to educate the community that hunger does exist.

As a result of this work, when it comes to hunger related issues and research, the community calls the Food Bank. When we have a volunteer need, the community answers our call. Giving the community facts, information and ways to help make a difference on how the community will respond. We have spent a lot of time letting the community know what we do and marketing our mission and the resources we have to assist in reducing food insecurity in northeast Iowa. The community wants to help and we have provided them a venue for helping. As a result, more resources are gathered so we can provide more programs and make a difference.

The Northeast Iowa Food Bank continues to provide the best service we can to the community and those in need. We are only limited by the resources we are given. From starting as a food pantry providing a few thousand pounds of food to becoming a hunger relief organization that provides food to many and hunger education to the community, we continue to strive to live out our mission. We want to provide as much information as we can to the community and continue to be the resource on the hunger issue in northeast Iowa. In doing so, those who need food and who need assistance will have it because we were able to be a resource for them."

Iowa President, Humanitarian Hero Honored in West Branch (11/3/2014)

Saturday, October 25, was the 50th anniversary of President Herbert Hoover’s state funeral in his boyhood home of West Branch, Iowa. Hoover is the only Iowa-born United States President, and the first to be born west of the Mississippi River. He is also one of Iowa’s— and the world’s— greatest humanitarian heroes, whose famine-relief initiatives during World War One and again following World War Two are credited with saving up to 1.4 billion lives.

As the leader of the Commission for the Relief of Belgium during World War One, Hoover spearheaded an unprecedented initiative to purchase and deliver food to over nine million Belgian men, women, and children who were trapped between the occupying German army and a British naval blockade. Hoover secured diplomatic privileges for the Commission and negotiated with both sides of the conflict to ensure that food was safely delivered to starving civilians. His fundraising efforts were such that the Commission was left with surplus funds after the armistice, which were used to rebuild schools and establish a Belgian-American cultural exchange program. Following World War Two Hoover again sprang into action, conducting an assessment of global hunger that resulted in further American leadership to avert famine.

Remembrance ceremonies on October 25th included a grave-site reading of the eulogy delivered at his state funeral 50 years ago and remarks by Iowan dignitaries, including World Food Prize President Ambassador Kenneth Quinn. Perhaps the greatest tribute paid to Hoover that day was a 3½ hour meal-packaging event in the high school gymnasium, where over 250 volunteers packaged 84,024 meals for distribution to hungry families in Iowa and abroad. Organized on a three-month timeline by the West Branch Lions Club in partnership with Outreach, Inc and local businesses, the activity was described as “something simple that everybody can do”.

West Branch Lion’s Club organizer Mike Quinlan, who climbed a tree as a boy to watch the original state funeral, captured the spirit of the community, saying: “After serving our country in the armed forces, serving the hungry and our community is the best thing we can do to honor the legacy of President Hoover”.

These same Iowa-values once led President Herbert Hoover to declare: “For thousands of years, the question ‘am I my brother’s keeper?’ has echoed in the conscience of mankind. The American people were the first in history to accept that obligation as a nation.”

Food for Thought Meetings Tackle Food Insecurity in North-Central Iowa (9/30/2014)

A Food for Thought meeting in Storm Lake on September 25th brought together over 50 participants to discuss food insecurity in Buena Vista, Sac and Calhoun counties. Organized by the Food Bank of Iowa, the dialogue included perspectives from government officials, university staff, students, church leaders, school administrators, and area food pantries. Discussion topics included healthy eating, the HUSH and BackPack programs of the Food Bank of Iowa, volunteer recruitment and retention, food rescue and transportation for people to gain access to healthy food.

Conclusions included:

- A major constraint to area food assistance programs is the difficulty in recruiting and retaining regular volunteers. Discussion participants suggested more targeted outreach to churches, youth groups & schools.
- Food rescue efforts may need to be expanded. These efforts currently include a partnership between Community Basket Ida, The Bridge, Pizza Hut, and Sodexho. Meat food rescue operations such as Food for Life at a locker in Paullina are seen as particularly valuable.
- The Good Samaritan Act protects restaurants and others who donate food in good faith from liability.
- The Farm to Food Donation Tax Credit supports farmers who donate food to food banks and pantries.

Donations from Ag Youth Benefit Iowa Food Pantries (9/30/2014)

At the recent Farm Progress Show in Boone, Iowa, Monsanto partnered with Farm Progress and the Howard G. Buffett Foundation to sponsor the sixth annual America’s Farmers Food Drive. The drive collected 6,847 pounds of food for food pantries in the Boone area.

FFA chapters and 4-H clubs from across the state were asked to join the cause, and 52 responded to the challenge. FFA and 4-H members who brought food received free entry to the show, and the FFA chapters and 4-H clubs who brought the most food, in pounds, were awarded $250 each.

The ag youth organizations with the most food donations who will receive a monetary donation are the Garner Hayfield FFA Chapter, the Newton FFA Chapter, the Humboldt FFA Chapter, and the Happy Homebodies 4-H Club.

For every pound of food collected at the America’s Farmers Food Drive, Monsanto committed to matching a $1 donation, up to $10,000, to the United Way of Story County. Despite the fact that the food drive collected less than 10,000 pounds of food, due to rainy weather and a shortened show, Monsanto donated the full $10,000. The Howard G. Buffett Foundation also committed to a matching donation of $6,847 to Feeding America.
Meal Packaging takes Cresco Festival to New Heights (9/30/2014)

The 2014 Norman Borlaug Heritage Festival in Cresco, Iowa hit a high note this year with the addition of a meal-packaging session to the weekend’s activities.

This annual festival is organized by the Cresco Chamber of Commerce and the Norman Borlaug Heritage Foundation, and combines a small-town, Iowa harvest fest with a celebration of the life and legacy of Cresco-area native Norman Borlaug. As part of the festival this year, over 50,000 meals were packaged for hungry people in Northeast Iowa and overseas.

Organizers describe the addition of meal packaging to the festival as a “crescendo”, which built community spirit and helped area residents to become valued participants in the fight to end hunger.

As the kick-off to the Norman Borlaug Heritage Festival, over 300 fifth-grade students from eight area schools gathered on the Borlaug Family Farm for “Inspire Day” to learn about hunger, agriculture, and Norman Borlaug’s life and work. During Inspire Day, students packaged 6264 meals for the hungry from the Borlaug barn. On the last day of the festival, community members gathered at Cresco High School to package the remaining 43,746 meals. People in the community are eager to package again next year and planning for a repeat performance has already begun.

The Cresco CROP Hunger Walk was also held in conjunction with the festival. Walkers raised $5239 to fight hunger internationally through Church World Service’s programs and locally by supporting the local food pantry at Community Action. This year, the Cresco CROP Hunger Walk was organized in partnership with the Prairie Springs Recreational Trail 5K, which helped raise awareness and increase participation in both activities. Elderly and others preferring not to walk/run raised funds and participated in the event through a “CROP Hunger Rock” by sitting in rocking chairs near the route for the duration of the walk.

Based on their experiences adding meal-packaging to the Norman Borlaug Heritage Festival, organizers suggest that other communities:

- Reach out to Meals from the Heartland and Outreach, Inc., two organizations that specialize in helping organizations and communities package meals for the hungry. Meals from the Heartland and Outreach, Inc. have a wealth of information about how much money to raise to cover the cost of food, the size and type of venues needed for a packaging event, and walk event organizers through every step of the process.
- Involve schools, churches, and clubs in packaging and fundraising activities. Groups in Cresco raised $50,000 to help cover the cost of the meals by encouraging their members to donate money and register for a packaging shift during the festival.
- Make sure people know that some of the meals stay to help local families who are hungry. By keeping half of the meals in Northeast Iowa, organizers at the festival helped people feel that their efforts were more local and tangible. Community members will also know that their efforts are successful when they start seeing the meals they packaged on the shelves of their local pantries.
- If possible, secure a matching donation from an area business or foundation. The Lynch Family Foundation agreed to match the $50,000 raised by Cresco community members, which made fundraising easier and doubled the amount of meals that could be packaged during the festival.
Community Comes Together on Sweet Corn Project (9/12/2014)

A community-wide effort to provide families with access to fresh sweet corn has emerged in the town of Ossian providing clients of the Greater Area Pantry with 70 bags of donated sweet corn every week.

The effort began as a spontaneous act of generosity by Doug and Mary Lou Egeland, who decided to donate sweet corn from two-and-a-half acres of their land. When Doug ordered the sweet corn seed from Pat Tekippe at Farmers Union Coop, the coop and DuPont Pioneer agreed to donate the seed. Doug’s neighbor, Al Schmidt donated the fertilizer.

Many community groups have volunteered labor to pick the sweet corn, including groups from Boy Scouts, Zion Lutheran Church, Calmar Lutheran Church, First Lutheran Church in Decorah and the Calmar & Ossian Co 4-H club. South Winneshiek Elementary school now plans to create an educational day at the sweet corn field for its students.

Extra sweet corn beyond what Greater Area Pantry clients need is taken to market, with the proceeds donated to support the work of the pantry.

Ms. Joanne Roney with the Greater Area Pantry observes that this project was only possible due to the broad support among the community. Picking 800-850 ears of corn each week for the pantry is a source of community pride, and plans are underway to do it again.

Hunger Action Month is Underway (9/12/2014)

The month of September is Hunger Action Month, and Iowans are responding with a number of exciting initiatives, among them:

- Panera Bread of Iowa hosted a Hunger Action Day Fundraiser on September 4th, donating 10% of customer purchases to local Iowa Food Banks.
- Hy-Vee stores kicked off the 12th Annual Hy-Vee Colossal Cookie Sale on September 7th. Running through September 22nd, Hy-Vee will donate a penny to the DMARC Food Pantry Network for every cookie purchased at stores in Central Iowa. This money adds up: since the Cookie Sale began in 2003, Hy-Vee stores have sold over 8.5 million cookies and have donated more than $85,000 in food products to DMARC’s network of neighborhood pantries in greater Des Moines.
- The Great American Milk Drive is coming to the Downtown Des Moines Farmers Market on September 27th to raise awareness and support for Iowa’s food banks and food pantries. In the five months since the Great American Milk Drive began, more than 4200 gallons of milk have been donated.
- The Food Bank of Iowa is launching a community dialogue series focusing on hunger in North-Central Iowa. At each dialogue, the Food Bank of Iowa and their current local partners, community leaders and general public will come together to spread awareness about food insecurity to community leaders and members who may be in a position to help reduce it. Goals include fact-finding and fostering networking between relevant organizations, matching local needs to Food Bank programming and determining whether new Food Bank programs are needed to match local needs. Dialogues are currently scheduled in Buena Vista, Spencer and Estherville.
- The Food Bank of Iowa has released a downloadable calendar with additional ideas for celebrating Hunger Action Month.
The Land O'Lakes Foundation and the Roland-Story FFA chapter are partnering to address food insecurity in Story City through community gardening. For FFA students, the partnership provides an excellent opportunity for service learning and to engage with more members of their community.

Under the guidance of Advisor Brad Taylor, twenty-two FFA students manage 1.5 acres of sweet corn and 4,000 square feet of potatoes, peppers, tomatoes, onions, kale, beans and peas. So far this year, over 1500 pounds of fresh produce were donated to Loaves and Fishes, the local food pantry.

The garden would not have been possible without the support of many corporate and community partners. The Land O'Lakes Foundation provided $1,200 and a “tool-kit” of gardening information to help the FFA chapter launch the garden. The local Land O'Lakes WinField Answer Plot donated the land for the garden, and WinField employees are available to provide technical support when needed.

Additional partners include:

- Key Co-Op, which provides fertilizers and chemicals if needed;
- Story City, which delivers water to the garden with their tanker truck;
- The Story City Herald, a local newspaper that provides publicity, and;
- Several adults from the community who help with harvesting.

The Land O'Lakes Foundation currently supports twenty-one FFA chapters in the Midwest to manage gardens near Winfield Answer Plots, including Iowa FFA chapters in Creston, Gilbert, and Roland-Story. More information about the program is available on the Land O'Lakes website.

Based on their experience, Roland-Story FFA Advisor Brad Taylor has the following advice:

For FFA Chapters looking to start a project:

- FFA Chapters should contact a WinField representative about becoming involved with their project.
- After contact is made with WinField, the chapter should approach their local food pantry to find out whether they will support the effort and when is the best time to deliver or hand out produce.
- Start small and be sure to have enough workers to manage the garden.
- Till to control weeds early. Roland-Story FFA tilled the garden every day for the first month to eliminate weed problems (it took about 10 minutes to till the entire garden).
- When planting, space rows far enough apart to make it easier to control weeds.
- Publicize the activities using local newspapers and social media.

For Food Pantries looking to start a project:

- Talk to the local FFA chapter to see if there is a mutual interest. FFA chapters will need to know approximately how many families the pantry serves every week.
- Have ideas about what produce your clients prefer, and recognize that some produce should be distributed with recipes so that families will know how to prepare it.
Making Action Against Hunger a Community Celebration (8/13/2014)

One way to bring people from many different perspectives and faith traditions together to raise money and fight hunger is to make a community celebration out of it. This is the approach taken for 37 years by the Sioux City CROP Hunger Walk; the second longest running of over 80 CROP Hunger Walks across Iowa.

Last year, the Sioux City CROP Hunger Walk brought together 365 walkers and raised over $36,400 to combat hunger. Of the money raised, 25% goes to relieve local hunger through programs at the Community Action Agency of Siouxland and Interfaith Resources. The remainder is used to alleviate global hunger through the programs of Church World Service.

The Sioux City CROP Hunger Walk is organized by a small taskforce that meets during the months of August through October. A network of volunteer recruiters drums up support and involvement at 35 churches and schools in September and October. The walk itself takes place every year on a Sunday afternoon in October; complete with balloons and family-friendly activities for walkers of all ages. This year’s walk will be on October 19th.

Organizers attribute the longevity and success of the Sioux City CROP Hunger Walk to:

- Participants are able to raise money to “fight hunger around the block and around the globe”, through an easy, concrete action that people can take together with their friends.
- The community-wide feeling of the CROP Hunger Walk that they cultivate by involving a large number of organizations every year; including 30 churches of many denominations and several high school clubs.
- Efforts over the past 30 years to make the CROP Hunger Walk a family tradition by encouraging children to come in strollers or wagons, providing fun activities and balloons to walkers of all ages, and encouraging church confirmation classes and high school student clubs to invite their families to walk with them.
- Thanking participants and recruiters for their efforts. Recruiters are especially important for keeping churches, student clubs, and other groups engaged in the CROP Hunger Walk over the years, and the organizing committee works hard to recognize the dedication of their recruiters.

For more information about the Sioux City CROP Hunger Walk, please contact Ms. Rolene Beauvais at trb5052@cableone.net or 712-574-9607. For more information about other CROP Hunger Walks in Iowa, please contact Mr. Jordan Bles at jbles@cwsglobal.org or 515-274-2224.
Teaming Up to Fight Hunger this Harvest Season (8/13/2014)

Governor Terry E. Branstad proclaimed September as Hunger Action Month today at the Iowa State Fair. Governor Branstad and Lieutenant Governor Reynolds were joined by statewide partners of the Iowa Food Bank Association. The Iowa Soybean Association launched their Invest an Acre - Grain Gifting Program, Midwest Dairy spoke on the Great American Milk Drive, and the Deb and Jeff Hansen Foundation provided information on the Backpack Coupon Program.

In addition to these ongoing programs, Iowans have a special opportunity to help feed hungry people at the Farm Progress Show in Boone on August 26-28, and the 7th Annual Hunger Fight in Des Moines on August 27-30.

The Farm Progress Show, along with Monsanto and the Howard G. Buffett Foundation (HGBF), is teaming up to feed Iowa’s hungry with the America’s Farmers Food Drive. Monsanto will match every pound of food donated (up to $10,000) with a one dollar donation to the United Way of Story County. The Howard G. Buffett Foundation will donate one dollar for every pound of food collected (up to $10,000) to Feeding America. The top three FFA chapters and 4-H clubs in pounds of food donated will receive a $250 donation from Monsanto. For more information about fighting hunger at the Farm Progress Show, email Mr. Rod Swoboda at rswoboda@farmprogress.com.

The 7th Annual Iowa Hunger Fight prides itself on being the largest hunger-fighting event in the country. Their goal is to package 5 million meals with the assistance of 15,000 volunteers. For more information or to volunteer, visit the Meals from the Heartland website or email Mr. Joel Odell at joel.odell@mealsfromtheheartland.org.
Web Videos and Nutrition Classes Help Families Eat Healthy on a Budget (7/31/2014)

A new video released by Iowa State University Extension & Outreach demonstrates that it is possible for families to eat healthy on a budget. In the video, mothers Andrea and Shelly explain how a series of eight nutrition classes provided them with ideas and concrete support in their efforts to improve their families’ diets without breaking the bank. In 2013, ISU Extension & Outreach helped more than 80% of the participants in these classes improve their nutrition and make their food budgets go farther through the EFNEP and SNAP-Ed programs.

In addition to the in-person classes, ISU Extension & Outreach provides nutrition education through the Spend Smart, Eat Smart website, which includes a section of educational videos demonstrating shopping tips, food preparation, food safety and storage practices, and easy recipes for nutritious and budget-friendly meals.

ISU Extension relies on community partners to refer families to the classes and to share the web videos with people in their networks. ISU is interested in ideas for additional web-content and are eager to work more closely with food banks and food pantries in Iowa.

Community partners include service providers such as food pantries and WIC clinics, as well as others who are interested in healthier families in their communities. For example, Andrea was recruited through the WIC program and Shelly joined after hearing about the program through her apartment complex.

An especially innovative partnership involved an agency in Linn County which partnered with Extension to help their clients to eat better and get more exercise. Children receiving care at the office wanted to play soccer, but the fees to join soccer leagues were a barrier for their families. The agency arranged to cover league fees for children whose guardians joined the nutrition education program. Combining nutrition education classes for parents with soccer for kids provided the right mix of healthy eating and physical activity, helping these families become healthier.

For more information, or to suggest ideas for web-content or partnerships, please contact Christine Hradek at hradek@iastate.edu or 515-294-3554.

Iowa Family Featured in National Geographic (7/31/2014)

As part of their “Food Features” series, the latest edition of National Geographic magazine features the story of an Iowa family who is working to escape from hunger in Osage in Mitchell County. Read their story for insight into the root causes of hunger in Iowa and the United States. The Northeast Iowa Food Bank is working to alleviate hunger in 16 counties, including Mitchell County. Their Executive Director, Barbara Prather weighs in on the coverage:

“Hunger affects people no matter where you live. In rural communities it is often harder to get to grocery stores because they aren’t in every town. Families on limited incomes sometimes have to travel far to get food, spending more resources on gas. We appreciate National Geographic highlighting hunger in Iowa.”

For more information on the work of the Northeast Iowa Food Bank, please contact Barbara Prather at bprather@feedingamerica.org or 319-235-0507.
Girl Scouts Produce Cookbooks for Eating Healthy on a Budget (7/7/2014)

In addition to common challenges of time and money, it is important for kids to be involved when their families decide to eat more healthily. Realizing that some of the people being helped at area food pantries are kids their own age, Girl Scouts in Story County are tackling these challenges with a new cookbook of healthy meals that are low-cost, simple enough for kids to help with preparation, and tasty so that kids want to eat them.

The Girl Scouts toured three food pantries in their community to get an idea of what foods were available. They wanted to create a cookbook that would utilize primarily those ingredients or other items that could be purchased inexpensively at local grocery stores.

The Scouts also toured 2 grocery stores, and talked to dietitians and Iowa State Extension for additional information. They wanted simple, nutritious and easy recipes that anyone could make and would appeal to kids of all ages.

Originally the girls sold cookbooks directly to offset the printing costs. More recently the United Way of Story County partnered with the Girl Scout Troops to apply for a grant to print 500 copies of the cookbook. For more information, or to purchase copies of the cookbook, contact the girl scouts at gstroops28and150@gmail.com.

Travelling Photography Display Shows Faces of Hunger in Iowa (7/7/2014)

The Feed the Need photography display features real-life stories and faces of Iowans who struggle with hunger each day. Struggling to put food on the table is something most people don’t talk about. Indeed, the need for community conversations about hunger came up as a priority at Hunger Thought Leader Meetings in Cedar Rapids, Waterloo, Sioux City, and Des Moines.

By bringing to life this wide array of stories, the Iowa Food Bank Association hopes to remind people about this critical issue in Iowa communities and encourage everyone to take action and help, whether by volunteering, donating or planting extra crops.

The exhibit, which includes the work of award-winning local photographer Molly Rogalla of Indianola, debuted at the Iowa State Capitol in April as part of the Iowa Food Bank Association’s hunger awareness campaign. It is now travelling across Iowa through partnerships with local organizations.

Exhibitions are currently scheduled in Des Moines, Davenport, Ames, Waterloo, Waukee, Marshalltown and Cedar Rapids. To find out more information or to schedule an exhibition in your community, contact Michelle Winkey at 319-234-0776 or mwinkey@iowafba.org.

2014 World Food Prize Laureate Announced (6/18/2014)

On June 18, 2014, Dr. Sanjaya Rajaram was named the 2014 World Food Prize laureate for his development of 480 varieties of wheat, bred to offer higher yields, resistance to catastrophic rust disease, and that thrive in a wide array of climates. Dr. Rajaram succeeded Dr. Norman Borlaug in leading CIMMYT’s wheat breeding program. His wheat varieties are grown by small- and large- scale farmers in 51 countries on six continents. Dr. Rajaram will be honored in Des Moines on October 16, 2014.
Support Veteran-Farmers through “Homegrown By Heroes” (6/18/2014)

Americans have a new opportunity to support veteran-farmers by purchasing food with the “Homegrown By Heroes” logo. Homegrown By Heroes agricultural products represent the labors of hardworking veterans that have now chosen to become farmers to feed their communities and the nation. So far, the “Homegrown By Heroes” logo is used by more than 60 farmers who have served in the United States Military. Veterans, Guard members, Reservists, and active duty personnel are eligible for the label and can apply at hgbh.org.

Homegrown By Heroes is a national initiative, which is promoted in the state of Iowa by the Farmer Veteran Coalition of Iowa. Since launching in 2013, the Farmer Veteran Coalition of Iowa has grown rapidly to include more than 150 farming veterans. In their first year of work, they convened a state-wide Iowa Farmer Veteran Conference and held four workshops around the state that covered topics such as land access, loan programs, business planning, and transitioning from the military to agriculture. They are hosting a Midwest Farmer Veteran Conference at Drake University on July 25-26. The conference will include a farm tour, educational workshops and a great deal of peer-to-peer networking.

Organizers attribute the rapid growth of the Iowa Farmer Veteran Coalition to their emphasis on developing a robust Board of Directors, which includes representatives from organizations serving both farmers and veterans. Their early focus on board development has been crucial in ensuring that their programs are driven by the needs of farming veterans, and to their ability to make referrals to provide support for farming veterans.

Seven Years of Food Pantry Collaboration Brings in Donations (6/18/2014)

The Story County Food Pantry Collaboration engages representatives from 16 area food pantries in quarterly meetings to educate staff and volunteers, coordinate efforts, and share best practices. The collaboration began in the fall of 2007, when several food pantries requested the United Way of Story County to provide a forum for discussion.

Discussion topics have included ideas for holiday food distribution, food storage, insurance, and use of the Food Bank of Iowa. Food pantries have also shared information about other programs in Story County, including sourcing fresh produce through Plant A Row for the Hungry; providing clients with nutrition education through Spend Smart, Eat Smart and a collaboration with area Girl Scouts; and supporting clients to buy discounted food using SHARE.

The Food Pantry Collaboration also allows the community to take advantage of additional opportunities to attract donations. In 2010, they launched a partnership with Monsanto to collect donations at the semi-annual Farm Progress Show. In 2012, over 10,000 pounds of food was collected through the Farm Progress Show, 4-H Clubs, and Future Farmers of America chapters which brought in a $10,000 match from Monsanto. When The Salvation Army opened a service corps and food pantry in 2012, Feed The Children asked if they would coordinate a distribution site that would provide 400 boxes of food and 400 boxes of personal items to individuals and families in need. The Food Pantry Collaboration enabled area food pantries to successfully organize the effort in less than 6-weeks.

For more information on the Story County Food Pantry Collaboration, contact Shannon Bardole at 515-268-5142 or sbardole@uwstory.org or Jean Kresse at jkresse@uwstory.org.
New Maps Help Locate Summer Feeding Sites (5/30/2014)

The Summer Food Service Program provides nutritious meals and snacks to children in low-income areas during the summer months.

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) recently unveiled two free online map services to help communities and partner organizations locate nearby feeding sites and identify gaps in program coverage. The Capacity Builder map shows the locations of school districts and 2013 feeding sites, and 2014 feeding sites will be added to the map over the summer. The Area Eligibility map shows low-income census tracts, which are priority locations for feeding sites. The USDA has released a webinar with more information on these maps, and maintains a resource site at www.summerfood.usda.gov.

Iowa organizations partner with the Iowa Department of Education to host feeding sites in their communities. For more information on the program in Iowa, contact Stephanie Dross at stephanie.dross@iowa.gov or 515-281-4760.

Using Fundraisers for Community Education (5/12/2014)

In addition to helping cover costs, fundraising events provide important opportunities for community education and engagement. The key is to design the fundraiser so that area businesses and civic organizations can participate in a variety of ways beyond the traditional role of the principal event sponsor.

This is the strategy that the Northeast Iowa Food Bank takes with its bi-annual Empty Bowls Fundraiser.

The core concept behind an “Empty Bowls” fundraising event is serving guests a simple meal of soup and bread in a locally crafted bowl, which guests are invited to take home with them as a reminder of hunger in the world. This concept lends itself to community engagement through opportunities for businesses and organizations to provide volunteers, bowls, soups, and a venue.

The recent Empty Bowls event in Waterloo included bowls donated by local artists, schools, a local decorate-it-yourself ceramics business, local woodworkers groups, and area art centers. Soups were prepared and donated by local chefs, including a high school culinary class. The partnerships with schools and woodworkers groups engaged students and craftspeople who might not otherwise participate in a fundraising meal. The partnership with the ceramics business brought in people who enjoyed decorating bowls but would not want to take their work home with them. These new customers learned about both the ceramics business and the work of the Northeast Iowa Food Bank.

The venue was provided by the United Auto Workers, who was a principal sponsor alongside Networking Solutions, Aspro, and the Community Services Committee. The Northeast Iowa Food Bank created further opportunities for corporate sponsorship and community involvement by holding a live and silent auction of donated items during their Empty Bowls event.

By intentionally creating opportunities for area businesses and civic groups to participate in their Empty Bowls fundraiser, the Northeast Iowa Food Bank was able to reach far more people than the 400 who purchased tickets to the event itself.

For more information about the Empty Bowls concept, visit www.emptybowls.net. For more information about the Empty Bowls event hosted by the Northeast Iowa Food Bank, email Niki Litzel at nlitzel@feedingamerica.org.
In 2011 and 2012, twelve Iowa farmers volunteered to travel to Africa to help 180 women farmers in Uganda escape the cycle of poverty. While overseas, the Iowa farmers visited groups of Ugandan farmers and provided training on post-harvest handling of maize (corn), increasing soybean production through simple changes such as planting in rows, seed germination testing, improving farm record-keeping, and developing collective marketing strategies for increased profitability.

These trips were part of the “Bridging the Gap” partnership between Iowa State University Extension and Outreach, the Center for Sustainable Rural Livelihoods and VEDCO, a local Ugandan organization; and were funded by the USAID Farmer-to-Farmer grant program.

Ugandan farmers benefitted from the program by learning improved farming practices, teaching these practices to others in their communities, and by increasingly seeing themselves as successful businesswomen. The program benefitted Iowan farmers as well, primarily by providing them with the opportunity to meet and be of service to Ugandan farmers, but also by expanding their vision of farming in a globalized world. Over 95% of the Ugandan farmers who were surveyed said that the “Bridging the Gap” program was a significant benefit to their families. Read more about the impacts of the program here.

“As a return volunteer for the program, I saw amazing things happening. The farmers wanted to learn from their American friends. The improved varieties are helping them successfully grow soybeans. The children are thriving with a high protein nutritional source. The farmers are being creative and resourceful by direct marketing and using value-added sales of soybean products, like party cakes, baby formula, porridge mix, and fresh roasted as a snack.” - Lori Lang, Farmer-to-Farmer Volunteer

While the “Bridging the Gap” program has ended, Iowa farmers are still needed to volunteer their time and expertise with smallholder farmers around the world. A new, five-year partnership between Catholic Relief Services and Foods Resource Bank is currently searching for Iowa farmers and others with agricultural expertise to share their skills with farmers in Kenya, Uganda, Ethiopia and Tanzania.

To submit your application please visit the CRS Farmer to Farmer website. High Schools as Partners in Ending Hunger: Part Two (4/11/2014)

FFA students at Sumner-Fredericksburg High School worked with their advisor and school administration to organize an Oxfam Hunger Banquet and fundraiser involving their entire school. The Oxfam Hunger Banquet is a free curriculum that helps participants understand the injustice and causes of world hunger through an interactive meal at which some are fed well and others eat very little.

The student organizers used the school-wide hunger banquet as an activity to introduce the issue of hunger to their entire school and to kick off a week of fundraising, where students voted with their donations on which teachers would participate in a hands-free pie eating contest in front of the student body.

Students at Sumner-Fredericksburg raised $250, which was donated to Oxfam America’s global hunger relief efforts and to the local Fayette County Food Shelf, which is recovering from a fire. The community was supportive, and funds to cover the cost of food at the Hunger Banquet were donated by the first person the students approached.

At Emmetsburg High School, a sophomore biology teacher has modified free curriculum published by the World Food Prize to introduce all sophomore students to the human face of global hunger through a poster project and canned food drive. Sophomore biology students research a country and a challenge that contributes to hunger in that country, come up with their own solutions, and then present their ideas on a poster through short written lists and pictures. Students are encouraged to bring in non-perishable food items as part of the project, which are donated to the local food pantry in the name of the Emmetsburg High School Sophomore class. The posters are hung in the school for public viewing to further raise awareness of hunger. After completing their posters, students have the option to write a paper and attend the World Food Prize Iowa Youth Institute at Iowa State University.

Recommendations for encouraging high school students’ interest in hunger and supporting them as they take action include:

1) Ensure that projects provide an appropriate mix of challenge and support to meet a variety of students where they are at. Providing options for building on a shared experience is one way of doing this.

   - At Emmetsburg, the poster assignment allowed students to focus on writing, images, or oral presentation, ensuring that all students, including special education students, were able to produce a good looking poster with appropriate content. The option for students to develop their poster into a larger paper supported interested students in building on their passion, without burdening students whose interests lie elsewhere.

   - At Sumner-Fredericksburg, the hunger banquet provided opportunities for student participants to speak or observe based on their comfort level. Interested students had the option to help plan a hunger activity next year. By involving the entire student body in the hunger banquet, the organizers provided academic value and created a shared experience that teachers are using to frame discussions in classes across disciplines.
2) Be a resource to students, while allowing them to take the lead where possible.

- At Sumner-Fredericksburg, a core group of FFA students had worked with their advisor on other projects in the past and felt ready to organize the school wide hunger banquet with little direct involvement from the advisor, who continued to provide advice when asked.
- While the poster presentation curriculum at Emmetsburg was developed by teachers, students have the opportunity to make their own decisions about the countries and challenges they research, the solutions they present, and how they design their posters.

3) Foster teamwork and solidarity and build incrementally on successes.

- FFA students at Sumner-Fredericksburg were interested in helping organize the hunger banquet but had to overcome the fear of failure. By visibly working as a team, the organizers reminded themselves that they would succeed or fail together. Focusing on the students who were positively impacted by the hunger banquet helped organizers to persist despite the realization that few of their peers were as passionate about hunger as the student-organizers.
- The teacher at Emmetsburg has built incrementally on the poster curriculum over several years. This year, she reached out to the local newspaper to observe the poster presentations and inform the community about what the students did to learn about global food insecurity and make a difference locally. Next year, she hopes to partner with another school group or church group to add a student-run soup supper with a free will donation to the local food pantry.

Please contact Ms. Tricia Reichert at treichert@e-hawks.org for more information about the initiative in Emmetsburg.

Special Section: Celebrating the Borlaug Centennial (3/28/2014)

This week, the State of Iowa honored one of its greatest heroes: agricultural scientist, humanitarian, and founder of the World Food Prize, Dr. Norman E. Borlaug. Dr. Borlaug's statue was installed at the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C., on March 25th, at a ceremony including the leadership of the United States Congress, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Tom Vilsack, Iowa Governor Terry E. Branstad, and Amb. Kenneth M. Quinn, who chaired the Borlaug Statue Committee.

Every state in the United States is permitted two statues of notable citizens to represent it in the nation’s capitol building; Iowa leaders voted to return another statue and add Dr. Borlaug. The date of the ceremony was especially fitting as March 25th was National Agriculture Day and would have been Dr. Borlaug’s 100th birthday.

Iowans and hunger fighters around the world can read more about this week’s celebration of Dr. Borlaug and of Iowa’s agricultural and humanitarian heritage, see photos or watch video footage of the ceremony, and share their own work fighting hunger at www.worldfoodprize.org/norm.
High Schools as Partners in Ending Hunger: Part One (3/28/2014)

“We have to personalize hunger. If you can’t find passion for the cause, you have to find someone who you know and care about who is hungry at your school or church and think about them.” – High School Student and Organizer Against Hunger

Students and educators across Iowa are developing innovative ways to reduce hunger in their communities while developing the skills and knowledge to make a lifelong contribution to the fight against hunger. Many high school students and their teachers partner with local nonprofit groups and businesses to reduce hunger through service learning activities.

In Clay-Central-Everly, an agricultural educator worked with two student FFA officers to organize a Hunger Summit for students and members of the community. Despite winter weather, over 100 people participated in their Hunger Summit on February 17th. The Hunger Summit included a series of five 20-minute workshops in which participants learned about the local backpack program for hungry kids, tips and tricks for communicating about hunger through social media, the Farm to Fork program at Iowa State University, issues and opportunities in Iowa agriculture, and the National FFA “Running on Empty” hunger simulation. Senior management with Elanco Animal Health gave a keynote address, and participants were supported to continue raising awareness and encouraging action against hunger through Elanco’s nation-wide #Feedthe9 initiative.

In Boone, a high school senior worked with Iowa-based Outreach, Inc., the school’s talented and gifted coordinator, and eighth-grade students to organize a community hunger banquet raising awareness and funds for community development in Tanzania. About 75 people battled winter weather to attend the Boone Hunger Banquet, where they participated in an educational hunger simulation, learned about Outreach and its work in Tanzania, raised $756 to send Tanzanian children to school and equip a kitchen at a newly built children’s feeding center in Tanzania.

Students and adults from the community also discussed next steps, and there is substantial interest in sponsoring an Outreach, Inc. meal-packaging event to provide meals for hungry people in the Boone area and overseas.

Recommendations for successful collaborations involving high schools include:

1. Design collaborations so that they further the top priorities of each partner.

A successful collaboration makes the academic work of students more relevant, raises the profile of local nonprofits, and demonstrates local businesses’ commitments to corporate citizenship.

Clay-Central-Everly students demonstrated sensitivity to the priorities of businesses and nonprofits by involving ISU Extension and Outreach, the Clay County Cattlemen, the local food pantry, and the CC/E FFA chapter as workshop leaders, and by partnering with Elanco’s existing #Feedthe9 initiative. Boone high school students worked closely with Outreach, Inc., as a nonprofit partner, and their decision to mentor eighth grade students supported the middle school’s service-learning and citizenship curriculum.
2. Identify teachers and nonprofit leaders who have facilitated successful collaborations in the past and learn from their successes and failures.

Clay-Central-Everly’s Hunger Summit was inspired by the students’ experiences at the national FFA conference last October, and they were able to learn from FFA’s network as they planned their event. Boone’s Hunger Banquet was successful in large part because the high school organizer was able to work closely with staff at Outreach, Inc., and because the talented and gifted teacher worked with district administrators early on to secure approval.

3. Apply for outside funding when necessary and possible.

There are pools of funding dedicated to service-learning efforts. Organizers at Clay-Central-Everly received a “Be the Seed” mini-grant through a partnership between DuPont Pioneer and the Iowa Food and Family Project.

4. Start small and keep investments and expectations manageable.

Area grocers were reluctant to donate food for the Boone Hunger Banquet because it was the first time one had been organized by students in Boone. Rather than becoming discouraged, the students were able to cover the cost of food out of the money they raised through their fundraiser. After demonstrating the success of the event this year, they are optimistic that businesses will be supportive next year.

Please contact Ms. Betsy Schoelerman at bschoelerman@claycentraleverly.org for more information about the initiative in Clay-Central-Everly or Ms. Jackie Matt (jackie@outreachprogram.org) and Mr. Matt Hamilton (matt@outreachprogram.org) for more information about the initiative in Boone.
In their continued efforts to be an advocate and resource for all Iowans, and in particular those ages 50 and older, AARP in Iowa commissioned a survey to gauge Iowans’ experience with hunger in the state and their opinion about state support for food banks. The 2013 “Hunger in Iowa” survey, involving 800 adult Iowans, provides several key findings:

1. Most adult Iowans view hunger as an important issue in the state, with a third saying it is a very important issue and nearly half saying it is a somewhat important issue.

2. Many Iowans are involved in the fight against hunger and many more would be interested in helping if asked. At least half of all adult Iowans have donated money or donated food to an organization providing food to those in need, donated food to a food drive, or gave money directly to a person, family, or neighbor in need in the last 12 months.

3. Most Iowans think local government and local organizations should help reduce hunger in the state. Nearly three-quarters say both the state government and public or private organizations and individuals should help reduce the number of families at risk for hunger in Iowa.

After unveiling the results of the survey at the 2013 Iowa Hunger Summit in Des Moines, AARP State Director Kent Sovern partnered with Iowa Food Bank Association Director Cory Berkenes and local food banks to organize Hunger Thought Leader meetings in Cedar Rapids, Waterloo and Sioux City. Using the results of the 2013 Hunger in Iowa Survey, area thought leaders discussed the barriers to broader community adoption, acceptance, or advocacy on the topic of food insecurity in their community.

Waverly Food Insecurity Taskforce (2/21/2014)

Last week, over 30 leaders in the fight against hunger gathered at Waverly City Hall to begin a coordinated effort to eliminate food insecurity in Waverly. This initial gathering emphasized networking and identifying community assets that could be leveraged to end hunger in Waverly. The next step will be the formation of a smaller taskforce of approximately 8 – 10 leaders to research and recommend specific projects and areas for collaboration.

While the taskforce is being formed, Waverly’s hunger fighters have already benefited by finding out what everyone else does and identifying areas where collaboration can improve service delivery. For example, the Saints Café ecumenical soup kitchen was introduced to the Northeast Iowa Food Bank, where they can partner to purchase food at low cost; and child-care advocates and disability service providers received up-to-date information on the scope of childhood hunger from the Waverly Community School District.

The idea for the food insecurity gathering and taskforce began during conversations between the ELCA and the City of Waverly about how to expand the impact of the Waverly Sharing Gardens, in which residents grow and donate produce to area food pantries and soup kitchens. Organizers recommendations for other communities seeking to build a taskforce include:

1. Secure City Support: If possible, secure support from the city government early in the process. City support lends legitimacy to the process and the process benefits from the experience that city staff have in facilitating discussions about community issues. Early in the process, the verbal and moral support of city leaders is much more important than financial support. In larger cities, it is valuable to approach housing or social services staff early on, as their daily work sensitizes them to the importance of ending hunger.

2. Be Citizen-Led: The process should be led by active citizens who have both passion and experience fighting hunger. Food banks and pantries, schools and institutions of higher education, faith-based organizations, local government, and social service providers should all be represented. Waverly’s process centers on an emerging partnership between area churches, the school district, the city government, and food pantries.

3. Be Inclusive: While a taskforce is necessarily limited in size, networking and fact-finding gatherings should be as inclusive as possible. The City of Waverly identified and invited 20 leaders from faith communities, the school district, homeless and housing services, and emergency food providers. These leaders reached out through their networks to invite additional leaders that the City was not previously aware of.

For more information about the Waverly Food Insecurity Taskforce, contact Mr. Tab Ray at 319-352-6263 or tab@ci.waverly.ia.us.
An Integrated Approach to Workforce Development (2/7/2014)

One of the most effective ways to end hunger is through adequate employment for the breadwinners in every family. Project IOWA works to increase access to 21st century, career track, living wage jobs for chronically under-employed and unemployed residents of Central Iowa through an intensive public-private skills training and economic development program. Since February 2012, 112 central Iowans have participated in Project IOWA’s education programs, with 75% accepting living-wage positions (at least $13.66/hr with opportunities for advancement) with area businesses. The job retention rate for Project IOWA graduates is 87%.

Three factors feature prominently in Project IOWA’s early successes:

1. Project IOWA’s origin in a model of community organizing that emphasizes building relationships over the long-term.
2. The support of central Iowa businesses, who advise on which technical skills are most desirable in the workforce, are a source of volunteer trainers, and agree to interview program graduates.
3. Project IOWA’s workforce development approach, which combines technical skills training with a soft-skills curriculum that emphasizes emotional intelligence, communication, and workplace behavior expectations.

Relational Organizing

The concept of Project IOWA was born from a series of community listening sessions held by AMOS, a community organizing network that emphasizes “relational organizing”, in which change is created through building public relationships between citizens with diverse interests and backgrounds.

The need for career track, living wage jobs was a common theme at these sessions, which led AMOS members to convene with important community stakeholders about the feasibility of a job-training program modeled off of the Industrial Area Foundation’s Project Quest. Area businesses supported the concept, which led to the creation of Project IOWA in September of 2011.

Partnerships with the Business Community

The early and ongoing support of central Iowa businesses has been critical to the successes of Project Iowa. Graduates have been hired by Bridgestone, ALMACO, Vermeer, Danfoss, EFCO, ACH, Mercy and Unity Point. Up-front work with the business community helped Project Iowa determine which skill sets are currently in need and influenced the development of the skills training curriculum. Several companies have joined as hiring partners based on feedback from their existing employees who volunteered as skills mentors or attended showcases, in which Project Iowa participants practice resume and interview skills.

Integrated Technical and Soft Skills Training

Project IOWA combines technical skills trainings with a soft-skills curriculum in the context of a relationship-based approach to workforce development. Technical skill trainings are offered based on what area businesses need, and currently include welding, certified production technician, and certified nursing assistant classes. Soft-skills trainings use a “Vision, Initiative and Perseverance (VIP)” curriculum that emphasizes goal setting, emotional management skills, communication skills, workplace behavior and expectations, and resume-writing and interviewing.
During the 12-16 week program, cohorts of 12 participants meet 3 nights per week for technical skills and one night per week for soft skills. The classes work synergistically, with technical skills trainings providing a context for developing soft skills and the soft skills classes providing an opportunity to work through workplace situations that develop during the technical skills trainings.

Instructors intentionally develop tension and unfair situations in the classes in order to simulate and work through challenges commonly encountered in the workplace. Although influenced by the sanctuary model of trauma-informed care, soft skills classes are not therapy. Rather, they focus on why participants sometimes react to workplace situations in unproductive ways, with the philosophy that understanding plus practice leads to change.

The relational emphasis of Project IOWA begins with recruitment interviews, in which applicants’ abilities, skills, career goals and barriers are discussed. Applicants whose goals would be better addressed by other programs are given referrals. The relational focus continues after graduation, with participants receiving ongoing support or up to a year and continuing contact with employers about placements. Project IOWA and Goodwill Industries partner to provide employment placement and retention services.

Project IOWA is about graduation not just an education, and creates opportunities that produce life changing transformation. For more information, please contact Ms. Julie Fugenschuh at juliefugenschuh@projectiowa.org or 515-280-1502.

How-To Guides and Templates for Project Management (2/7/2014)

Tools4dev is a website (www.tools4dev.org) with a collection of free how-to guides and templates that provide guidance on many aspects of project management. This collection includes strategic plans, project proposals, job descriptions, budgets, monitoring and evaluation, research reports, and logical frameworks. Guides and templates are presented in a way that is accessible to those without advanced professional training, while remaining detailed enough to be useful to professionals. Tools4dev is especially useful for people working to end hunger abroad.
Meals for Disaster Relief in the Philippines (1/24/2014)

Responding to the devastation of Typhoon Haiyan, Iowans delivered 1,425,600 nutritious meals to the Philippines through a partnership between Outreach, Inc., of Union, IA; Rotary International Clubs; and Somebody Cares International. Organizers at Outreach, Inc. were able to respond quickly and forcefully after the typhoon by leveraging preexisting partnerships with meal-packaging organizations in Minnesota and Missouri and by approaching contacts at Rotary International and Somebody Cares International with a proposal that each organization could easily insert itself into and accomplish their own objectives.

Their recommendations for laying the groundwork for successful partnerships include:

1. Developing a reputation for sharing credit and publicity between partners
2. Proposing projects that meet the visions and missions of potential partners while building on each partner’s strengths
3. Listening to feedback from potential and actual partners both before and especially after the ‘crunch time’ of an actual partnership

Iowa Governor Terry Branstad will sign a Proclamation at 2:30 P.M. on February 13, 2014, honoring this effort. To find out more, contact Rick McNary at rick@outreachprogram.org.

Hy-Vee Community Garden Grants (1/24/2014)

Community gardens are one promising way to increase access to healthy, nutritious food in cities and towns across Iowa. Hy-Vee is awarding “One Step Community Garden Grants” to organizations whose core focus teaches those in need about health and nutrition through the process of planting, tending and harvesting their own fruits and vegetables. Grants will not exceed $750 per garden.

More information about community gardening is available through several organizations, including Cultivate Iowa, a statewide initiative promoting the benefits of food gardening and produce donation.

Create the Good (1/10/2014)

Create The Good connects people with volunteer opportunities to share their life experiences, skills and passions in their community. The network expands on traditional ways to volunteer by connecting people with simple activities, time-flexible opportunities and a wide variety of interests.

On www.CreateTheGood.org potential volunteers find:

- A wide range of local volunteer opportunities that suit a variety of interests;
- Easy guides for starting projects;
- A cost-free way to find helping hands for service projects, big or small;
- Opportunities to volunteer from the comfort of home;
- A monthly newsletter and other resources filled with tips, ideas and inspiration to get started volunteering.

Create The Good is an initiative of AARP. For more information, contact Ms. Ann Black at ablack@aarp.org or 515-697-1003.
School-based food pantries are one way to help make sure that hungry, food insecure high school and middle school students can eat outside of school breakfasts and lunches. With the support of the principal and the Perry community food pantry, teachers at Perry High School started a school-based food pantry just over a year and a half ago. Their recommendations for a successful school pantry include securing buy-in from school administration and the community early on, prioritizing food items that students will eat and can cook, and prioritizing personal relationships with students in need to avoid stigma and make sure that the school pantry is used.

The Perry High School Food Pantry organizers were fortunate to have support from the principal at the very beginning of the process. The district used some of its modified allowable growth funds to refit an old school photography lab into a food pantry. The food pantry is accessed through the alternative school classroom, which is beneficial because many of the users attend the alternative school and because the pantry is managed by a guidance counselor and an alternative school teacher.

The Perry High School food pantry had early support from the Perry community food pantry, which has so far contributed $40,000 to a separate account for the school pantry and community pantry staff helps purchase food items on behalf of the school pantry organizers. The community pantry also accepts expired but still usable food items from the school pantry – due to liability concerns; the school pantry does not give out any expired food items.

Students who may benefit from the school pantry are usually identified by the alternative school teachers or by the guidance counselors. There are periodic announcements made through school publications, but these are carefully worded to avoid stigma. The organizers acknowledge that their heavily relationship-based approach means that some students who may benefit from the pantry don’t know about it, but avoiding stigma is a higher priority for the organizers at this time. They also note that they have not had any abuse of school pantry so far, and they don’t anticipate abuse being a problem in Perry High School in the future. Approximately 8-10 students use the Perry High School food pantry every week.

Recommendations for other school-based pantry initiatives include:

1. Secure buy-in from school administration and the community early on. Administrators who focus on learning and test-scores may recognize that students learn better when they aren’t distracted by hunger. Teachers and staff often have connections in the community that can support the food pantry. In Perry, teachers were able to involve their spouses – one spouse is a dentist who donates dental care supplies to the pantry, while another works at Hy-Vee and donates overstocked food items.

2. Prioritize food items that the students will eat and can cook. Keep in mind that students may lack appliances such as stoves, ovens, and refrigerators. The most popular items at the Perry school food pantry are Ramen, pasta with sauce, peanut butter and jelly, soup, and pop tarts.

3. Personal relationships with students are the key to success, especially in smaller districts such as Perry. By integrating the school pantry into alternative education and guidance counseling programs, Perry High School has been able to avoid stigma and customize their food pantry program to the varied and changing needs of individual students. Tying the school pantry into existing at-risk programs may be a viable approach for other school districts to copy.

4. While the popular “Backpack Buddies” program is useful for serving elementary school students, older students’ needs are often better served through different programming. In schools with an existing Backpack Buddies program, it is important for organizers to think critically about which aspects of Backpack Buddies need to be modified in order to better serve older students.

For more information about the Perry High School food pantry, please contact Ms. Tammi Valline at tammi.valline@perry.k12.ia.us or 515-465-8370.
Part Two: Profiles of Iowa Organizations Fighting Hunger

The Iowa Hunger Directory is an initiative to profile all organizations fighting hunger from Iowa, serving as a comprehensive platform for those seeking to engage and collaborate in this area. The Directory includes a description of each organization along with contact information and a brief explanation of how Iowans can engage with them.

The World Food Prize Foundation is a non-partisan, non-profit organization that does not take policy positions on issues. A listing in the Iowa Hunger Directory does not imply an endorsement by the World Food Prize Foundation of any agency or its programs.

If you or someone you know are hungry and need immediate assistance, please dial 211 for referrals to local social services, including food pantries, supplemental food services, and more. The 211 service is an independent initiative and is not a program of the World Food Prize Foundation.

To sign up your organization for a profile in the Iowa Hunger Directory, please visit www.worldfoodprize.org/shareyourstory

This printable edition of the Iowa Hunger Directory is current to the best of our knowledge as of June 29, 2016. For the most up to date information on organizations fighting hunger in Iowa, please visit the online directory at: www.iowahungerdirectory.org

Description:

The A-Maizing Grace FRB Growing Project is a community initiative to help end hunger overseas by supporting communities in Central America to grow their own food.

A collaboration between Conrad area church congregations, businesses and farmers, the A-Maizing Grace Growing Project raises funds that are sent to Central America through the Foods Resource Bank (FRB) network.

As a Christian response to world hunger, Foods Resource Bank links the grassroots energy and commitment of the U.S. agricultural community with the capability and desire of small farmers in developing countries to grow lasting solutions to hunger.

How to Help:

Individuals, churches and other organizations in the Conrad area and surrounding rural communities can support this Growing Project through fundraising, volunteering time and talents, or through other creative opportunities for partnership.

Iowans are encouraged to directly contact coordinators Mr. & Mrs. Arlyn and Marla Schipper or Mr. Don Linnenbrink to become involved with the A-Maizing Grace FRB Growing Project.

For more information about Foods Resource Bank or to learn about starting a new FRB Growing Project, please call (888) 276-4FRB or email admin@foodsresourcebank.org.

Description:

As part of the AARP and AARP Foundation Drive to End Hunger, AARP Iowa is recruiting volunteers to help raise awareness of hunger in Iowa, especially among older adults, and assist older Iowans in the application process for the Iowa Food Assistance Program or Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) formerly known as food stamps. The Drive to End Hunger campaign is a multi-pronged effort by AARP and AARP Foundation to not only raise awareness of the issue of food insecurity but end hunger among older adults.

How to Help:

Volunteers are needed across the state to assist in various ways. For those interested in assisting with applications for Iowa Food Assistance, one day of training on the computer application is required. For those interested in helping raise awareness of hunger and senior nutrition, volunteers are needed for a speakers’ bureau to make presentations to organizations and groups in their home areas. Speakers’ bureau volunteers receive skills training and scheduling assistance.

Description:

Agape Garden is an ecumenical faith garden that donates produce to the DMARC Food Warehouse, the Ankeny Food Pantry, Lutheran Church of Hope (North Branch in Ankeny), Bethel Mission in Des Moines, Door of Faith Mission in Des Moines, and Trinity Methodist Church in Des Moines. Volunteer gardeners do all of the gardening and delivery to area food pantries.

In 2015, they produced and donated 22,000 lbs of fruit and vegetables and installed a deer-proof fence that increased yields to record levels. In 2014, their 12 tree orchard began to produce apples, pears and plums, and they began growing their own seedlings in a small green house. They are also building a 500 gallon rain barrel and irrigation project and are working on building a rain garden in the wetland portion of the garden. They have donated over 70,000 lbs of produce altogether.

How to Help:

Agape Garden is always in need of donations and volunteers to help plant, grow and harvest fruit and vegetables. During the growing season, volunteer gardeners gather on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:00 PM until dark and on Saturday mornings from 8 AM until noon. The garden is open to volunteers other hours upon request.

Agape Garden is an ecumenical faith garden that welcomes collaboration with other churches. Interested people should contact Agape Garden directly to sign up to volunteer or to explore partnerships with their faith community.

Online Profile Link: http://www.worldfoodprize.org/en/events/iowa_hunger_summit/the_iowa_hunger_directory/organizations_fighting_hunger/?action=detail&memberID=47329

Description:

The American Red Cross, Serving Greater Iowa is operating in 94 of 99 counties in the state of Iowa via main offices located in; Des Moines, Sioux City, Cedar Rapids and Dubuque. Our mission is to prevent and alleviate suffering in the face of emergencies by mobilizing the power of volunteers and the generosity of donors. The Red Cross has roughly 4 volunteers to each paid staff which enables us to have a presence in every community. Resilient communities are able to prepare for, respond to and recover from disasters. Annually we respond to nearly 600 disasters in the state of Iowa each year. Some are large-scale disasters such as flooding, but almost daily we support those who have suffered from a house fire. We provide a number of services for clients, from mental health support to direct financial assistance, with a goal of immediate recovery. Our 5 pillar services are; Domestic Disaster Response, International Services (when called upon by the greater Red Cross Society Internationally), Health and Safety (Courses and Services), Services to the Armed Forces and Blood Services (collection and distribution of the nation’s blood needs).

How to Help:

The Red Cross responds to anyone who calls on our services, including rural Iowa. We’ve helped farm families recover from tornados, mobilized and fed volunteer crews who helped to clear fields of debris for harvest, and supplied direct disaster financial assistance to farm families in need. While donations on the heels of a disaster are appreciated, we are able to save $4 during disasters for every $1 we raise prior to an event. We are also better prepared to respond given; volunteer recruitment and training, pre-positioning of supplies and networking efforts.

Iowans can support the work of the American Red Cross through donations, volunteering and community partnerships.

We’ve also developed the Red Cross Gift of Grain Program which is unique to Iowa to help us prepare for disasters through grain donations. Farmers will find Red Cross, (Serving Greater Iowa) accounts at nearly every CoOp and Elevator in the state and both the CoOps and the Red Cross can provide a tax receipt for the grain donations. Please help us turn grain into groceries for those that have suffered from a disaster through donations of grain. The Red Cross, Serving Greater Iowa, can also accept donated land, equipment, livestock and stock gifts.

For more information or to become involved, please visit the Red Cross online or contact Mr. Bryce Sitter by email at bryce.sitter@redcross.org or by phone at 515-473-1284 (cell) or 515 246-6307 (office).

Description:
AMOS is a non-profit community organization in central Iowa made up of 29 diverse members. AMOS pursues an agenda with multiple issues and responds to the concerns and pressures people feel. These concerns and pressures are identified through hundreds of small-group conversations, and are then explored in depth by investigative issue teams who research the facts and develop possible solutions to the problems. AMOS then acts publicly, bringing the power of organized people to decision-makers to implement the AMOS agenda. Through this three-step process, hundreds of people re-enter public life and reclaim responsibility for their future in central Iowa.

How to Help:
AMOS works thanks to the support of its many volunteer leaders. To find out more information or become involved, visit their website, which has contact information for volunteer organizers in the Ames and Des Moines communities.

Description:

The Bethesda Community Food Pantry is an initiative of Bethesda Lutheran Church in Ames to help ensure that everyone in Story County has enough to eat. Bethesda Lutheran Church provides the facility and utilities, with community partners providing support through donations of money, food, and volunteer hours.

How to Help:

Many groups regularly give to the food pantry, both financial contributions and donations of food. Ames letter carriers participate in an annual food drive each May, and some of those donations come to Bethesda. The same is true of Boy Scout troops, Iowa State University student organizations, neighborhood groups, businesses, and hundreds of individuals.

Within the past year, the Bethesda Community Food Pantry has received donations from 20 Ames area businesses, 20 different congregations, 19 civic groups, 9 ISU employee-student groups, 4 non-ISU public agencies, and 7 schools and youth programs.

Contact the food pantry staff to become involved.

Description:

Bidwell Riverside Center serves people in need in Des Moines through a child development center, a food and clothing pantry, and a bedding/blanket program. Still the only food pantry on the south side of Des Moines, Bidwell served more than 14,000 individuals in 2014. Their Christmas Sharing Program included more than 1400 children in over 600 families during the 2014 holiday season.

Bidwell envisions a future where no one lives in poverty and every person has the opportunity for a positive future. A private non-profit, Bidwell Riverside has been serving people in poverty since 1893. Bidwell provides hope to families and helps them bridge the gap, so that they can spend their hard earned money on other necessities besides food and clothing.

How to Help:

Bidwell Riverside Center is currently looking for volunteers to assist in the food and clothing pantry. More than 15 volunteers are needed each day (Monday through Friday) to help the more than 160 individuals that come for assistance. In addition, donation of the following items are always needed: personal hygiene items, baby formula, diapers, clothes for babies and children, bedding, towels, and financial support for building and playground maintenance.

To volunteer or coordinate a donation drive, contact Missy Reams by email at mreams@bidwellriverside.org or by phone at 515-244-6251.

Description:

The Blue Zones Project - Cedar Rapids by Healthways, sponsored by Wellmark, is a community well-being improvement initiative designed to make healthy choices easier through permanent changes to environment, policy, and social networks. It is one of 15 Blue Zones Projects across Iowa.

The Blue Zones Project helps Cedar Rapids emulate the nine healthy lifestyle habits shared by people living in the original Blue Zones areas, which have exceptionally high concentrations of people living 100 years or more. These nine small, easy steps fit into a few categories and can be practiced anywhere. They include Moving Naturally, Right Outlook, Eating Wisely and Belonging.

By collaborating to encourage and support these healthy lifestyle habits in worksites, schools, restaurants, grocery stores, private life and public policy, Cedar Rapids is working towards certified Blue Zones Community status.

How to Help:

Individuals can support the mission of the Blue Zones Project by registering online and taking action, attending Blue Zones events, and volunteering.

Worksites, schools, restaurants and grocery stores are also encouraged to join the Blue Zones Project. The first step for organizations is to learn more and register on the Blue Zones Project website. Other organizations seeking more information on the Blue Zones Project - Cedar Rapids are encouraged to contact them directly.

Description:

Crawford Hall provides emergency shelter and transition for those that are homeless as well as homeless prevention services. They work closely with landlords and housing entities to assist people in staying in their homes if at all possible. They provide financial assessment, financial coaching and support through rental assistance and circles of support to assist in redeveloping relationships and trust that leads to retaining and or obtaining needed housing.

How to Help:

Volunteers are the backbone of Crawford Hall’s efforts, and provide support in many ways – from remodeling work in the building to expand their existing space to becoming part of the “family team” for homeless families through building relationships and friendships with the goal that these team members will continue their support even after the family gets on their feet. Additional volunteer needs include children’s programs, nutrition, physical fitness/ healthy lifestyles, and gardening.

Donations are always welcome and needed. Crawford Hall operates a furniture and household goods bank for families in need and are also always in need of perishable food such as milk, eggs, and meat.

Description:

Catholic Relief Services (CRS) is the official international humanitarian agency of the Catholic community in the United States. They do Emergency Relief and Development work in 93 countries around the world.

Their key program areas include emergency response, water and sanitation, hunger and agriculture, and global health. In the United States, Catholic Relief Services programs work to help Catholics live their faith by helping our poorest brothers and sisters across the globe.

In the United States, CRS works with 8.5 million Catholics in 14,337 parishes, dioceses and schools through programs such as CRS Rice Bowl, CRS Fair Trade, the Helping Hands volunteer program, advocacy initiatives, and programs for university students and young people.

How to Help:

Iowans can get involved in the work of CRS through a variety of programs, including:

1) Catholics Confront Global Poverty, to learn and advocate on policies that affect global poverty

2) CRS Rice Bowl: A Lenten program with curricula and materials to Pray, Learn, Fast and Give. CRS Rice Bowl donations are used to fight hunger, 75% of the money goes overseas, and 25% stays in the US for local hunger fighting initiatives.

3) CRS Fair Trade: Support a sale or purchase items that promote human dignity

4) Educators can access CRS Resources at www.Education.CRS.org and www.University.crs.org

Iowans should contact Teresa Dunbar, the CRS Relationship Manager in Des Moines, for more information about these and other opportunities to become involved.

Description:

The Center for Sustainable Rural Livelihoods (CSRL) helps small landholder farmers in Kamuli District, Uganda to achieve food security, improve household nutrition, and stabilize income through sustainable crop and livestock production, access to marketing opportunities, school gardens and lunch programs, and mother/child nutrition education centers. CSRL also provides support for malnourished children, widows, and families living with HIV/AIDS.

CSRL works with partners in the US and developing countries to improve the livelihoods of rural people. Through learning and discovery, these partners train community volunteers in practices that will alleviate food insecurity and poverty. CSRL’s focus on improving the food security, nutrition and health of the poor is rooted in the land-grant mission of Iowa State University and the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

How to Help:

Students and faculty at Iowa State University have many opportunities to become involved with the activities of CSRL, including through academic research and the student service-learning program.

Anyone who is interested in finding out more about the activities of CSRL should contact the center staff at csrl@iastate.edu. CSRL accepts donations online.

Description:

Since 1992 Central Iowa Shelter & Services’ mission is to provide free shelter and meals to homeless adults regardless of physical or emotional conditions, and to facilitate their move toward self-sufficiency. Approximately 2,000 homeless women and men have received emergency shelter and supportive services to help them move beyond homelessness each year.

In September 2012, Central Iowa Shelter & Services (CISS) opened its new facility. The facility grew from being 8,000 square feet and 96 beds to 207 beds and 42,000 square feet. It is equipped to provide emergency shelter (150 beds); transitional housing for Veterans (19 rooms); and 38 Project Based Section 8 Voucher efficiency apartments. CISS also provides an on-site health clinic, food pantry, clothing closet and classroom.

All guests and residents are provided evening, lunch and breakfast meals; access to shower and laundry facilities, a weekly medical clinic, individualized case management, life skills instruction, and referrals to other community services and benefits. Programming continues to evolve to meet emerging homeless and community needs.

How to Help:

Some of the simplest ways to help are to collect their top need items and bring them to the center or help serve lunch. Volunteers can also help on projects, committees, or serve at the shelter for a day. Volunteers can sign up online or contact Jorie Landers directly at 515-564-5752.

Individuals, restaurants, and grocery stores are invited to join their food rescue initiative, which supports the donation of surplus food that would otherwise be thrown out. Contact Jorie Landers for more information about the food rescue initiative.

Description:

Churches United of the Quad City Area is a cooperative association of over 136 churches representing over 20 Christian Faith traditions in the greater Quad Cities area. Churches United Hunger Ministries have 26 Food Pantries responding to over 118,000 needs for meals annually throughout Rock Island and Scott Counties. They also coordinate a hot meal site in Davenport that provides a hot meal Monday through Saturday at 6:00 pm.

How to Help:

The Churches United Hunger Ministries are made possible by over 500 generous, hardworking and dedicated volunteers. Volunteers do a variety of things to help the operation of their food pantries, including: packing boxes/bags of food to give to clients, assisting in volunteer coordination, gathering groceries and donations to stock the food pantry shelves, transporting donated items from the food bank or local stores, and hosting Food Drives.

Donations to support the Churches United Hunger Ministries can be made online through the Virtual Food Pantry or through their website. For every dollar donated, Churches United can purchase 6 lb. of food, so a financial contribution to Churches United can go a long way to helping hunger in the Quad City area.

Contact their office to find out more about how to help or to sign up to volunteer.

Description:

In February 2013, the Clay Central Everly FFA chapter established the "Mavpack" backpack program in their school district. Mavpacks are named after the district’s mascot and are distributed every Friday to students in Preschool through 12th grade. Mavpacks contain 2 breakfast items, 2 snacks, and 2 lunches to help get hungry students through the weekend. Mavpacks are packed each week by FFA members and are distributed by the guidance counselor to ensure confidentiality.

In the 2013-14 school year there were 74 students enrolled in the Mavpack program. This was nearly 25% of their total enrollment. This program is funded entirely on community and church donations and grants.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the work of the Clay Central Everly FFA Chapter by purchasing non-perishable food items or by sending cash donations to the Mavpack program. For more information about how to help, contact Clay Central Everly FFA Advisor Betsy Schoelerman.

Comprised of a group of volunteers hailing from local faith-based organizations, schools, businesses, and civic groups, CEFP has been serving the community since September 2009.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the mission of the Coralville Ecumenical Food Pantry by volunteering, or making a donation of fund, food, or fresh produce. In addition to needing volunteers for three weekly pantry shifts – Tuesdays (2-4, 4-6pm) and Saturdays (10am-1pm) – they are always looking for people interested in stocking shelves, repackaging bulk food items, cleaning/tidying up, food pick-up, data entry, marketing, graphic design, fundraising, and more. Those interested in volunteering should email them at volunteer@cefoodpantry.org.

In 2014, the food pantry secured funding to establish a seed library. Those interested in collaborating or helping with this project should email CEFP Director John Boller at director@cefoodpantry.org. CEFP will also graciously accept any of area gardeners’ excess produce during the summer months. They request that gardeners please call or email in advance before delivering fresh fruits and vegetables to the food pantry.

Description:

The Des Moines Area Hunger Hike designates a route for individuals and groups to hike together on the second Sunday afternoon in October as visible witness to their concern about hunger among our fellow humans, having made prior collections from friends and neighbors to give tangible evidence of this concern. The hike coincides with World Hunger Week and the awarding of the World Food Prize.

Over the years, over $900,000 has been given to local and international organizations for food purposes. Over 96% of each year’s funds are allocated to a wide variety of service agencies for food purposes with less than 4% of funds going for required insurance, printing and postage expense. Approximately, forty percent of receipts go to Church World Service/CROP for food and food-related programs. A wide variety of service agencies apply for and receive the remainder of the money for food purposes.

How to Help:

Individuals and groups can join the Des Moines Area Hunger Hike by publicizing the hike, fund-raising and hiking the route, or by donating to the cause. More information is available on their website, by sending an email to ruffkleis@msn.com, or by calling the Hunger Hike Treasurer at 515-279-1106 or Mr. Jordan Bles at 410-596-2664.

Description:
For more than 85 years, DuPont Pioneer has been working to improve the lives of farm families and rural communities. As the first company to research, develop and sell hybrid seed corn in 1926, our focus was helping farmers increase productivity of corn to support their families, invest in their farms and build stronger rural communities. Many things have changed in eight decades, but our focus is still the same: helping farmers be more productive while supporting the communities in which our employees and customers live and work.

Our Pioneer Giving program works to improve food security by advancing agriculture through science, education, and innovation. We are also committed to enhancing the quality of life for farmers and their communities globally.

Eligible community organizations include local schools, public charities and 501c3 organizations.

Pioneer’s Giving Program provides up to $5,000 for a project or program which focuses on the following:

1. Food Security. While we are working toward the goal of providing nutritious food to 9 billion people by 2015, millions of people today don’t know where their next meal will come from.

   Food security support could include school to home backpack meal programs, food banks, rural meal delivery, congregate meal programs, meals on wheels programs, community gardens.

   Program examples include:
   - Food Bank of the Heartland & Community Programs, Nebraska

2. Education. Science education is the key to continuing important advancements in agriculture. Increasing productivity, preserving natural resources, developing healthier plants, oils and animals … it will take a new generation of researchers, agronomists, scientists and farmers to meet lofty goals. Education support could be for a local science fair, classroom science activity, and after school activities like Lego League.

   Program examples include:
   - CASE Program Helps Teachers Prepare Future Ag & Science Leaders, Iowa
   - Urban Agriculture Academy, Nebraska

3. Community Betterment. Vibrant communities support our customers and employees in important ways. We support programs and projects that create sustainable infrastructure for communities in which our employees and customers live and work. Projects could include grain rescue tubes or other support for local rescue teams, a key community improvement effort, or local health and human services projects.

   Program examples include:
   - Focus on Youth Drives Community Outreach in Hawaii
   - Grain Bin Rescue Equipment Donations, Iowa

Contact your local Pioneer sales representative or business team for more details on program applications.

Description:
Eat Greater Des Moines works to provide access to healthy food for all Iowans with a focus on central Iowa. Eat Greater Des Moines identifies and fills gaps within the food system, through efforts that include a directory of farms, a directory of community gardens and farmers markets, a directory of food assistance sites, information about starting community gardens, and an online calendar of events.

Their food rescue initiative connects people and organizations with surplus food to people and organizations that feed hungry people, reducing food waste and helping ensure that everyone has enough healthy food to eat.

How to Help:
There are many opportunities for people and organizations to support the work of Eat Greater Des Moines. Their food rescue initiative has roles for individual volunteers, food industry professionals, and social service professionals. People can also provide support by signing up on their website, helping expand their directories and submitting events to their calendar.

Description:

EMBARC is a holistically-minded organization, founded by refugees from Burma. Services provided address education, advocacy, and community building concepts and activities.

A key factor in strengthening communities is strong community-based organizations. By providing linguistically and culturally appropriate services, and building bridges to community resources, families will increase their economic stability, integrate with the mainstream population, develop tools to engage in civic participation and self-advocacy, and strengthen their capacity to help others in their community.

EMBARC provides language courses and ongoing community support for families. Since December 2011, EMBARC has organized five donation drives in collaboration with private and public partners, providing basic essentials to an estimated 1,200 individuals.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the work of EMBARC through a variety of volunteer opportunities or by making a donation online.

Volunteer opportunities include:

- Helping refugee children improve their English and complete homework
- Helping adult refugees learn English, computer skills, and prepare for the GED
- Assisting with donation drives
- Helping refugees apply for ‘green cards’ so they can work
- Transporting refugees to appointments and resource centers
- Helping write grants, plan events, and fundraisers
- Performing basic clerical tasks – filing, data entry, correspondence
- Helping publicize EMBARC

To find out more about volunteering opportunities, email them at embarc@embarciowa.org.

Description:

Employee & Family Resources (EFR) is a nonprofit human services organization dedicated to helping people manage life's challenges so they can reach their full potential.

Their Community Services help individuals and families to establish and meet goals, focus on increasing access and services for specific language and cultural groups, and provide substance abuse related prevention and programming. These programs include the Student Assistance Program for youth, bilingual counseling services, and behavioral and restorative justice programs.

Their Workplace Services help organizations perform optimally by growing healthy and focused employees and providing guidance in times of crisis. These programs include an Employee Assistance Program and wellness programming for employees, training and leadership coaching for management, and mediation and crisis response services.

Their Substance Abuse Services help individuals, families, and employers impacted by substance abuse-related problems.

How to Help:

Individuals can support the work of EFR by volunteering and through monetary donations. Iowans are encouraged to learn more about volunteer, internship and service learning opportunities by contacting Louise Crall online or at 515-471-2373.

Organizations can support the work of EFR by participating in their workplace services programming, making referrals to their community services and substance abuse services, or requesting a member of their Speakers Bureau to share their expertise and success stories with members and employees. Please contact EFR staff directly for more information about these opportunities or to explore other partnership ideas.

Description:

ESNA Village Network trains rural families who are subsistence farmers in El Salvador, teaching them alternative farming methods that will produce both food and income on a consistent and sustainable monthly basis.

ESNA provides the training, the tools and the distribution channels for their produce. It costs $3,000 per farmer on one half acre of ground to provide the training, tools, marketing, distribution and follow on support. Each farmer they train creates an additional three jobs in the community. Their main effort is in drip irrigation of vegetables.

How to Help:

Iowans can assist ESNA in two ways: donations to their work, or organizing a service learning trip of 8-12 people who travel to El Salvador with ESNA. Iowans can also join an existing service-learning trip.

Online Profile Link:
http://www.worldfoodprize.org/en/events/iowa_hunger_summit/the_iowa_hunger_directory/organizations_fighting_hunger/?action=detail&memberID=43910

Description:

Faith & Grace Garden is part of Grow The Food, a collection of community gardens in the Des Moines area with the goal of growing food to feed the local hungry. All of the food they grow is donated to local food pantries, including the Des Moines Area Religious Council, the Eddie Davis Community Center and the food distribution program at Trinity Methodist Church.

Faith & Grace Garden is located alongside St. Timothy's Episcopal Church and Covenant Presbyterian Church in West Des Moines.

How to Help:

Individuals and groups can join the work of Faith & Grace Garden by volunteering or donating equipment or materials. Volunteers are retirees, church groups, civic groups, students, neighbors and other people who want to enjoy fresh air and sunshine while helping other people. Volunteers help with planting, weeding, watering, harvesting and delivering to the food pantries.

Scheduled work days in the gardens are week days 6:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. and weekends except Sunday mornings. Food delivery help is needed on Tuesday and Saturday mornings. However, they will schedule a work event any time (except Sunday morning) that three or more persons wish to work.

Individuals can weed or hoe outside of scheduled work times anytime at their convenience. A typical work event lasts 1 to 2 hours. Donations of equipment or materials are also helpful from time to time. Their website has a list of current equipment needs.

Description:

Family Promise of Greater Des Moines (FPGD) mobilizes the community to help homeless families achieve stable housing and income through compassionate care, hospitality and professional support. FPGD is an affiliate of Family Promise; a nonprofit corporation based in Summit, New Jersey.

Family Promise of Greater Des Moines assists homeless families with children through a network of 14 area faith-based host congregations that provide clean, safe overnight shelter and nutritious meals for a period of one week every three months. The host congregations provide each family with a private room for sleeping as well as supper and food for breakfast and for packing a sack lunch each day.

Guests are provided a safe, secure place to be during the day at their Day Center which is located at Westminster Presbyterian Church.

How to Help:

Individuals and groups can support the work of Family Promise of Greater Des Moines through donations and by volunteering with programming at the Day Center, driving the FPGD van, and nonprofit administrative and operations support. Members of host congregations may also be able to help provide hospitality to guest families during their congregation’s host week.

Religious communities can become involved by becoming host congregations or support congregations.

Iowans are encouraged to contact FPGD directly to learn more.

Description:

The Farmer Veteran Coalition of Iowa assists military veterans to develop, grow, and succeed as Iowa's next generation of farmers and agribusiness leaders. They connect military veterans with resources and networks of information, programs, and organizations to help transition to agricultural careers, identify collaborations and resources between agribusiness, farming, education and military communities, and promote opportunities for all military veterans in all sectors of Iowa's agricultural economy.

How to Help:

One of the best ways to support the Farmer Veteran Coalition of Iowa is to join as a member. Farmer Veterans may join the coalition free of charge and access their resources and programs. Farmer Veterans include veterans of the US Military, Active Duty, Guard and Reserve members who are involved in, or wish to be involved in, some aspect of agriculture. Those who are not Farmer Veterans and would like to join may do so as a Supporter. Supporters are requested to make a contribution to the organization.

Other ways to support the Farmer Veteran Coalition of Iowa include using their directory to locate Farmer Veterans and purchasing their products or renting them land. Another way to show support is by donating farm machinery to Farmer Veterans. Employers can also use the "Rural America Hiring Heroes" program to identify and hire qualified Farmer Veterans.

Description:

Dedicated to confronting food insecurity today and tomorrow by growing food and farmers, Feed Iowa First raises wholesome, top-quality, fresh food and delivers it to those in need, while offering opportunities for beginning farmers to get started.

Feed Iowa First partners with corporations and faith communities who provide volunteers and land for gardening and urban farming. They also work with schools on gardening and education initiatives and partner with area food pantries and soup kitchens to deliver their harvest to the hungry in Cedar Rapids. They also support many other local urban farms with seeds, transplants, equipment, and advice.

How to Help:

Individuals can support the work of Food at First by giving of their time, skills, land, tools, and monetary donations. Beginning farmers and volunteers who are familiar with bees, creating a market study or evaluation of a market for a new product are especially needed.

Corporations and organizations can provide support by providing access to land for urban farm-sites, encouraging employees or members to volunteer, and through donations in cash or in kind. Iowans are encouraged to contact Food at First for more information or to explore collaborations.

Description:

The Fields of Faith FRB Growing Project is a community initiative to help end hunger overseas by supporting communities in developing nations to grow their own food.

A collaboration between church congregations, businesses and farmers, the Fields of Faith FRB Growing Project raises funds that are sent overseas through the Foods Resource Bank (FRB) network.

As a Christian response to world hunger, Foods Resource Bank links the grassroots energy and commitment of the U.S. agricultural community with the capability and desire of small farmers in developing countries to grow lasting solutions to hunger.

How to Help:

Individuals, churches and other organizations in the Greenfield area and surrounding rural communities can support this Growing Project through fundraising, volunteering time and talents, or through other creative opportunities for partnership.

Iowans are encouraged to directly contact coordinator Mr. Dennis Lundy, to become involved with the Fields of Faith FRB Growing Project.

For more information about Foods Resource Bank or to learn about starting a new FRB Growing Project, please call (888) 276-4FRB or email admin@foodsresourcebank.org.

Description:

Members of First Presbyterian Church of Shenandoah set aside 2 - 5 cents for every meal they eat. (This guideline has been set by the “Cents-Ability” program.) On the last Sunday of every month they collect this offering during the last hymn of their worship service. Members bring their change forward and put it in a rattan fish. Half of the offering goes to their local food bank and the other half goes to the Presbyterian Hunger Program which fights hunger through projects in the United States and around the world. If members forget their change, or don't collect it at home during the month, they drop their pocket change or bills in the fish. No one misses this amount of money - and it definitely adds up over the year.

Members also contribute money to help fund an ecumenical “Seeds of Faith” field of corn or soybeans. Three other churches in the community participate: The Congregational United Church of Christ, the First Christian Church and the United Methodist Church. Fields of a number of acres, dependent on the amount raised, are planted by volunteer farmers. After the crop is harvested by these farmers, and sold, the money is distributed by the Foods Resource Bank in projects around the world to combat hunger.

How to Help:

Iowans can support this work by starting a similar program in their own church or organization.

Description:

Food 4 Thought ("F4T") provides both supplemental, weekend food packs and service opportunities to youth in Sioux City.

Their primary goal is to provide middle and high school students with supplemental weekend food packs during the school year to assist in battling hunger. Since hunger is a basic need that must be met prior to learning, F4T strives to assist with this need, so students can be better equipped to learn and attain their goals. The food packs are filled with easy to prepare, nutritious, non-perishable items that will supplement a young person's weekend meals.

Service to others is a fundamental principal that F4T incorporates. The program has been created to promote teamwork. There are various roles to be filled that enable the weekly assembly and distribution of food packs. Both adult and student volunteers are integral to the success of the program. The desire is to include youth in the F4T program so that they may be involved in reaching out and serving others in the community.

How to Help:

Food 4 Thought relies on a broad cross-section of community members to achieve their mission. Volunteer opportunities are available for both adults and students. Businesses are frequently involved by contributing either funds or food. Both individuals and businesses are encouraged to contact them directly for more information or to become involved.

Description:

The Food Bank for the Heartland provides emergency and supplemental food to people in need in Nebraska and western Iowa. They are a nonprofit organization that serves a network of over 325 food pantries, emergency shelters, after school programs, senior housing sites and rehabilitation centers in the area. During 2013, they distributed 13 million pounds of food to local nonprofit agencies that in turn delivered it directly to those in need in their communities.

Food Bank for the Heartland also operates its own programs that serve vulnerable populations directly, including Kids Cafe and the BackPack Program for children, and the Mobile Pantry, Fresh Produce, Food for Seniors and SNAP Outreach for adults.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the work of Food Bank for the Heartland by donating money, food, or time, or by volunteering to host a fundraiser. Donations of money and food are critical to sustaining the work of Food Bank for the Heartland. Volunteers are needed to work in the warehouse and office, and to help with special events, SNAP outreach, and community programs. For more information about how to become involved, contact them online.

Description:

The Food Bank of Siouxland was founded in 1991 to serve community charities in Sioux City with feeding programs to nourish the needy, the ill and children. The Food Bank strives to be responsive to the needs of its agencies, donors and volunteers. They were established to provide a year-round source of food to these organizations.

Today their outreach includes eleven counties in the Siouxland area. Currently, the Food Bank of Siouxland provides food to nearly 125 member agencies.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the Food Bank of Siouxland through volunteering or through donations of money or food. Volunteers are especially needed to organize fundraisers and food drives. Fundraisers are especially significant because the Food Bank of Siouxland is able to leverage every dollar donated into $17 worth of food. Food drives are also a source of significant support.

People who are interested in volunteering should call 712-255-9741, email info@siouxlandfoodbank.org or visit their website to get started.

Description:

The Food Bank of Southern Iowa is a private, non-profit charitable organization whose mission is to alleviate hunger through food distribution, partnership, and education. The Food Bank of Southern Iowa solicits, receives, inventories, and distributes donated food and grocery products. These products are distributed to partner agencies in 13 Southern Iowa counties who directly serve needy families and individuals through a variety of programs. As a non-profit food bank, their primary role is to provide food to the charitable agencies offering direct service to hungry Iowans.

The Food Bank of Southern Iowa has also implemented two programs in Southern Iowa. The HUSH program is a cooperative effort among the food bank, Department of Natural Resources, and deer hunters to provide deer meat to Iowans in need. The Backpack Buddies program provides food to low-income children who do not have access to free or reduced lunch programs.

How to Help:

The Food Bank of Southern Iowa is always in need of monetary donations to cover costs of operation, including warehouse rent and electricity for operating freezers. Iowans can donate online through their website. Donations of food are also welcomed, and volunteers are always needed to organize food drives.

People who are interested in supporting the Food Bank of Southern Iowa through donations or volunteering should contact Neil at 641-682-3403.

Description:

As a Christian response to world hunger, Foods Resource Bank (FRB) links the grassroots energy and commitment of the U.S. agricultural community with the capability and desire of small farmers in developing countries to grow lasting solutions to hunger.

FRB engages volunteers to raise money through "Growing Projects" for between 50-60 overseas programs a year. All of the programs focus on developing small-holder agriculture, often in the most remote and poorest regions of the world. Growing Projects are the heart and soul of FRB and have supported over 100,000 families since the first Growing Projects were created in 1999.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the work of Foods Resource Bank by starting or joining a Growing Project in their community. A Growing Project is a group whose members work together on a project or fundraiser to help farmers overseas become self-sufficient. Growing Projects include pumpkin patches, Sunday school gardens, revenue from an acre of field crops, pie auctions, and more. Each member plays a unique role and contributes to the Growing Project in different ways by offering what they have.

For more information about starting or joining a Growing Project, Iowans should call 515-421-5545 or email Joan Fumetti at joan@foodsresourcebank.org.

The Gilbert Agriculture Education Department and the Gilbert FFA Chapter are fighting hunger by planning, maintaining, and harvesting a 1/4 acre garden and a 1 acre sweet corn patch. Produce is harvested and delivered to local food pantries. Plants are started in the Horticulture Greenhouse and purchased from a local nursery. They receive some donations, but have one main sponsor through Winfield Solutions. They provide FFA members and Ag Ed students with financial support through a grant to fund the project. Over 70 students and members are involved in the process that runs from February through October.

How to Help:

Iowans can support this work by providing garden tools, bedding, vegetable plants, and donations.

Description:
Girl Scouts of Greater Iowa serves 67 counties in Iowa, two counties in South Dakota, and one county in Nebraska, where they carry out the Girl Scout mission of building girls of courage, confidence, and character, who make the world a better place.

Girl Scouts of Greater Iowa incorporates three keys to leadership: they help girls Discover themselves, Connect with others, and Take Action to create positive change in their communities. Girl Scout troops, interest groups, and individual scouts regularly partner with local organizations and lead or support efforts to end hunger locally and around the world. Over 19,000 girls and 4000 adult mentors are active in Girl Scouts of Greater Iowa, providing volunteers, ideas, and leadership that make the world a better place.

How to Help:
There are many ways for Iowans to support the Girl Scouts. Girls (grades k-12) can join a troop in their area, and adults (women and men over 18) can serve as adult mentors. Anyone who is interested in partnering on hunger (or in other ways) with Girl Scouts of Greater Iowa should contact them directly at (800) 342-8389 or info@gsiowa.org, or find a local Girl Scout troop through their online directory at http://www.girlscoutsiowa.org/troop.cfm.

Description:

The mission of Grace Lutheran Church in Des Moines is to bring the good news of God’s saving grace through Jesus Christ’s death and resurrection to all to be free to be people of God.

At Grace, this mission is expressed in many ways and is supported by all of their resources including time, treasure, talents, and the physical space of the church. Some of these include:

- Advocacy with Bread for the World (www.bread.org)
- Collaborations with Lutheran Services in Iowa (www.lsiowa.org) and the Des Moines Area Religious Council (DMARC) food pantry network, including a vegetable garden that is harvested for DMARC (www.dmarcunited.org), and regular donations of money and food
- Benevolence support at the synodical and national levels through the ELCA (Evangelical Lutheran Church in America) –www.elca.org
- A companion congregation relationship with Msindo Parish in the Pare Mountains of Tanzania
- Collaboration with Lutheran World Relief (www.lwr.org)
- Partnership with IA State Extension’s cooking and nutrition classes, including the “Buy, Eat, Live Healthy” (BELH) program (www.extension.iastate.edu)
- Participation in the annual Hunger Hike in Des Moines (www.dsmhungerhike.weebly.com)
- Fundraising campaigns for organizations such as ELCA World Hunger (www.elca.org/hunger)
- Confirmation class and Vacation Bible School service projects for Hope Ministries (www.hopeiowa.org)

Grace has an active companion congregation relationship with Msindo Parish in the Pare Mountains of Tanzania. Mission teams visiting Msindo have helped establish a community grain-milling operation and a dairy herd through Heifer International. They visit Africa, or welcome visitors from Tanzania to Des Moines, about every three years.

How to Help:
Individuals and organizations who are interested in learning more or collaborating in the work of Grace Lutheran Church are encouraged to contact the church office.

Description:

Grow The Food is a collection of community gardens in the Des Moines area with the goal of growing food to feed the local hungry. All of the food they grow is donated to local food pantries. They often grow over four tons of fresh vegetables and donate them to the Des Moines Area Religious Council, the Eddie Davis Community Center and the food distribution program at Trinity Methodist Church. Since 2013, their gardens have increased in area and their goal is to grow over eight tons of fresh vegetables to feed the local hungry.

Member gardens include Faith & Grace garden at St. Timothy's Episcopal Church in West Des Moines, Agape Garden at Ankeny First United Methodist Church, Urban Harvest at Urban Heights Covenant Church in Urbandale, and St. John's Lutheran Faith Garden in Des Moines.

How to Help:

Individuals and groups can support the work of Grow the Food by volunteering or donating to their member gardens. Volunteers are retirees, church groups, civic groups, students, neighbors and other people who want to enjoy fresh air and sunshine while helping other people. Volunteers help with planting, weeding, watering, harvesting and delivering to the food pantries. Donations of equipment or materials are also helpful from time to time. Their website has a list of current equipment needs.

Description:

The Growing Hope Foundation reduces hunger and poverty through the development of farmland in developing countries and training programs to train farmers in those countries how to farm effectively. The end goal is for communities in developing nations to be able to become more self-sustaining by learning how to make the land productive. Crops to be raised will not only provide food, but will also be marketed to provide income. They also support a variety of nonprofit organizations.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the activities of the Growing Hope Foundation by donating to their programs through their website. The Growing Hope Foundation will most likely be soliciting volunteers in the future to go to the places in which they are working with farmers and communities in the development and training process. Volunteers would be helping with a variety of tasks, including helping to train and providing support by laboring alongside the farmers of the community.

Description:

Growing Wapello Together is a collaborative initiative focused on increasing access to fresh and healthy food and reducing food insecurity in Wapello County. The group has been meeting since September of 2013.

Phase One of the project focused on understanding the problems of food insecurity and food deserts, identifying community assets, discovering where the need is greatest, and prioritizing solutions. Phase Two focused on community-owned actions to grow and expand existing programs (assets) into the areas of highest need. Focus areas included expanding Summer Food Service Programs, expanding and funding access to low-cost transportation options, bringing the Southeast Iowa Food Bank’s backpack program into additional schools, piloting a healthy food box initiative, and encouraging increased enrollment among SNAP eligible individuals.

Growing Wapello Together entered Phase Three in July of 2016, and is focused on strategic planning, identifying long-term partners and sources of funding, and moving to a more formal and sustainable organizational structure.

How to Help:

Individuals and organizations can support Growing Wapello Together by attending neighborhood meetings, participating in the strategic planning process, and taking action in focus areas by volunteering or through donations. They are encouraged to contact Mr. Joe Schulz to learn more about Growing Wapello Together or to become involved.

Description:

HACAP Food Reservoir is part of the larger HACAP organization, a nonprofit community action agency providing programs and services that work toward engaging low-income citizens in advancing from dependency to self-sufficiency.

The HACAP Food Reservoir distributes approximately 2.3 million pounds of food to 103 partner agencies, saving them over 2 million in food costs. HACAP also provides over 4,000 food boxes a year for families in need, serves as a food distributor for Holiday Assistance Programs, and operates the HACAP Adopt-a-Family program that links over 300 families with individuals and organizations wishing to support them.

How to Help:

Volunteers are needed to help with a variety of tasks, including running special events, checking in food donations, packing food boxes, and transporting food to local partners. Drivers and volunteers to assist with data collection are especially needed. People interested in volunteering should contact Mr. Greg Goodell at 319-393-7811.

Donations of money and food are also welcome. Financial donations help cover operating costs and purchase food - each dollar donated purchases approximately three meals. Food donations are an important source of food for the Food Reservoir, and volunteers are always welcome to organize a food drive. More information about how to help the HACAP Food Reservoir is available online.

Description:

Hands In Service Ministries works with Manos Hermanas, A.C., based in Guadalajara, Mexico in order to match needs and resources to alleviate hunger through mutual projects:

1. Partner with Texas Baptist Hunger Offering to provide intensive ecological micro gardening and animal husbandry training so that people can produce their own food in urban, suburban, and rural poverty belts
2. Partner with Leaf Nutrient, Inc., in a mutual project to integrate alfalfa cellular concentrate production with gardening and husbandry training for an ecological, self-sustaining community farm.
3. Partner with Limbs International to rehabilitate leg amputees with a novel prosthesis so that they can return to work and support their families.
4. Partner with Amigos Internacionalales, Inc. and Breedlove Dehydrated Foods to receive concentrated food supplements for distribution through a broad network of Mexican NGOs and community support committees that focus on hunger related needs: orphanages, shelters, homes for the elderly, after school and other feeding programs and stations, rehab centers, as well as directly to families living in urban and rural poverty belts.
5. Partner with different organizations to help families living in poverty belts to construct their own ecological outhouses (no smell, no flies) to break the cycle of fecal – oral contamination that propagates diseases that are important factors for chronic malnutrition.
6. Help families to eat better and more cheaply by recognizing their invisible spending and developing their own family budget through a home economics course, “¿Te Sobra Dinero?” (Do You Have Too Much Money?)
7. Helping families construct ecological outhouses, (no smell, no flies) in poverty belts to break the cycle of fecal - oral contamination for diseases that are an important factor for chronic malnutrition.
8. Teach simple ways to prevent and to remedy many of the common diseases that cause malnutrition with their reproducible materials available in English, Spanish, and Kiswahili.

Hands in Service Ministries is a broad based, 501 (c)(3) human needs organization that works to alleviate: hunger, thirst, illness, poverty, lack of purpose, and to improve quality of life for those in need. All of their services are provided without any limitation or distinction based race, creed, gender, or political affiliation.

How to Help:

Iowans are encouraged to watch an interview that explains their background and current project, or contact Dr. Baggett directly for more information about the projects or programs of Hands in Service Ministries. These programs can be supported through providing input and advice, volunteer time, and financial support. Iowans can also contact Dr. Baggett to request free, reproducible materials in English, Spanish, and Kiswahili that might be useful to groups who are working with hunger related problems or in poverty belts.

The Harlan CROP Hunger Walk is a community-wide event sponsored by Church World Service and organized by local volunteers to raise funds to end hunger.

CROP Hunger Walks help to support the overall ministry of Church World Service, especially grassroots, hunger-fighting development efforts around the world. In addition, each local CROP Hunger Walk in Iowa returns 25 percent of the funds it raises to hunger-fighting programs in its own community.

How to Help:

Individuals and organizations can support the work of the Harlan CROP Hunger Walk through volunteering to help organize the walk, fundraising and participating in the walk. For more information, contact Pat Davitt at pjdavitt@harlannet.com or Church World Service Regional Director Jordan Bles at 410-596-2664 or jbles@cwsglobal.org.

Description:

The people of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church strive to emulate and incarnate the open arms of Jesus Christ as he revealed God's love by embracing the broken, welcoming the outcast, and giving his life on the cross. The goal of their Hunger Ministries is to raise congregational awareness concerning the needs of the hungry through education, service opportunities and advocacy.

The Holy Trinity Food Pantry augments other pantries in the area and helps meet the needs of those who are hungry and do not meet the guidelines for DMARC food pantry assistance and need additional resources. The Food Pantry in open every Tuesday from 12:00 - 6:00 PM. It is located on the west side of the Fellowship Hall. The southwest door of the Fellowship Hall is used by clients during food pantry operation.

In addition to the food pantry, Holy Trinity Lutheran Church alleviates hunger through:

- Hearty Blessings - Make casseroles to freeze for people who need an extra hand or a quick meal.
- Backpack Buddies - Help kids at two Ankeny grade schools get the food they need over the weekend.
- ELCA World Hunger Appeal - Partners in assisting, aiding and advocating for the hungry globally.
- Love Lunches - Love lunches and snacks are served to local children in Ankeny at Sunset Park on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays throughout the summer months.
- Church Garden - All produce is shared through their Food Pantry

How to Help:

Iowans can support the Holy Trinity Food Pantry through donations of funds or food and by volunteering. Those with an interest in helping with the Backpack Buddies program should email Kristen Gray.

Hunger Ministries meetings are held on the first Thursday of the month from 6:00-7:00pm. Members of Holy Trinity are encouraged to drop by anytime, newcomers are encouraged to contact the church office ahead of time.

Individuals and organizations who are interested in exploring other ways to partner with Holy Trinity's Hunger Ministries are encouraged to contact the church office.

Description:

The Hoover Presidential Foundation is a nonprofit support group for the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library-Museum and National Historic Site in West Branch, Iowa, just east of Iowa City. It is a membership organization which sponsors events during the year, including Hoover’s Hometown Days, the annual August celebration of the birth of Herbert Hoover, the only Iowa native to become president.

Using his combined talents of engineering and management, Herbert Hoover organized a gigantic program for feeding the starving peoples of Europe during and after World War I. Returning to America, he put down on paper the spiritual, economic and political characteristics which enabled Americans to produce the materials needed to bring peace to the world and at the same time to discharge the social and spiritual commitment to give economic assistance to the people ravaged by war.

Members of the Foundation preserve and promote Hoover’s legacy, helping to sponsor special exhibits, building and renovation projects, and scholarships and programs that help bring history alive to students of all ages. Foundation members play an important part in making the Herbert Hoover Library-Museum and National Historic Site an Iowa treasure.

How to Help:

Individuals and organizations can support the work of the Hoover Presidential Foundation through donations, by volunteering, or by becoming members.

Description:

The Howard County Borlaug Hunger Walk is held in conjunction with other festivities of the Norman Borlaug Harvest Fest every September. Dr. Borlaug was born and raised in Howard county, attended school and graduated from the Crestwood High School. The Friday of the Borlaug Harvest Fest is "Inspire Day", with events held at the Borlaug Farm, which is being restored. 5th graders from nearby schools come to learn about Dr. Borlaug and what he did to save billions of lives.

Howard County Borlaug Hunger Walk places educational articles in the local newspaper and provides local schools with educational material on hunger and poverty. They also raise funds to fight hunger at home and abroad. Funds support the work of:

- Church World Service
- the Norman Borlaug Heritage Foundation (helping to fund a food packaging event during Inspire Day)
- the local food pantry at Community Action of Howard County
- the Prairie Springs Recreational Trail
- the Don Davis Good Samaritan Fund

How to Help:

Individuals, businesses, and congregations in Howard County can join in the Howard County Borlaug Hunger Walk as walkers and by raising money to support hunger alleviation. The Howard County Borlaug Hunger Walk encourages all Iowans to visit the Norman Borlaug Birthplace and see how he lived.

Description:

Howard-Winneshiek Community School District is located in Cresco, Iowa, the boyhood home of Dr. Norman Borlaug. They celebrate Dr. Borlaug every fall with a weekend celebration that also brings attention to the needs of children in the district, country, and world. The district has a high percentage of students qualifying for free and reduced price meals, and also offers a summer feeding program which is free to any child from preschool age to 18 years. They also participate in the backpack buddies program, which supplies students with meals over the weekend when they are not in school.

Howard-Winneshiek Community School District has strived for years to introduce students to healthier eating habits. These efforts were honored last year when the district was awarded the Healthier US School Challenge Gold Award. The first entire school district to receive this award, Howard-Winneshiek Community School District is noted nationally as one of the healthiest schools in the nation.

How to Help:

Description:

Hy-Vee ranks among the top 20 supermarket chains in the United States. Hy-Vee supports Iowan's well-being through their network of Registered Dietitians, their Seasons Online Magazine, and their Get Growing website.

Hy-Vee's philanthropy encompasses financial contributions to hundreds of causes, leadership roles in non-profit organizations and one-on-one volunteer contacts in the community. The company's autonomous structure fosters a spirit of entrepreneurship that allows stores to custom-tailor their contributions to meet the needs of their communities.

At the corporate level, Hy-Vee's giving focuses on the support of organizations that provide for the general well-being of children in regard to their physical, emotional, educational and cultural needs. Hy-Vee partners with Variety, the Children's Charity on the Cash for Kids program, which brings together grocery wholesalers, retailers, manufacturers and food brokers in a coupon redemption program to raise funds for children. Other events, activities and programs raise additional funds each year. Hy-Vee also supports the disaster relief work of the Red Cross through corporate donations and through partnerships between Hy-Vee stores and local Red Cross chapters.

How to Help:

Organizations that are fighting hunger in Iowa are encouraged to contact the manager at their local Hy-Vee store to explore opportunities for collaboration through employee volunteerism or donations.

Description:

The goals behind each of the IDALS Farm to School Program initiatives is to link schools with Iowa farmers; provide schools with fresh and minimally processed Iowa-grown food for inclusion in school meals and snacks, and encourage children to develop healthy eating habits while offering them hands-on learning activities.

Iowa Farm to School Chapter Initiative helps individuals and organizations establish Farm to School Chapters in their communities. Chapters can encompass an entire school district or simply be built around one school and a single project. They provide a resource packet with step-by-step instructions for starting a successful Farm to School chapter, and ongoing advice to chapters that register with them.

IDALS maintains a directory of farmers who are interested in participating in Iowa Farm to School programs.

As a part of the Growing Together initiative, FFA chapters receive incentives to plant a fruit or vegetable that can be included in a school meal.

"A" is for Apple Initiative supports teachers to get Iowa-grown apples into their classrooms and schools. Since 2008, the "A" is for Apple initiative has supported teachers with financial assistance, curriculum, and information about connecting with local Iowa apple growers.

The A Garden is the Way to Grow initiative offers Iowa schools the opportunity to apply for funding to create their own school garden. In 2013, funds of $350 were allocated to 20 school districts to buy the supplies necessary to create a garden or raised beds. In addition to funds, each participating school received a garden planner and seeds from Seed Saver Exchange along with either a nationally-recognized, elementary-level, garden-based curriculum "Growing in the Garden", or a refractometer / sap extractor.

Description:

The Bureau of Nutrition and Health Promotion of the Iowa Department of Public Health works to ensure that Iowans have the opportunity to live a healthy lifestyle by providing education and resources, building partnerships and supporting communities. The bureau administers programs and grants in partnership with a variety of community-based agencies and organizations.

Programs administered within the Bureau of Nutrition and Health Promotion include: the Iowa Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children, the Iowa Nutrition Network, Iowans Fit For Life and Iowa Community Transformation Grant.

The Iowa Nutrition Network is a partnership of public agencies, private organizations, and communities dedicated to promoting healthy lifestyles among all Iowans, particularly among low-income individuals and families. In its role as one of the SNAP-Education implementing agencies, the Iowa Nutrition Network provides funding to agencies who wish to provide nutrition education to schools where 60% or more of the students qualify for free and reduced price meals. They also provide resources to educators through the Pick a Better Snack program and the Play Your Way program.

How to Help:

Individuals and communities can collaborate with the Bureau of Nutrition and Health Promotion through the Iowa Nutrition Network's resources and through the Iowa WIC Program.

Description:
Imagine No Malaria works to eradicate death and suffering from malaria in Sub-Saharan Africa. They do this through grants provided through in-country boards of health. These resources provide education, prevention, treatment, and help to communicate best practices around malaria prevention.

Malaria is a part of the cycle of poverty in many of these places. Illness leads to the inability to harvest crops or time away from work, which reduces the money a family needs to sustain itself and provide adequate food. This in turn leads to a greater risk of contracting diseases like malaria. By addressing just one aspect of the cycle, we can benefit ALL aspects of the cycle.

How to Help:
Their work primarily focuses on community empowerment in Africa and Iowans can help by providing resources. They have a goal of raising $75 million throughout the United Methodist Church. Here in Iowa, they are aiming to raise at least $2 million to save over 200,000 lives. Donations can be made at www.inmiowa.org/donate. Additional resources for United Methodist churches to become involved are located at www.inmiowa.org/church. Any business or organization can find out more about how to be a partner in this effort at www.inmiowa.org/partners.

Description:

As an affiliate of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics, the Iowa Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics strives to improve the nation’s health and advance the profession of dietetics through research, education and advocacy. The Iowa Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics is a professional organization comprised of Iowans who share a personal and professional commitment to health and nutrition. Members include registered dietitians, registered dietitian nutritionists, dietetic technicians, students, educators, researchers, retired and international members.

Programs of the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics include the eatright.org website providing nutrition information for consumers, accreditation of academic programs and credentialing for dietetics professionals, an annual conference and peer reviewed journal, advocacy work and charitable work through the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics Foundation. The Iowa Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics advances the work of these programs in Iowa.

They also generate a number of nutrition manuals that are used throughout the United States and beyond for the training and education of food service personnel and are best known for their Simplified Diet Manual, currently published by Wiley.

How to Help:

Iowans are encouraged to learn more about nutrition online at eatright.org, use the Find an Expert feature to find a Registered Dietitian Nutritionist who can help individuals and organizations meet their nutrition goals, or contact the Iowa Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics to explore further opportunities for collaboration.

Description:

The Iowa Afterschool Alliance supports high quality programs that serve students outside of the traditional school day. They work to ensure that all Iowa children, youth, and families have access to quality out-of-school time opportunities in their community by:

- Developing policies and partnerships that build capacity at the state and local levels for high-quality afterschool programming,
- Connecting local providers with the resources and tools necessary to provide high-quality afterschool programming, and;
- Communicating critical data on the need and impact of afterschool programming to the public, partners, and other vital stakeholders.

The Iowa Afterschool Alliance maintains the Iowa Afterschool Opportunities Statewide Directory. Many of these afterschool opportunities alleviate hunger in the short-term by providing free meals and healthy snacks to participating children and reduce hunger over the long term by improving educational and career outcomes for the children they serve.

How to Help:

Afterschool programs often depend on the valuable contributions of members of the community. Afterschool program providers and allied organizations can support the mission of the Iowa Afterschool Alliance by joining as members or as funding partners. Individuals can support this work by becoming advocates for afterschool educational programming, volunteering at an afterschool program in their community, or becoming a mentor through the Iowa Mentoring Partnership.

Individuals and organizations are encouraged to email Ms. Rich to learn more about the work of the Iowa Afterschool Alliance and to become involved.

Description:

The Iowa Agricultural Development Division (IADD) of the Iowa Finance Authority was established by the Iowa General Assembly in 1980 to provide financial assistance to Iowa's grain and livestock producers. Operating expenses for the IADD are derived from modest application and service fees paid by program participants. The IADD also earns interest from a trust fund, but it does not receive any state tax dollars.

Their Beginning Farmer Loan Program and Loan Participation Program help Iowa farmers purchase agricultural land, depreciable machinery or equipment, breeding livestock or buildings. The IADD loans may also be used to improve existing buildings or farmland. These programs may be used independently or in conjunction with one another. Both loan programs can only be used for new purchases and neither program can be used to refinance existing debt.

The Beginning Farmer Tax Credit Program encourages owners of capital agricultural assets to lease them to Iowa's qualifying beginning farmers. The program provides the agricultural asset owner a credit against Iowa income taxes owed. The program is designed to help beginning farmers secure leased farm land or equipment.

How to Help:

Farmers and other individuals interested in using IADD programs should visit their website for more information about how to qualify and apply for support. Others who are interested in collaborating with IADD should contact them directly.

Description:

The Iowa Commission on Volunteer Service improves lives, strengthens communities, and fosters civic engagement through service and volunteering. The commission is comprised of 25 governor-appointed individuals who work with the staff and partner agencies to:

- Help agencies develop quality programs that use service as a strategy to fulfill their missions and address Iowa's greatest areas of need;
- Help engage Iowans in their communities by promoting service and expanding the volunteer base, and;
- Connect individuals with appropriate service opportunities by building the volunteer infrastructure.

The Iowa Commission on Volunteer Service also works with Iowa's network of Volunteer Coordination Centers and United Ways to provide localized volunteer service solutions.

How to Help:

Individuals can use their Volunteer Solutions website to find opportunities to volunteer in communities across Iowa. They also have a section of volunteer FAQs, and specific information for volunteers age 55 and over, volunteers with disabilities, and individuals interested in volunteering as a pathway to employment.

Organizations can partner with the Iowa Commission on Volunteer Service and become connected with funding opportunities, technical assistance on engaging community volunteers, and a variety of state-wide programs promoting and recognizing volunteerism. Organizations can also recruit volunteers through the Volunteer Solutions website.

Description:

The Iowa Department of Agriculture and Land Stewardship (IDALS) provides leadership for all aspects of agriculture in Iowa, ensures consumer protection and promotes the responsible use of Iowa's natural resources. Two IDALS programs of particular relevance to fighting hunger are the Iowa Farm to School Program and the Iowa Horticulture and Farmers Market Program.

The Iowa Farm to School Program links schools with Iowa farmers, provides schools with fresh and minimally processed Iowa-grown food for inclusion in school meals and snacks, and encourages children to develop healthy eating habits while offering them hands-on learning activities. The Iowa Horticulture and Farmers Market Program works to provide fresh, nutritious, unprepared, locally grown fruits, vegetables and herbs from farmers markets and farm-stands to nutritionally at-risk women, infants, children and low-income seniors through its Iowa Farmers Market Nutrition Program. The Iowa Horticulture and Farmers Market Program also works to expand farmers markets, farm-stands and CSA programs and develop new and additional farmers markets, farm-stands and CSA programs through its technical assistance program.

How to Help:

Individuals and organizations that are interested in working with the Iowa Department of Agriculture should contact them directly, or explore their website to find programs and initiatives that would be a good fit for collaboration.

Description:

The Iowa Department of Human Rights advocates for underrepresented Iowans and fosters hope within our communities by educating individuals, businesses and government entities about the needs, rights and responsibilities of all Iowans. As a state agency, we have a special responsibility to ensure accessibility to government in order to improve Iowans’ quality of life.

The Division of Community Action Agencies (DCAA) addresses issues facing low-income families by bringing resources to the community level. We link state and federal programs with 18 existing Community Action Agencies and other community-based organizations across the state to effectively serve elderly, disabled and low-income Iowans.

The Division of Community Advocacy and Services (CAS) celebrates and serves diverse populations and communities within the state that may need additional resources. CAS houses seven offices: Native Americans, African Americans, Asian and Pacific Islanders, Latinos, Women, Persons with Disabilities, and Deaf Services. The offices work in synergy, assisting and supporting individuals and underserved communities as they relate to each other.

The Division of Criminal and Juvenile Justice Planning (CJJP) conducts research, planning, data coordination, and information clearinghouse functions for the state's justice system. By overlaying research and statistics on policies and practices, we often see ways to gain better results. Then we work with internal and external partners to advise, assist, inform and advocate.

How to Help:

Description:

Across our great state, we Iowans have a lot in common. A dedication to hard work. A passion for the land. And a character rooted in faith and family. It's this common bond that weaves through the Iowa Farm Bureau. We are a membership base of Iowans who take pride in what we've accomplished. From the farm fields to our cities, there is a consistent work ethic that improves Iowa each and every day.

Farmers and Agriculture - Iowa Farm Bureau believes that agriculture is a critical component of Iowa's future. That's why we are proud to support wholesome food and farm families who grow and raise it, while promoting new opportunities for agriculture in the areas of wind energy, corn ethanol, soy biodiesel and more. Learn more.

Youth and Education - Iowans believe education is the key to achieving their dreams. That's why we invest in cultivating character and leadership in Iowa's youth in all parts of the state. Learn more.

Rural Vitality - The majority of Iowa's 3 million citizens live in rural areas. Vibrant communities start with people and the activity generated from their entrepreneurial spirit. Our Renew Rural Iowa program uses that spirit to help stimulate economic growth in communities of 30,000 or fewer people. Learn more.

Health and Wellness - Iowa Farm Bureau provides its members access to high-quality, affordable health care and boosts health and wellness resources in rural areas. Learn more.

Philanthropy - Giving back to the people who make Iowa what it is: one of the best places in the world to live, work and play. Learn more.

How to Help:

Iowans are encouraged to directly contact the Iowa Farm Bureau for more information about the organization, its work, and how they can partner or become involved.

Description:
The Iowa Food & Family Project unites Iowans in greater understanding, awareness and appreciation about the continuous improvement of today's farmers and the dedication of those involved in the food system to providing wholesome food for everyone. The Iowa Food & Family Project is an activity-led initiative that brings together Iowans from all walks of life -- farmers and farm families, teachers, students, health professionals, food retailers, manufacturers, bankers and lenders, academia, agronomists, transportation specialists and people of faith.

All those who are involved in the Iowa Food & Family Project believe in the increasingly significant role Iowa plays in feeding and fueling our state, nation and the world. They want all farmers to prosper. They believe that food should be respected and valued. They believe every person involved in today's food system brings something to the table. The Iowa Food & Family Project was created in 2011 by the Iowa Soybean Association, involves more than 35 dedicated partners and proudly serves as presenting sponsor of the Iowa Games and supporter of Live Healthy Iowa. It is funded in part by soybean, pork, beef, egg, corn, turkey and dairy checkoffs.

How to Help:
The Iowa Food & Family Project supports efforts to end hunger in Iowa through a variety of activities and events held throughout the year. Interested individuals and organizations should contact them about volunteering at their many unique events - from the "Fields of Champions" Cookout at the Summer Iowa Games in July to the Iowa State Fair Food & Agricultural Experience in August. Individuals registering on their Facebook page stand to win an exclusive on-farm tour.

Description:

The Iowa Food Bank Association (IFBA) is a collaboration of the eight Feeding America food banks that serve all Iowa's 99 counties. Together, the food banks serve over 1,000 non-profit organizations serving ill, infant or needy individuals. As an association, the organization is coordinating efforts to alleviate hunger by supporting Feeding America food banks that serve Iowa.

The eight Feeding America food banks that make up the Iowa Food Bank Association are: Food Bank of Iowa, Northeast Iowa Food Bank, River Bend Food Bank, Food Bank for the Heartland, HACAP Food Reservoir, Food Bank of Siouxland, Food Bank of Southern Iowa, and St. Stephen's Food Bank.

How to Help:

IFBA has opportunities for individuals and organizations to support the mission of Iowa's food banks through advocacy and monetary support. Individuals can learn more and become grassroots advocates for the hungry through a partnership with Feeding America. Individuals and organizations can also volunteer or donate to support the programs run by IFBA member food banks.

Description:

Iowa Gardening for Good is a project (soon to be a non-profit entity) created by the Blackmer family that focuses on involving people in growing things of value for a good cause.

The Blackmer family has lived on an acreage for over 10 years and in this time has organized a number of projects striving to involve more people in agricultural production and trying to link them to various types of service projects.

Currently, their largest project is with the Food Bank of Iowa and involves producing vegetables that are distributed through local food pantries and other partner agencies. Iowa Gardening for Good donates use of their land and equipment to grow vegetables and Tracy offers his gardening knowledge to supervise the project.

How to Help:

The primary labor source is volunteers that are scheduled primarily through the Food Bank of Iowa. Throughout the growing season, dates are available for volunteers to come help plant, tie up plants or pick produce.

Some companies like Walmart, Farm Credit Services, and Principal Financial have organized dates and paid volunteer time for their employees to use for projects such as this. Families, college students and many other individuals have also participated.

Iowans are encouraged to contact the Blackmer family for more information or to get involved.

Description:

The Iowa Healthiest State Initiative is a privately led public initiative intended to inspire Iowans and their communities throughout the state to improve their health and happiness. To achieve this goal, individuals, families, businesses, faith-based organizations, not-for-profits and the public sector will unite in a community-focused effort to make Iowa the healthiest state in the nation.

As part of Iowa's efforts to become the #1 state in well-being, the Healthiest State Initiative has identified five priorities on which to focus:

- Decreasing the number of Iowans who smoke
- Increasing consumption of fruits and vegetables
- Increasing the number of Iowans who are learning or doing something interesting daily
- Increasing the number of Iowans who have visited the dentist in the last year
- Increasing the number of Iowans who feel their boss treats them like a partner at work

The Iowa Healthiest State Initiative organizes "Healthiest State Walks" through partnerships in all 99 Iowa counties. They also endorse events whose primary purpose is to contribute to well-being in the state of Iowa. Endorsed events are promoted on the Healthiest State Initiative website calendar, and can also highlight their connection to the Healthiest State Initiative through a special logo.

How to Help:

Iowans interested in supporting the mission of the Iowa Healthiest State Initiative are encouraged to participate in Healthiest State Walks and other endorsed events and to explore their healthy living resource collections for individuals and families, schools, and employers.

Opportunities to partner with the Iowa Healthiest State Initiative include organizing Healthiest State Walks and submitting events for Healthiest State endorsement.

Iowans are encouraged to visit their website or contact them directly for more information or to explore other ideas for partnership.

Description:

Iowa Homeless Community Ambassadors is a diverse membership group of non-profit organizations and homeless individuals who have a common goal of ending homelessness. They seek to improve housing and supportive services for all homeless and nearly homeless people in the Polk County area.

The members of Homeless Ambassadors are dedicated to creating an organization which:
- remains diverse in its composition
- is action-oriented
- provides a stable forum for all organizations concerned about homelessness to express their opinions and share information with their colleagues, and
- builds on commonalities among the members but respects differences.

Iowa Homeless Community Ambassadors monthly meetings are forums for experts’ presentations on cutting-edge issues, discussion of proposed solutions, information exchange, and work group decision-making. As a body, Homeless Protection Network writes position papers and letters to policy-makers. Some members testify at the City Council and meet with decision-makers.

How to Help:

Iowans are encouraged to contact their staff for more information about the Iowa Homeless Community Ambassadors. Individuals can also support their work financially or as volunteers.

Description:

Iowa Interfaith Power & Light (Iowa IPL) engages and equips people of faith to become leaders in addressing the environmental and social justice consequences of climate change. Iowa IPL is a part of the national Interfaith Power & Light movement.

Iowa IPL’s Cool Congregations program has trained representatives of over 275 congregations across Iowa to activate their care for creation by helping members calculate and reduce their household energy use by roughly 10% per year. Their Food • Faith • Climate program teaches participants how their food choices impact climate change and how their faith traditions call them to respond with practical solutions. As part of the Food • Faith • Climate program, congregations sometimes choose to grow food to donate to local food pantries and soup kitchens.

How to Help:

Individuals can become involved by signing up for Iowa IPL’s e-action alerts. Description:
The Iowa Sister States - Yucatan began as the Iowa-Yucatan Partners of the Americas. It was established on September 24, 1965 by a group of business and civic leaders who met in Des Moines with then Iowa Governor Harold Hughes. The Yucatan Peninsula of Mexico was chosen as Iowa's partner because of its henequen production. Henequen was used in baler and binder twine, a common product used for harvesting Iowa's oats and hay crops.

With the help of the United States Department of State, a partnership was established between Iowa and the states of the Yucatan Peninsula of Mexico. The Iowa- Yucatan partnership has evolved over the years into an ongoing effort to alleviate hunger in the Yucatan Peninsula.

How to Help:
Interested Iowans can donate to the Yucatan committee's anti-hunger work through the homepage of Iowa Sister States. There are also opportunities to volunteer in a fundraising capacity, especially during the annual Des Moines Area Hunger Hike.

Description:

The Iowa WIC Program is administered by the Bureau of Nutrition and Health Promotion of the Iowa Department of Public Health. WIC (Women Infants, & Children) is a supplemental nutrition program for babies, children under the age of 5, pregnant women, breastfeeding women, and women who have had a baby in the last 6 months. WIC helps families by providing healthy foods, nutrition education, and referrals to other health care agencies.

The Iowa WIC Program works through a network of agencies and vendors. WIC agencies provide services locally to the WIC families including nutrition education, breastfeeding promotion and support, nutritious food packages, and referrals to other health programs. WIC vendors are stores that are approved by the State WIC office to accept WIC checks that are provided by the local WIC agencies.

Iowa WIC also maintains a collection of online community resources to support community partners and other professionals to help meet the nutrition and health needs of WIC clients and Iowa families.

How to Help:

Iowa communities and organizations are encouraged to use the online form or contact their local WIC agency to explore opportunities to work together. Stores wishing to become authorized WIC vendors are encouraged to learn more online and call 800-532-1579 to speak with a WIC Vendor Management Representative.

Description:

The Iowa Women's Foundation (IWF) is committed to improving the lives of Iowa's women and girls through economic self-sufficiency. With a diversified mix of action and funding including research, grantmaking, advocacy, education and collaboration they work to alleviate the causes and not just the symptoms of economic illiteracy.

- Research: IWF funds and supports research that enables it to invest wisely in activities that create pathways to economic success for women and girls.
- Fundraising/Grantmaking: At the heart of IWF is the goal of raising funds to provide grants to organizations that give IWF the power to advance the lives of women and girls each year.
- Advocacy: In order to lead change, IWF educates policy makers and other community leaders regarding issues and solutions.
- Education: IWF educates the community on the importance of improving the lives of women and girls.
- Collaboration: IWF works with social services organizations, government agencies, schools and businesses to address the needs of women and girls in a coherent and complete way.

IWF uses research to uncover the biggest barriers to women's success and their greatest needs, and targets their efforts accordingly to achieve their goals and make the most significant impact.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the work of IWF through donations, volunteering, attending their events, or collaborating towards shared goals. Donations fund the activities of IWF and enable them to continue their grantmaking. IWF is always in need of talented individuals as volunteers to help them fulfill their mission.

Organizations working to foster self-sufficiency and leadership skills among Iowa's women and girls are invited to apply annually for grants from IWF to help support their work. Recent grants have supported projects in the areas of education, gender equality, domestic violence, mentoring, financial management, self-esteem, and decision-making.

Description:

The ISU Community Design Lab partners with communities and organizations to combine local knowledge and design research expertise to create equity and resilience through inclusive, transferable, innovative strategies and tactics. They are a partnership between Iowa State University College of Design and the Office of Extension and Outreach. The Lab encompasses many fields of expertise including landscape architecture, architecture, sustainable agriculture, community and regional planning and community engagement. Their primary areas of focus include: health and wellness, infrastructure and prototypes and community revitalization.

Partnership with communities is the foundation of their work; while they bring professional expertise and research-driven methodology to the table, the local knowledge and decision-making provided by their community partners is essential.

The Agricultural Urbanism Toolkit is a program that was created through a Leopold Center Grant in 2014 at the Community Design Lab. Currently, they are developing local and regional food system plans in three Iowa communities: Cedar Rapids, Cresco and Des Moines. The toolkit process was created to assist in decision making and design for local and regional food systems using agricultural best management practices or tactics. The toolkit promotes public interest design through engagement and networking with community leaders in efforts to build a holistic food system that is uniquely designed for each community. This toolkit uses agricultural urbanism tactics (i.e. school gardens, farmers markets, and food hubs) as a strategy to promote local food system revitalization in communities.

How to Help:

Description:

ISU Extension & Outreach Nutrition Programs help low-resource families with children develop the knowledge, skills, attitudes and behavior needed to improve their diet. Families learn to make informed choices about low-cost, nutritious foods, to better manage family finances and to become self-sufficient. ISU Extension & Outreach Nutrition Programs include the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP) and the Family Nutrition Program (FNP), which together serve 25 counties across Iowa. These programs reach over 13,500 youth and 2,000 pregnant teens and families with young children each year.

The Loving Your Family – Iowa (LYF-IA) program delivers nutrition education to low-income families with children under age 10 in Iowa counties where Extension and Outreach does not have a nutrition education program. Using a “Train the Trainer” format, Extension and Outreach staff train and support staff from other agencies that already have an established relationship with young families (HOPES, PAT, etc.). They also maintain a collection of resources on their website.

How to Help:

Iowans who are interested in supporting the work of ISU Extension & Outreach Nutrition Programs should contact Ms. Hradek to find out which programs are active in their county. Individuals and families who wish to find out more about the nutrition education resources offered in their area should contact them online. Individuals and organizations who are interested in more information about Loving Your Family-IA program should contact Justine Hoover, LYF-IA Program Coordinator at jhoover@iastate.edu.

Description:

Food packaged by Jasper County Kids Against Hunger is distributed to hungry people in the United States and around the world. Food has been distributed through Liberty Ministries to local food banks in Iowa and to Joplin, MO. Larger quantities have been sent to established orphanages and schools in Haiti, Honduras, Guatemala, Albania and South Africa. Since the Jasper County organization began in 2009 nearly 200,000 meals have been packaged. Each meal costs approximately 25 cents for food, packaging, materials and shipping.

How to Help:

Donations may be sent to Jasper County Kids Against Hunger in care of Bill Bennett, Treasurer, 513 South Third Avenue, East, Newton, IA 50208. In addition to donations, interested groups or individuals may form a team of 12 members and join in a packaging event. It costs $360 to host a team of 12 or $30/person. Individuals may also arrange to host a packaging event for their group. Typically Jasper County Kids Against Hunger hosts three packaging events a year.

Description:

With a commitment to those linked to the land, John Deere supports a higher quality of life for people around the world through advanced products and services.

John Deere supports economic development, resiliency and safety programs, and community relations activities in communities where they operate. In Iowa, these include Des Moines, Dubuque, Quad Cities, Ottumwa, and Waterloo. Key partners in John Deere communities include chambers of commerce, economic development corporations, local United Ways and the organizations they support, food banks and the American Red Cross.

Globally, John Deere aspires to transform under-resourced agricultural communities in developing countries through distinctive and sustainable solutions for world hunger focused on farmer training, value-chain enhancement, and water access and use. Key partners include KickStart, Opportunity International, TechnoServe, the World Food Program, Water.org, and PYREXA Global. John Deere also partners with Iowa communities to alleviate hunger overseas through Foods Resource Bank Growing Projects.

How to Help:

Iowans who are interested in partnering with John Deere to alleviate hunger are encouraged to visit their website for more information and to explore possibilities. John Deere partners with organizations with 501c(3) status through John Deere Foundation Grants, National Corporate Sponsorships, and Community Relations Contributions.

John Deere Foundation Grants support initiatives that create lasting impacts for communities and constituencies served by the requesting organization. National Corporate Sponsorships support select national organizations, programs, and events that benefit participants and present John Deere and its products to their constituents. Community Relations Contributions include monetary donations, gifts in kind, and local sponsorships that improve the quality of life in communities where John Deere has a major presence.

Description:

The Johnston Partnership unites local organizations to provide a safe, healthy and nurturing place to live, work and grow by establishing strong community partnerships. Their programs include the JUMP youth mentoring program and the Closet at Crown Point, a food pantry and clothing closet operated in partnership with DMARC. The food pantry is open to eligible families and community members in Johnston and the Johnston School District Tuesdays and Saturdays from 10am-2pm at Partnership Place 5870 Merle Hay Road, Suite D, Johnston.

How to Help:

There are many volunteer opportunities at the Johnston Partnership. Volunteers are especially vital to the effective operation of the Johnston Food Pantry, where they greet clients, bag groceries and personal items, re-stock shelves, pick up orders from DMARC, the Iowa Food Bank and other donors, handle office work, and serve on committees.

In addition to city funding, financial and other support from our church and business partners are vital to the Johnston Partnership's ability to serve neighbors in need. Churches or business that would like to become a partner of the Johnston Partnership, should contact their Program Director, Shawna Beron, at director@johnstonpartnership.org for more information.

Description:

Karadah Project International creates international problem-solving partnerships that increase understanding, skills and awareness of the world, particularly focused on Iraq and Afghanistan.

After two tours in Iraq as an Army Reserve Civil Affairs officer, LTC Rick Burns concluded that what is needed most in Iraq is not more money, but stronger mentoring and partnering relationships. Building on the Sister Cities International Friendship Partnership he helped establish at the end of his second tour in Iraq between Council Bluffs, Iowa and the Karadah District Council, Rick established the nonprofit Karadah Project International. Their mission is to build long-term partnering and mentoring relationships between individuals and groups in Iraq and the United States. They are also active in Afghanistan, where they work with the Shindand Women’s Social Foundation to build sustainable goat herds for villagers in Khairabad.

How to Help:

Donations can be made online. Individuals and organizations can also contact Rick Burns directly to find out more about the work of Karadah Project International and how to partner or become involved.

Description:

Kids Against Hunger - Our Quad Cities is part of Kids Against Hunger, an international food relief organization working to save the lives of starving people. Kids Against Hunger uses teams of people who donate their time, energy, and finances to help bag life saving food. Quad City people of all ages package meals made up of: rice, soy, 6 vegetables, and 21 vitamins and minerals. The cost of each meal is 25¢. Kids Against Hunger - Our Quad Cities provides meals for hungry kids in Nicaragua, Honduras, Haiti and the Quad Cities (Davenport, Bettendorf, Moline, and Rock Island).

How to Help:

Volunteers are needed to organize packaging events, in which volunteers bag life saving food for hungry people. Packaging events are sponsored by an organization that can bring together a team (or teams) of 12 volunteers. The cost and number of volunteers is flexible. A typical example is $360 per team to package 1,440 meals in an hour. Representatives of schools, churches, or other organizations that would like to host a Packaging Event should call John or Gail Kessler at (309) 762-0437. Volunteers are also needed to join the Kids Against Hunger - Our Quad Cities team, where they would help setup and monitor packaging events.

Description:
Kiwanis is a global organization of volunteers dedicated to improving the world, one child and one community at a time. The Kiwanis Nebraska-Iowa District is an organization of 190 individual clubs, with approximately 6,000 Kiwanis members working toward the goal of "serving the children of the world."

Kiwanis clubs contribute to their communities through a variety of voluntary-service and fund-raising activities.

Activities focused on childhood hunger in Iowa include support for community nutrition projects through partnerships with:
- Iowa State University Extension and Outreach Nutrition Programs
- Nebraska and Iowa food pantries
- Food Banks' BackPack Program

These hands-on projects provide children from food insecure families with:
- Slow cooker and fresh produce classes taught by extension instructors with class participants receiving a slow cooker for their family and kitchen equipment they might otherwise not have
- Fresh produce donated from community, faith, school, and backyard gardens; meal-in-a-bag kits that teach nutritious meals easily prepared by elementary children; and similar programs to feed and empower food insecure families
- Donated groceries through "Red Barrel" food collections and "sack Saturday/Sunday" food drives
- Back pack foods for children to eat on the weekends and holidays throughout the school year

Young Children Priority One is an ongoing community service program of Kiwanis International that addresses the needs of children age 0-5 by focusing on 4 key areas:
1. maternal and child health
2. child care and development
3. parent education and support
4. safety and pediatric trauma

How to Help:
Individuals can join in the work of Kiwanis by becoming a member of their local Kiwanis club and joining in their community service work. Individuals, groups and organizations that would like more information about contributing towards Kiwanis's mission through partnerships should contact Mr. Bob Dunaway at bodbunaway@gmail.com.
People who are interested in starting new Kiwanis clubs in their communities should contact Ms. Jan Burch at Burchhr@aol.com or 515-991-1483.

Description:

Land O’Lakes, Inc. is one of America’s premiere member-owned cooperatives. They offer local cooperatives and agricultural producers across the nation an extensive line of agricultural supplies, as well as state-of-the-art production and business services. They also are a leading marketer of dairy-based food products for consumers, foodservice professionals and food manufacturers.

Alleviating hunger is Land O'Lakes' top human services priority. Land O'Lakes has long donated tons of food to emergency feeding programs and food banks through Feeding America, the nation's largest hunger-relief organization. The donated food goes to more than 62,000 programs, serving 23 million people each year.

The Land O'Lakes Foundation is committed to improving the quality of life in communities where Land O'Lakes, Inc. has members, employees, plants and facilities:

- Land O'Lakes Foundation proactively helps rural communities prosper and prepare for tomorrow by donating resources that develop and strengthen organizations dedicated to hunger, education, youth and community donations.
- Land O'Lakes employees are active in the community volunteering individually, and in groups during company sponsored service events. Volunteer programs include projects with a hunger focus, nationwide support for local United Way Agencies, company match of employee gifts to local food shelves, and employee growth and development through volunteerism.
- Answer Plot® Community Gardens engage multiple groups in various communities to grow, harvest and donate fresh produce to local food shelves. FFA students, with support from Answer Plot® and local co-ops, are responsible for the garden as it grows throughout the summer.
- The Foundation’s International Development department’s goals are to provide meaningful humanitarian assistance; help develop international experience within Land O'Lakes; and generate a positive presence and image for the company in current and potential overseas markets. Volunteer projects are generally short term international assignments and typically range from two to six weeks in length.

How to Help:

Iowans are encouraged to contact their local Land O'Lakes cooperative directly or contact the foundation online or by emailing LandOLakesFoundation@landolakes.com for more information or to explore a partnership.

Description:

Leaf Nutrient, Inc. has been making a notable difference in the mental and physical health for malnourished children and adults in Mexico since 1988 with just 10 grams, or two teaspoons, of alfalfa extract concentrate added to their daily diet. This provides enough extra balanced protein, vitamins, and minerals for normal growth.

The children of families that participate are easily distinguished on the street from those whose families do not participate. They also do much better in school. Since entering the first village in rural Mexico, approximately 150 villages participate in LNI’s program. Many of these are part of the Coahuila State Family Development Program, DIF. These villages benefit from the donation of sets of the unique crushing machines and the training to process the extract themselves. The extract has been included in noodles distributed to hundreds of families and as a part of the public school lunches. Every day, approximately 10,000 children in Mexico participate in the program with the inclusion of the concentrate in their typical Mexican dishes: tortillas, bread, rice, lemonade, soup, hot sauce, etc.

The simple village level process uses machines built in the country: the ladies clean and disinfect their alfalfa, they use the machines to crush it and to squeeze out the juice, and then they heat the juice so that the protein coagulate floats. This delicious coagulant juice concentrate, or extract, is composed of 50% balanced protein, chlorophyll, vitamins, and minerals. The leftover fiber pulp is fed to the family’s goats and cattle with no loss of milk production. Since the farmers already grow alfalfa to feed their stock, the alfalfa concentrate could be considered almost “free.”

Leaf Nutrient, Inc. is currently implementing this program in a partnership with Hands in Service Ministries and local communities for a model program to alleviate malnutrition on a broader scale by integrating the alfalfa cellular concentrate production with gardening and animal husbandry for an ecological, self-sustaining community farm.

An unrealized goal of LNI is to build a factory adjacent to a large dairy farm in both Mexico and the USA to provide a commercial source of dehydrated alfalfa juice concentrate that could be stored for one year. Additional funds and a new generation of volunteers are needed to expand this successful program. Leaf Nutrient, Inc. (LNI) is a charitable 501(c)(3) organization, founded in 1988 and incorporated in 1990 in the state of Wisconsin to combat malnutrition among children living in poverty in Mexico and other underdeveloped countries.

Description:

The Leopold Center for Sustainable Agriculture is a research and education center on the campus of Iowa State University created to identify and reduce negative environmental and social impacts of farming and develop new ways to farm profitably while conserving natural resources. The Center's work is focused in these initiatives - ecological systems research, marketing and food systems research, policy research and cross-cutting research that bridges all areas (water, energy, soil and alternative farming systems).

The Leopold Center supports projects in a variety of areas that enhance sustainability for all Iowa agriculture. They supported the Food Access and Health Work Group for several years after it began operation in Iowa.

The Leopold Center’s Competitive Grants Program is open to all Iowa educational and non-profit organizations. Each year, the Center selects new research and demonstration projects to fund. A Request for Pre-proposals (RFP) is issued in June of each year for funding in the next calendar year.

Many of the grants funded by the Leopold Center focus on the science of sustainability and applied research and demonstration projects. However, education and outreach is an important component of sharing knowledge and technology, so sometimes grants result in resources that can be used in the classroom. The Leopold Center posts these resources on their website.

How to Help:

Individuals and organizations who are interested in participating in or partnering with the Leopold Center's programs should contact them directly for more information. Organizations interested in funding through the Leopold Center's Competitive Grants Program can find out more online.

Description:

Linn Grove United Methodist Church has supported their local school’s hot lunch program by providing financial assistance families to who fall behind in their payments for school lunches. Many students receive free and reduced lunch through federal funding, but there are others who “fall through the cracks” when families go through difficult financial times. Each month they provide support for these families. During the summer when school was not in session and children are not receiving the food they receive during the school year, Linn Grove United Methodist Church provided bags of food each week for five families.

Bloomfield United Methodist Church has an on-going food drive. The foods gathered are taken to Bidwell Riverside, the only food pantry on the south side of Des Moines.

How to Help:

Interested Iowans should contact Rev. Cindy Hickman to find out how to match their talents with the church’s programs.

Description:
Lutheran Services in Iowa’s Refugee Community Services Program provides extended support services to refugees in the Des Moines area. Typically, newly arrived refugees in the U.S. receive only 90 days of formal support, making it difficult to adequately address the vast language and cultural barriers that often await them.

The Refugee Community Services Program at Lutheran Services in Iowa (LSI) helps meet refugees’ ongoing needs through English as a Second Language classes, intensive work readiness classes, elder services, community gardening and capacity building initiatives with local service providers and community representatives.

More information about refugee services is available through contacting Ms. Hillary Burbank at hilary.burbank@lsiowa.org or Mr. Zachary Couture at zachary.couture@lsiowa.org.

How to Help:
Iowans can support the Refugee Community Services Program through in-kind donations, financial donations, or by volunteering as an English as a Second Language tutor or with the urban agriculture program. Corporate volunteers can also help with the intensive work readiness classes through providing guest speakers, conducting practice interviews, or hosting a 2 hour tour and job readiness class for refugees at their place of business.

Individuals and corporations interested in learning more about volunteering should contact Nick Wuertz at 515.271.7443 or nicholas.wuertz@LSIowa.org.

Description:

Many Hands for Haiti runs feeding programs established primarily in the rural area of Pignon. They feed through established organizations, such as schools, hospitals, and churches. They prefer to purchase food locally, as it stimulates economic development and rewards local farmers and business people. They also partner with Convoy of Hope, Meals from the Heartland, and Outreach, Inc., to provide free, prepackaged meals from the United States.

In 2013, they fed over 400,000 meals in Haiti and expect to provide even more over the 2014 year. In September 2013, Many Hands for Haiti started a new program called Thrive for 5 which provides meals 5 days a week to over 130 children ages zero-five, along with other developmental strategies. Many Hands for Haiti’s feeding programs are funded entirely through private donations at this point.

How to Help:

Many Hands for Haiti sends teams to Haiti once or twice a month from all over the United States, but a large base of their teams come from Iowa. Most groups that go do a community feeding through the hospital, church, or school in the area. Iowans who want to help distribute the food to the actual end-users can go on a trip.

Many Hands for Haiti also works in cooperation with Meals from the Heartland and Outreach, Inc for packing events. Also, many people support feeding programs through donations. More information is available on their Facebook page.

Online Profile Link: http://www.worldfoodprize.org/en/events/iowa_hunger_summit/the_iowa_hunger_directory/organizations_fighting_hunger/?action=detail&memberID=44055

Description:

Mary’s Meals provides daily meals to chronically hungry children in a place of learning. In this way the hungry child is attracted to the classroom where they can gain a better future for themselves and their community. The main focus of Mary’s Meals is their school feeding program but they also have a long history of providing emergency relief to vulnerable regions around the world. They occasionally provide residential care for children when funds allow and when this complements their school feeding program.

Mary’s Meals grew out of a response to the Bosnian conflict in the early 1990s. Many of the people who work for Mary’s Meals are motivated by their religious faith, but Mary’s Meals is not a faith-based organization, and people of every and no creed find common ground in the humanitarian focus of Mary’s Meals.

Iowans support the mission of Mary’s Meals through fundraisers including dodge ball tournaments, walk/run events, school activities, and more. Iowa Volunteer Leader Ellen Miller travels to approximately three k-12 schools each month to facilitate hands-on activities and presentations on hunger and poverty around the world.

How to Help:

Individuals, organizations, and faith communities can support the work of Mary’s Meals by making a donation or volunteering. Volunteers spread awareness, raise funds, and offer prayer support. Larger groups and organizations can also sponsor a school.

Contact their Iowa-based organizer, Ellen Miller at ecosmo@mchsi.com for local volunteer opportunities or to schedule a presentation at your school or church group.

Description:

The mission of Matthew 25 Ministry at Faith Lutheran Church is to feed the hungry, help the homeless, and clothe the poor.

The ministry helps inform the congregation and others about the issues of hunger and opportunities to feed and clothe those in need and encourages individuals to volunteer in areas with the greatest need. Their volunteer opportunities include: Bringing food for the DMARC Red Barrel, donating clothes for needy children at Crestview Elementary School in Clive, working in the Faith & Grace Garden, preparing and serving meals at the Children and Family Urban Movement Supper Club, making egg casseroles for Salvation Army, joining Faith Stitchers to make hats, prayer shawls, and wash cloths.

Four times a year, Faith Lutheran Church hosts homeless families for a week at the Gathering House as part of the community-wide Family Promise program. Matthew 25 works with volunteers to prepare the Gathering House for their guests, prepare meals, serve as overnight caretakers and when the week is over prepare the Gathering House for its other uses.

How to Help:

Description:

Mid-Sioux Opportunity, Inc. is a not-for-profit Community Action Agency established in 1965 to fight poverty at a local level by assisting low-income families in Northwest Iowa to become self-sufficient. Mid-Sioux manages 14 federal, state, and local programs that are designed to help families and children grow through educational, health, and financial assistance.

Their Emergency Food Pantry program operates out of their Cherokee and Sioux Center Outreach Offices. A three-day supply of food is provided to families who are out of food and money. Through their Food for Life program, families in need can also receive packages of frozen meat that are donated by local livestock producers.

Mid-Sioux also provides WIC services in Northwest Iowa. WIC (Women, Infants, & Children) is a supplemental nutrition program for babies, children under the age of 5, pregnant women, breastfeeding women, and women who have had a baby in the last 6 months. WIC helps families by providing healthy foods, nutrition education, and referrals to other health care agencies.

How to Help:

Description:

The Midwest Dairy Council, an affiliate of National Dairy Council, is the nutrition education division of Midwest Dairy Association. The Council is dedicated to dairy nutrition research and education through the investment of more than 8,000 dairy farm families across 10 Midwestern states, and is committed to child health and wellness through their collaborative program, Fuel Up to Play 60.

Fuel Up to Play 60 is a school wellness program, which encourages youth to choose nutrient-rich foods first and get out and play at least 60 minutes each day. It has helped to make wellness part of the game plan in more than 73,000 schools across the county, including more than 12,000 schools in the Midwest. The Midwest Dairy Council has a variety of programs to help school and youth-led efforts to improve access to nutritious foods.

Through its affiliation with the National Dairy Council, the Midwest Dairy Council supports the work of the Feeding America food banking network. In 2012, the National Dairy Council, Feeding America, and the Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics formed the Future of Food partnership to increase the availability of nutritious, safe and affordable foods across the country by through innovative efforts to help alleviate hunger. Their $10,000 nutrition initiative grants support nutrition education and increased access to dairy products and other in-demand nutrient-rich foods.

The Midwest Dairy Council also participates in the U.S. Dairy Sustainability Commitment, which involves ongoing research and education efforts to meet humanity's demand for safe and nutritious dairy products while conserving natural resources and making positive contributions to the economic, environmental and social good.

How to Help:

Iowans can work with the Midwest Dairy Council to improve access to nutritious foods by joining their Fuel Up to Play 60 campaign. There are resources for students, educators, and members of the community to become involved. Online Profile Link:
http://www.worldfoodprize.org/en/events/iowa_hunger_summit/the_iowa_hunger_directory/organizations_fighting_hunger/?action=detail&memberID=42539

Description:

Milestones Area Agency on Aging offers senior meals at over 60 meal sites located in a 17 county area. Anyone age 60 and over receives their meal on a contribution basis. Income and ability to contribute do not determine eligibility. This also includes home delivered meals in most areas. Milestones Area Agency on Aging also has a variety of other programs to support Iowans as they age along with providing information about community services to their family caregivers.

How to Help:

The Milestones Area Agency on Aging is in need of volunteers to support their meal programs, from delivering meals to kitchen work. People can also contact the Milestones Area Agency on Aging to ask about opportunities to serve as advocates for the elderly and for the work of Area Agencies on Aging. More information is available online.
Monsanto Company

Type of Work: Corporate

Online Profile Link:
http://www.worldfoodprize.org/en/events/iowa_hunger_summit/the_iowa_hunger_directory/organizations_fighting_hunger/?action=detail&memberID=46232

Description:

Monsanto Company delivers agricultural products that support farmers all around the world. As an agriculture company with deep roots in rural America, Monsanto is committed to do their part in fighting rural hunger in America through partnerships and philanthropy.

Monsanto employees fight rural hunger as part of a coordinated volunteer effort called MonsantoTogether, through which Monsanto employees also earn donations for qualified non-profit organizations where they volunteer for a minimum of 20 hours.

Monsanto works in partnership with farmers, students and others in rural communities to end hunger through the America's Farmers Food Drive, America's Farmers Grow Communities, Invest an Acre, and support for the National FFA Organization's hunger initiative Feeding Our World - Starting at Home.

In addition to their work in rural America, Monsanto also works to improve the lives of people around the world through the Monsanto Fund, the philanthropic arm of the Monsanto Company.

How to Help:

Through the Invest an Acre program, farmers can donate an acre or more of their crop to food banks through the local ADM elevators, and Monsanto will match farmer donations, dollar for dollar. Feeding America distributes the farmer donations and the Monsanto monetary match to participating food banks.

Farmers and organizations in rural communities can partner with the Monsanto Fund to fight hunger through their America's Farmers Grow Communities program. Farmers can visit GrowCommunities.com to enroll. Organizations and community members can suggest their project by planting their idea.

Nonprofit organizations in communities where Monsanto works are encouraged to reach out to their local Monsanto Site contacts to explore possible areas of collaboration, including employee volunteerism and US Site Grants.

The Dallas County Family Development Center is the information, application and referral center for all of the income-eligible programs offered by New Opportunities, Inc. to serve the residents of Dallas County.

In an emergency situation where there is a shortage of food individuals and families may go to the Family Development Center at 2814 1st Street, Perry, IA (inside Crossroads Church). The staff will then provide a food package according to the number of people in the household. The food pantry can only be accessed every 90 days, per household per emergency situation. There is no charge for the food pantry, but they do require proof of address and income. The Dallas County food pantry serves Perry, Dawson, Bouton, Woodward and Minburn.

New Opportunities is partnering with the Food Bank of Iowa for their Mobile Food Pantries. The mobile pantries distribute fresh produce, protein, and non-perishable items and build awareness of the need of food assistance in the community.

Through the SHARE program, individuals can purchase food at discounted prices in exchange for two hours of volunteering. This applies to anyone, no matter an individual's income level.

The Dallas County Family Development Center is part of the New Opportunities, Inc. network.

How to Help:

Iowans can support New Opportunities' work through volunteering and by providing monetary donations for their various programs.

Description:

The North Liberty Community Pantry provides emergency food and clothing assistance. Food and clothing services are available to families in North Liberty and other small towns in Johnson County. Families are able to seek out food services as often as once per week.

The NLCP encourages families to choose the food items they need with few limits. Services provided in a client-choice method leads to less waste and a respectful environment. Food services provided to families assist them in meeting their needs so they can divert funding towards maintaining their household rather than purchasing food.

The NLCP also maintains a garden to provide fresh produce for clients and the community.

How to Help:

Iowans can volunteer or donate to help to feed local individuals and families. More information is available on their website and Facebook page.

Description:

Most farmers’ market mission statements include the notion of increasing the consumption of healthy local foods. The Northeast Iowa Food & Farm Coalition also believes that all people should have access to good food – even those with limited ability to pay for that food. A creative coupon program is making sure that both goals can be achieved in three northeast Iowa communities.

How to Help:

The Northeast Iowa Farmers Market Coupon program is funded by donations. There are currently 3 market partners: Waukon, Riceville and New Hampton. Iowans can support this work with an online donation, or contact them directly to explore other ways to get involved.

Description

The Northeast Iowa Food Bank provides nutritious food and grocery products to nonprofit organizations and individuals in Northeast Iowa, while offering hunger education programs to the community and those in need. The Northeast Iowa Food Bank works with approximately 200 member organizations to distribute food throughout 16 counties.

How to Help

The Northeast Iowa Food Bank welcomes support through donations of funds, food, and volunteering. Every dollar donated to the food bank is leveraged to provide $11.91 worth of food to Iowans in need.

Those interested in providing monetary support should contact Mr. Mike Lind at mlind@feedingamerica.org.

Food donations are also welcome, and are received by Ms. Sheri Huber-Ottling: shuber-ottling@feedingamerica.org.

There are also many opportunities for volunteers to support the work of the Northeast Iowa Food Bank. These include volunteering at the food bank itself and helping with community outreach events such as food drives. Those interested in volunteering should contact Mr. Patrick Bird at pbird@feedingamerica.org or visit their volunteer page.

Description:

The Office of the Governor of Iowa is a major contributor to the Food Bank of Iowa. The office oversees the food bank drives of all state agencies. In 2012 they raised close to $4,000 from the Governor’s office alone. A large portion of this came from the Governor’s Food Bank Silent Auction, which included memorabilia from all State Universities and many other excellent items. When one includes all State Agencies that number climbs to more than $80,000. The Governor is a huge advocate for the Food Bank and would encourage all Iowans to donate to their local chapter!

How to Help:

Iowans should call the Governor’s office at 515-281-5211 to inquire about volunteer opportunities. The Governor’s office also encourages Iowans to be in direct contact with their local food banks to support local efforts to end hunger.

Description:

One Acre Fund works with smallholder farmers in East Africa to become significantly more productive and so that they can grow their way out of hunger and poverty. They provide a complete set of services within walking distance of the farmers they serve. The service bundle includes distribution of seed and fertilizer, financing for farm inputs, training on agricultural techniques, and market facilitation to maximize profits from harvest sales.

One Acre Fund began in East Africa and currently serves farmers in Kenya, Rwanda, Burundi and Tanzania. Ninety-six percent of their field staff are local African nationals who live and work among the farmers they serve. In addition to supporting smallholder farmers, One Acre Fund helps their staff build meaningful and fulfilling careers through their leadership development program.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the work of One Acre Fund through individual donations or by joining Chapters. One Acre Fund Chapters are comprised of people who have made a long-term volunteer commitment to promoting One Acre Fund within their networks and communities. The Chapters organize annual fundraising events, introduce staff to potential corporate, foundation and individual supporters and act as representatives for One Acre Fund within their area.

Iowans are encouraged to contact One Acre Fund staff online for more information or to become involved.

Description:

Panera Bread of Iowa operates Panera Bread bakery-cafes throughout Iowa. They show their appreciation to the communities they serve not only in their bakery-cafes, but also by participating in charitable events, donating to local charities through their Operation Dough-Nation® program, and donating their end of the day bread to local food banks, pantries, and soup kitchens through their Day-End Dough-Nation program.

Panera welcomes the opportunity to support community events, fundraisers and other charitable efforts by providing in-kind bakery products and/or gift certificates when they are able. They have a special commitment to supporting Iowa schools’ educational and fundraising goals.

Their Community Breadbox program ensures that cash donations from Panera Bread feedback directly to the community. Each bakery-cafe has a Community Breadbox collection container at each set of registers, encouraging customers to donate to a critical non-profit organization in the community. These cash donations are matched dollar-for-dollar by Panera Bread of Iowa and donated directly to the organization.

How to Help:

Schools and nonprofit organizations may request donations of bakery products or gift certificates online. Local community food banks or organizations that would like more information on how to potentially become involved in their Day-End Dough-Nation programs should contact John Kauffman, Marketing and Public Relations Manager, at jkauffman@paneraiowa.com.

Individuals, who would like to contribute to their efforts to assist local non-profit organizations in the communities they serve, are encouraged to please look for the Community Breadbox collection containers at their neighborhood Panera Bread bakery-cafe.

Description:

The Planting Seeds / Cultivating Dignity FRB Growing Project is a community initiative to help end hunger overseas by supporting communities in developing nations to grow their own food.

A collaboration between church congregations, businesses and farmers, the Planting Seeds / Cultivating Dignity FRB Growing Project raises funds that are sent overseas through the Foods Resource Bank (FRB) network.

As a Christian response to world hunger, Foods Resource Bank links the grassroots energy and commitment of the U.S. agricultural community with the capability and desire of small farmers in developing countries to grow lasting solutions to hunger.

How to Help:

Individuals, churches and other organizations in the Walcott area and surrounding rural communities can support this Growing Project through fundraising, volunteering time and talents, or through other creative opportunities for partnership.

Iowans are encouraged to directly contact coordinators Mr. Dean Friederichs or Mr. Tom Simmons, to become involved with the Planting Seeds / Cultivating Dignity FRB Growing Project.

For more information about Foods Resource Bank or to learn about starting a new FRB Growing Project, please call (888) 276-4FRB or email admin@foodsresourcebank.org.

Description:

Prairie Rivers of Iowa RC&D promotes community-based stewardship that will improve the quality of life of citizens, preserve the ecological integrity of the land, and meet the economic aspirations of landowners and communities. They have been serving citizens across Iowa and in Boone, Story, Marshall, Hardin, Hamilton, and Webster Counties since 2001.

Their Kate Mitchell Community Garden project works with students at Kate Mitchell elementary school in Ames to teach elementary children about healthy nutrition through a hands-on garden experience, while addressing childhood obesity and food insecurity within low income families in Ames, Iowa.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the work of Prairie Rivers of Iowa RC&D by volunteering at the community garden or contacting staff about other volunteer needs that may arise from time to time.

Description:

Helping people is an important part of the culture at Principal®. The company, its employees and the Principal Financial Group Foundation, Inc., work together to give back in a variety of ways. Their charitable giving is based on a simple philosophy: by targeting their contributions toward entities that have the greatest impact on their employees and marketers, customers, shareholders and businesses, they are able to make the greatest difference.

Since 2000, Principal® and the Principal Financial Group Foundation, Inc., have awarded more than $100 million to nonprofit organizations that are making a difference in the communities where their employees work and live. In Iowa, these include communities in the vicinity of Ottumwa, Mason City, Cedar Falls, and Des Moines. Grants have included a $25,000 grant to the Northeast Iowa Food Bank's capital campaign to build a larger food bank facility.

Principal is the lead sponsor of the annual Principal Charity Classic, which has donated over $4 million to children's charities. In 2012 alone, The Principal Charity Classic donated a record $917,729 to local children's charities, making it the most charitable Champions Tour event in the nation.

How to Help:

Nonprofit organizations in need of support in one of the communities in which Principal operates (Ottumwa, Mason City, Cedar Falls, and Des Moines), should request it through their Request a Grant form or their Request Volunteers or In-Kind Donations form.

Description:

Project Concern began in 1968 as a result of a community needs assessment for an agency to fill gaps in services. Since then, services and programs have expanded and focused on assisting homeless and low-income individuals and families, children, senior citizens, people with disabilities, and thousands of men and women in Dubuque, Delaware and Jackson counties.

Project Concern provides food referrals for clients to the local food pantry and to St Vincent De Paul for a food voucher to one of their local grocery stores. They also have an AmeriCorps Anti-Hunger VISTA that is stationed with them on hunger issues. The VISTA coordinates with the local farmers market, local community gardens, the SNAP program, and partners with local agencies to teach healthy eating and nutrition education classes to community residents.

How to Help:

Iowans can support Project Concern’s community work through donations or by volunteering. They operate through community donations and grant funding only, and any support is always welcomed.

Members and friends of Second Reformed Church in Pella put their faith into action in tangible ways on mission/work trips—building, feeding, and teaching, both in Iowa and around the world. Their efforts to end hunger locally include: hosting a free summer lunch program, monthly food drives for Pella Food Pantry, Saturday end-of-month free breakfasts, and service and donations of produce in local church gardens.

Their efforts to end global hunger include: providing volunteers for meal packaging through Meals from the Heartland, volunteering with the Pella CROP WALK for Hunger to promote awareness for rural development in 3rd world countries as well as raise money for Church World Service and their efforts in those countries, and annual mission trips to Pignon, Haiti to work with Promise for Haiti and United Christians International.

How to Help:

Those interested in exploring partnerships with or supporting the mission work of Second Reformed Church in Pella should contact them directly. One of the most important ways to help is by spreading the word about the free summer lunch programs and Saturday end-of-month free breakfasts to people throughout Marion County.
Seed Programs International

Contact Information:

Email: peter.marks@seedprograms.org
Website: www.seedprograms.org
County: Activities Statewide
Type of Work: Garden Program, International

Online Profile Link: http://www.worldfoodprize.org/en/events/iowa_hunger_summit/the_iowa_hunger_directory/organizations_fighting_hunger/?action=detail&memberID=44339

Description:

Seed Programs International provides vegetable seeds and expertise so that people facing hunger worldwide can grow some of the food they need. Since 1999, more than 15 million seed packets have helped transform people's lives from dependency on aid to self-sufficient producers for their families.

How to Help:

With a modest donation, groups can sponsor an entire box of seed to reach a malnourished population somewhere in the world. One box grows 5 tons of food! Commercial vegetable seed producers in Iowa may be able to grow seed for the project. Individuals, groups, and vegetable producers should contact them for more information.

Participants in the Des Moines Area Hunger Hike support Seed Programs International as it has been one of the recipients of the funds raised by the Hike.

Description:

Seed Savers Exchange conserves and promotes America's culturally diverse but endangered garden and food crop heritage for future generations by collecting, growing, and sharing heirloom seeds and plants.

They fulfill their mission by:

- Maintaining thousands of varieties of different plant types—from amaranth to zucchini—in one of the largest seed banks of its kind in North America.
- Regenerating seed in isolation gardens and storing them in ideal conditions.
- Documenting valuable cultural information on varieties and their histories.
- Distributing heirloom varieties to members and the public through the Seed Savers Exchange Yearbook and the Seed Savers Exchange Catalog
- Storing varieties in back-up locations at the USDA Seed Bank in Fort Collins, CO and at Svalbard Global Seed Vault in Norway. These off-site deposits remain the property of SSE.
- Organizing educational programs at the Heritage Farm

Seed Savers Exchange periodically donates heirloom seeds to initiatives such as Cultivate Iowa that help alleviate hunger.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the work of Seed Savers Exchange through donations, volunteering, purchasing and growing heirloom seeds or by joining as members.

Groups and organizations can request a seed donation online, or contact them directly for more information, to host an educational speaker, or to explore opportunities for partnership.

Description:

Self Help International supports people in Ghana and Nicaragua to work their way out of poverty. Self Help International’s work falls under five major initiatives. Self Help International helps Americans to understand the problems of life in developing countries, trains developing country farm families on the use of more nutritious varieties of corn, supports infant and preschool feeding programs using these varieties of corn, provides micro-credit for women to start small-scale businesses, and collaborates with other organizations in Ghana and Nicaragua to introduce appropriate farming practices that enable farmers to break the cycle of poverty.

How to Help:

Iowans can get involved with Self Help International through donations, by volunteering in Iowa for projects, and by traveling overseas to assist in projects with the local Self-Help staff. Another option to consider is to leave a bequest, a lasting gesture that will help to alleviate hunger and poverty among poor farmers overseas who work hard and struggle to improve quality of life with dignity. Interested Iowans should contact the Self Help office for more information.

Description:

Sieda Community Action implements a range of programs designed to provide advocacy, access to supportive services, and service coordination. These programs strengthen families, promote child development, and help individuals and families with basic needs. With the strong foundation Sieda provides, individuals are more likely to become self-reliant and contribute positively to their families and communities.

Sieda operates several child development, family support services, housing stabilization and behavioral health programs in the counties they serve.

The Child and Adult Care Food Program provides registered child care providers with nutrition education and reviews their monthly menus to assure that meals and snacks follow standard nutrition guidelines. Providers also plan nutrition activities for the children in their care, which helps prepare young children to make healthy food choices for the rest of their lives. Providers are provided with partial reimbursement for the cost of the meals and snacks as a result of participating in the program.

The Family Development and Self-Sufficiency Program (FaDSS) is a voluntary home visitation program that uses a strength-based approach to provide core services such as family support and goal setting. Family support is provided through referrals, linking families to community supports and advocacy. Participation in FaDSS is a voluntary option for people receiving Family Investment Program benefits.

How to Help:

Charitable donations made to Sieda are always needed and accepted, and may have a tax benefit to the donor. Individuals and organizations may also contact Sieda through their online form to explore additional ways to become involved.

Description:

Silos & Smokestacks National Heritage Area preserves and tells the story of American agriculture and its global significance through partnerships and activities that celebrate the land, people, and communities of the area. Through the development of a network of sites, programs and events in a 37 county region of Northeastern Iowa, Silos & Smokestacks' mission is to interpret farm life, agribusiness and rural communities - past and present.

Silos & Smokestacks offers a variety of opportunities for educators and youth. Ag-based lesson plans and primary resources are offered through their website CampSilos, professional continuing education credits are attainable through summer workshops and funding for field trips is distributed through the bus grant program. They also offer grant programs to help partner organizations in the region tell and preserve their stories of American Agriculture.

Silos & Smokestacks National Heritage Area is eager to partner with organizations that are fighting hunger in order to bring the stories of Iowa's hunger fighters into area museums and draw attention to the relationships between history, agriculture, and the present day fight against hunger.

How to Help:

Individuals and organizations should contact Silos & Smokestacks directly to explore opportunities to work together on issues of hunger. Anyone can find out more about Silos & Smokestacks current programs by signing up for their newsletter online.

Description:

The Spencer Activity Center provides social and educational opportunities that improve and enrich people's lives. They serve congregate meals five times a week and offer adults a chance to participate in games and social activities. Their facilities serve as a community center and are also available for rental.

The Spencer Area Action Club meets every Wednesday at 9:00 a.m. at the Spencer Activity Center. The mission of the club is to improve the quality of life in the Spencer Area through community service, fellowship, knowledge, and financial resources.

How to Help:

Iowans can support the mission of the Spencer Activity Center through donations, by renting the facility for events, and by volunteering for the Center or joining the Spencer Area Action Club. The activities of the club focus on support for the Upper Des Moines Opportunity food bank, scholarships for students, winter clothing for elementary school students, and support for the Spencer Area Activity Center.

Iowans are encouraged to contact Ms. Morales directly for more information and to become involved.

Description:

Feed Our Children is a meal program that supplies food to approximately 175 children in Spencer who are at risk of weekend hunger.

When they get nourishment, children are healthier, they have better focus and study habits and are less likely to miss class.

Each child in the program receives a bag at school every Friday with enough food for 4 meals and 2 snacks to help nourish them over the weekend. Children are identified for the program by their school guidance counselor or nurse, who also distributes a plastic bag containing the food individually to each child to ensure confidentiality.

How to Help:

The Feed Our Children initiative is entirely funded and supported by donations and volunteers from the community. Checks should have “FOC” on the memo line and can be mailed to Living Word at 905 10th Avenue, SE / Spencer, IA 51301.

Volunteers are needed to help assemble food bags on Wednesday evenings and to deliver the food to schools on Friday mornings. Opportunities are available for both individuals and groups to volunteer.

Anyone with an interest in becoming involved should learn more on their Facebook page or by contacting the organizers directly at hrc@spencerhope.org or 712-262-3016.

Description:

St. Stephen's Food Bank obtains wholesome, nutritious foods from many sources and makes it available to member agencies who are feeding the hungry in their community. Their dedicated group of volunteer drivers picks up food products from local grocery stores on a daily basis. St. Stephen's driver also makes weekly food pick-ups from area food banks in Moline, Waterloo, and Cedar Rapids.

Since 2003, St. Stephen's Food Bank has distributed over 6.5 million pounds of food in partnership with 100 community agencies in Dubuque and Jackson counties.

How to Help:

St. Stephen's Food Bank runs off of the dedication of their volunteers, who do everything from office work to food packaging to transportation of donated food. People who are interested in volunteering are requested to sign up online or email the food bank at ssfb@live.com with the word "volunteer" in the subject line. Monetary support is also accepted through their website.

Type of Work: Faith Based, Food Pantry

Online Profile Link:
http://www.worldfoodprize.org/en/events/iowa_hunger_summit/the_iowa_hunger_directory/organizations_fighting_hunger/?action=detail&memberID=49504

Description:

The St. Thomas Food Pantry, located in St. Thomas Episcopal Church’s Parish House at 406 12th Street, Sioux City, has operated for nearly 14 years. The pantry is located in the midst of two urban renewal areas, Rose Hill and Jones Street, among the most culturally diverse and economically challenged neighborhoods in Sioux City.

The pantry is open on Mondays and Wednesdays from 10:00 a.m. to Noon. Their goal is to serve 30 families on each of those days. Clients can come once every 30 days.

In 2014, they served 3,031 families, representing 12,308 individuals. The number of families was a 4% increase from 2013. St. Thomas purchased 91,106 pounds of food from the Food Bank of Siouxland in 2014—more than 45 tons of food. This was made possible by gifts and grant money. A new source of money in 2014 was a Lunch Bucket in the narthex of the church, where people deposited their loose change on Sunday mornings.

Because the food available from the Food Bank varies from week to week, St. Thomas supplements the food pantry’s supply of staples with an “item of the month.” They ask parishioners to donate food items, recycled grocery sacks, and basic toiletries.

Copies of a cookbook published in 2014, Good and Cheap: Eat Well on $4/Day, by Leanne Brown, were distributed free at the food pantry. The cookbook was designed for people receiving SNAP benefits (food stamps), and gives ideas for using more fruits and vegetables rather than relying on meat as the center of all meals. The cookbook is available as a free download at http://www.leannebrown.com/#free. They are also printing out copies of individual recipes to distribute, about one per month.

How to Help:

The food pantry comes together through the efforts of many people. The food is picked up from the Food Bank warehouse on Fridays, and is then unloaded to stock the shelves at the Parish House. Four or five people distribute food each day that the food pantry is open. A group of people take turns picking up day-old bread from a grocery store on Saturdays.

Anyone who is interested in any aspect of the pantry is encouraged to talk with any pantry worker, or come and visit when they are open. The church office phone number is 712-258-0141.

Description:

Technochem International Inc manufactures a Mini-Extruder which can process soybeans for producing soy oil and soy meal. The soy oil and meal are both fit for human consumption, and can support a balanced diet that can address malnutrition and hunger. The equipment is miniaturized to a level where distributed village level processing is economically feasible. This allows remote villages to produce their own soybeans and process them for their local consumption. Technochem's approach to hunger alleviation is through placement of such machines in villages to empower them to grow soybeans and process them for their own consumption.

How to Help:

Individuals and organizations are needed to help promote the project. Interested Iowans should contact Technochem International to explore promotional opportunities further.

Description:

The Bridge of Storm Lake is committed to valuing individuals, nurturing relationships, and witnessing the transforming power of Jesus Christ. They seek to connect, support, and empower others in the name of Jesus through a variety of activities, including:

- Neighborhood Centers, a community based ministry that works directly with neighborhoods in Storm Lake to build relationships with the people they serve.

- The Garden Training Project, which provides youth and adults with an enriching, practical means of building skills and gaining competency. Community members and youth maintain and harvest the garden while learning agricultural basics, how to market and prepare the produce for consumption and building teamwork skills.

- Youth Programs that provide meals, after-school activities, bible studies, and summer camps to area kids. Buena Vista University students partner with The Bridge as tutors and mentors.

A Food Ministry, which rescues and re-directs excess food from Buena Vista University to area residents struggling with hunger. In partnership with the United Methodist Church, The Bridge distributes bags of food every Monday from 4:30-6:00pm.

The Bridge of Storm Lake is a ministry of Christ For the City International.

How to Help:

Concerned individuals can support the mission of The Bridge of Storm Lake through donations, prayer, and volunteerism. Volunteer orientations take place at the office on the first and third Wednesdays of the month at 7pm, as needed. Volunteers are requested to register first for an orientation by emailing volunteer@thebridgeofstormlake.com.

More information about The Bridge and their activities is available through their website, and on Facebook and Twitter.

Description:

The Connection Cafe serves lunch five days a week to homeless and low income individuals and families through their serving site located at 701 Grand Avenue in downtown Des Moines. Under the direction of a paid coordinator, volunteers from more than 30 churches, schools and civic groups donate and serve an average of 146 meals to 114 people on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. The Connection Cafe is a program created by The Bridge, a collaboration of four downtown Des Moines churches as part of their mission to minister to the poor.

How to Help:

The Connection Cafe can be supported through donations and volunteering. Volunteers can provide, prepare, and/or serve meals; either on a one-time basis or on a regular schedule. They are currently in need of one or more volunteer groups nearly every month, and are also looking into the possibility of adding Thursday to their serving schedule. Those who would like to get involved with the Cafe as an individual or with a group should call Rob at 515-771-1481 or email him at theconnectioncafe@hotmail.com.

Description:

United Way of Mahaska County leverages relationships with partner agencies, businesses, and community members to empower the community by promoting education, encouraging healthy living and strengthening financial stability.

United Way of Mahaska County makes grants to partner agencies and runs programs of its own, including:

The Oskaloosa Summer Lunch Program provides local children with free meals and fun, educational activities. The Summer Lunch Program serves a healthy meal to children ages 1 - 18 years old at five different sites in the community. While food is the main focus, the Iowa Reading Corp and many volunteers will also be there to help encourage kids to take part in activities focusing on team work, reading, physical activity, and of course, fun!

The Take-Along Weekend Food Program was launched by United Way of Mahaska County in October of 2015. The purpose of the Take-Along Program is to ensure that food insecure students at Oskaloosa Elementary School (OES) have access to food over the weekends throughout the school year. The program is a partnership between volunteers and OES. This partnership allows the program to prepare and distribute simple weekend meals for food insecure OES students.

How to Help:

United Way of Mahaska County takes a collaborative approach to all of its work. Those interested in learning more about, donating to or volunteering with any of their hunger initiatives should email Emily Brown or call 641-673-6043.

United Way of Mahaska County also manages a community grants program and encourages organizations in Mahaska County to apply. Further opportunities are available through their volunteerism, advocacy and fundraising programs.

Description:

USAID carries out U.S. foreign policy by promoting broad-scale human progress at the same time it expands stable, free societies, creates markets and trade partners for the United States, and fosters good will abroad. The United States has a long history of extending a helping hand to people overseas struggling to make a better life. U.S. foreign assistance has always had the twofold purpose of furthering America’s interests while improving lives in the developing world.

Spending less than 1 percent of the total federal budget, USAID works in over 100 countries to: Promote broadly shared economic prosperity; Strengthen democracy and good governance; Protect human rights; Improve global health, Advance food security and agriculture; Improve environmental sustainability; Further education; Help societies prevent and recover from conflicts; and Provide humanitarian assistance in the wake of natural and man-made disasters.

USAID partners with a variety of organizations – from small businesses and local in-country organizations to universities and international NGOs – to support and implement a wide range of development programs around the world.

How to Help:

There are a variety of ways to partner with USAID. Through Global Development Alliances, USAID works with companies large and small, foundations, NGOs and implementing partners, Diaspora groups, universities, and other donor agencies to address jointly defined objectives. In support of Feed the Future, USAID builds partnerships in a number of areas that advance food security and agricultural development, including increasing productivity in key agricultural value chains, increasing incomes and market access of smallholder farmers, and catalyzing private sector investment for sustainable agricultural development.

USAID invites individuals and organizations to share their ideas and/or apply for funding through their Development Innovations Ventures or Grand Challenges for Development programs, or to submit unsolicited proposals and grant applications.

Programs for individuals include the Farmer to Farmer program, which connects volunteer experts from the U.S. to respond to the local needs of host-country farmers and organizations. More opportunities to get involved with USAID are listed online.

The Wallace Centers of Iowa provides a variety of programs and services to build awareness of local food, sustainable agriculture, and civility. The Wallace Centers of Iowa serves both urban and rural communities with locations at the Henry A. Wallace Country Life Center in rural Orient and the Wallace House in Des Moines.

The Wallace Centers have several programs related to hunger and food issues:

Food for Thought combines locally-sourced dining with conversation about food. A local expert is often on hand each Thursday evening from 5:30 to 8 pm at the Wallace House in to discuss the week’s theme.

Real Soil, Real Food, A Real Difference offers high school students an intensive exploration of today’s food and sustainable agriculture issues with an independent project for change. In addition to studying critical food issues, each day they take part in team building, networking, physical activities, and field trips to food-related sites such as DuPont Pioneer, the Neely-Kinyon Research Farm, the World Food Prize, and Iowa State University.

One Step at a Time provides education, mentoring, support, expertise and commercial kitchen space for growers to create, test, process, package and market a new food product. Adding value to what small farmers grow insures additional income, year-round sales, and pride in a product that will be enjoyed throughout Iowa and beyond.

How to Help:

Description:

The government of Warren County works to alleviate hunger through the Warren County General Assistance Program, the Warren County Nutrition Program and the Warren County Health Services.

Warren County General Assistance provides assistance to Warren County residents who meet county guidelines. General Assistance follows the guidelines set forth in the county ordinance established by the Warren County Board of Supervisors. Assistance is given to the needy and poor who are unable to get assistance from other sources or that assistance is being delayed. Applicants must apply for all possible state and federal programs they may qualify for in order to receive assistance and comply with these programs.

The Warren County Necessity Pantry is available to families that have children 17 and under and live in Warren County. They provide basic necessities and families can "purchase" these items by redeeming points that they have earned. They provide items such as: diapers, wipes, cleaning supplies, food bags at the local Hy-Vee, and fuel vouchers. To sign up for this program, please stop in to the Warren County Necessity Pantry at 301 N Buxton, Suite 107, Indianola, IA 50125. Call (515) 962-5132 with any questions.

Warren County Nutrition collaborates with the Iowa Department on Aging and Aging Resources of Central Iowa to host congregate meal sites in Carlisle, Indianola, Lacona, Martensdale & New Virginia. The program serves nutritious meals in a friendly environment to adults age 60+. People under 60 may participate at the cost of $7.68 per meal. Call 515-961-1003 for more information or to make a reservation 24 hours in advance.

Warren County Health Services provides an online resource directory of hunger and food assistance projects in Warren County.

How to Help:

Warren County Nutrition needs volunteers to home deliver meals at all of their meal sites. To volunteer please call the meal sites or contact Vicki White at 515-961-1003 or vickiw@co.warren.ia.us.

Organizations working in Warren County are encouraged to call 515-961-1074 or email wchs@co.warren.ia.us to add or update a program listing in the online resources directory.

Individuals and organizations are also encouraged to email county staff or call 515-962-5132 for more information or to explore opportunities to help further the hunger initiatives of the government of Warren County.

Description:

The Washington FRB Growing Project is a community initiative to help end hunger overseas by supporting communities in developing nations to grow their own food.

A collaboration between church congregations, businesses and farmers, the Washington Growing Project raises funds that are sent overseas through the Foods Resource Bank (FRB) network.

As a Christian response to world hunger, Foods Resource Bank links the grassroots energy and commitment of the U.S. agricultural community with the capability and desire of small farmers in developing countries to grow lasting solutions to hunger.

How to Help:

Individuals, churches and other organizations in the Washington area and surrounding rural communities can support this Growing Project through fundraising, volunteering time and talents, or through other creative opportunities for partnership.

Iowans are encouraged to directly contact coordinators Mr. & Mrs. Dave and Linda Birney to become involved with the Washington FRB Growing Project.

For more information about Foods Resource Bank or to learn about starting a new FRB Growing Project, please call (888) 276-4FRB or email admin@foodsresourcebank.org.

Description:
Waypoint Services provides shelter and support for those in crisis due to homelessness, poverty or domestic violence. It also provides quality child care to over 500 children daily of all socio-economic levels.

Their team of Housing Specialists and Advocates offers support in locating housing for those who are homeless, at-risk of becoming homeless or victims of domestic violence who must relocate for safety needs by connecting them to resources in the community that best meets their needs.

They also provide shelter and stabilizing resources for homeless women and their children through the Madge Phillips Center Shelter. The Center offers basic needs, information, strategic referrals, one-on-one support, and skill development so women can achieve and maintain self-sufficiency and family stability.

Additional domestic violence victim services include an emergency phone line, crisis counseling, and emergency shelter at a confidential location.

How to Help:
Iowans can support the work of Waypoint Services through volunteering, donations, or by participating in Waypoint events.

Volunteers serve in a variety of capacities, such as by coordinating food and personal hygiene supply drives, sorting donations, or serving as trained domestic violence volunteer advocates. Volunteer needs are posted online and those interested in volunteering are encouraged to contact Ms. Sonya Masse at 319-365-1458 ext. 6118.

Financial donations can be made online or by mail. In-kind donation guidelines are posted online, along with a wish list of needed items.

Description:

The goal of the Wellness and Independence through Nutrition Program (WIN), formerly known as the Food Assistance Outreach Project, is to reduce hunger in underserved mid-life and older Iowans, age 50 years and older, who are eligible for but not yet enrolled in the food assistance program.

ISU Extension and Outreach Human Sciences Specialists and County Staff in select areas recruit and train WIN Program Volunteer Educators to reach out to various populations to promote awareness of how food assistance can improve nutrition and quality of life for adults age 50+ and to increase awareness of budget-friendly nutrition practices for mid-life and older adults.

How to Help:

Individuals can support the mission of the WIN Program by serving as volunteer educators. WIN Program Volunteer Educators are asked to attend a training session (up to 2 hours) that talks about the program and how to conduct the presentations; contact prospective presentation locations serving adults age 50+ years to schedule presentations; conduct WIN Program presentations (includes in-person presentations, attending display boards, distributing WIN Guides, and facilitating WIN DVD viewing); and complete WIN Program paperwork as needed.

Organizations can support the mission of the WIN Program by agreeing to serve as presentation locations, distribute WIN Guides, or host a display. Individuals and organizations interested in learning more and supporting the mission of the WIN Programs are encouraged to contact the WIN Coordinator closest to them.

Description:

The West Branch Lions Club in West Branch, Iowa is one of 46,000 clubs worldwide. Lions Club members, or "Lions" move to make a difference locally and globally. Lions are best known for their efforts to eradicate preventable blindness, but also participate in many other kinds of projects, including assisting those in need, sponsoring international exchanges for young people, providing supplies to victims of natural disasters and bringing clean drinking water to remote villages.

As one of its service projects in 2014, the West Branch Lions Club organized a meal packaging event to honor the 50th anniversary of President Hoover's state funeral. Over 250 volunteers packaged 84,024 meals to help alleviate hunger in Iowa and around the world.

How to Help:

Lions are groups of service-minded men and women who are interested in improving their communities. To be a Lion is to be an active volunteer, a member of a respected international organization, a leader in the community and a friend to people in need. Iowans are encouraged to contact Mike Quinlan to join the West Branch Lions Club, or contact the Iowa state office at iowalions@aol.com or (515) 232-2215 to find another Lions Club in their area of residence.

Description:

West Central is a farmer owned cooperative with headquarters in Ralston, Iowa. West Central operates a licensed public grain warehouse, provides grain marketing services; supplies feed, fertilizer, chemicals, and other merchandise; and manufactures and markets dairy nutrition products. Since 1933, West Central has been an active and accountable member of the communities it serves through corporate donations and volunteer efforts.

Annually, West Central puts approximately $100,000 back into area community economies through donations, sponsorship programs and scholarships. Corporate giving focuses on rural youth leadership development, farm and agricultural safety, and community betterment and returning value to local communities.

In addition to West Central’s corporate giving program, West Central happily invests in local communities through the involvement of WC employees within the community. To date, West Central employees have given back to the community through their involvement with disaster relief, neighborhood renovation, school programming, community events and more.

How to Help:

Individuals and organizations seeking support should complete and submit a corporate giving request form. Groups or organizations seeking West Central’s participation in a program or event should request volunteer resources from the cooperative by completing and submitting a corporate volunteerism request form.

Description:

The Western Iowa Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America combats hunger domestically and globally through awareness, advocacy, networking, growing projects, and sustainable agriculture efforts. This synod partners with two companion synods— the Southern Diocese of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Tanzania and the whole of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Chile—where they affect hunger through clean water, girls secondary, medical and sustainable agriculture initiatives.

How to Help:

To donate, volunteer, or learn more, go to their website at www.wisynod.org or contact Ms. Wells at cindy.wells@wisynod.org or 712-732-4968 Ext. 441 or 318 E Fifth St., Storm Lake, IA 50588. For more information about their domestic hunger work, please email Pr. Jeff Ungs at jeff.ungs.rev@wisynod.org.

Description:

Westminster Presbyterian Church supports the food pantry through donations of food and support of their Backpack Buddies program for hungry children attending Holy Family and Morris Elementary schools.

How to Help:

The greatest need for help is delivering food for the backpack buddies program to the schools weekly. Volunteers with a van or pickup truck are preferred as the tubs of food are too large for cars. Those interested in finding out more or in volunteering should contact the Westminster Presbyterian Church office.

Description:

The World Initiative for Soy in Human Health (WISHH), a program of the American Soybean Association (ASA), brings the benefits of U.S. soy protein to developing countries where it can make a difference in lives today and in the future.

Since 2000, WISHH has been enhancing the protein intake of many nations through market development, humanitarian assistance, education and research. WISHH also understands that developing nations of today are tomorrow's customers for U.S. soy. All of the top 10 export countries for U.S. soy are current or former recipients of U.S. foreign aid assistance.

How to Help:

Iowans are encouraged to attend the Midwest Soy Protein Workshop or to contact WISHH at wishh@soy.org to explore opportunities to work together.

The Midwest Workshop is held at the National Soybean Research Laboratory at the University of Illinois in Champaign. The Workshop hosts representatives of voluntary organizations, U.S. government officials, soybean farmer and industry leaders to discuss the role of soy in international food assistance programs. Attendees explore how to expand the use of soy in their food aid programs around the world.

For additional information on the workshop, contact Kendra Murphy, WISHH Executive Assistant and Conference Planner at kmurphy@soy.org or (314) 754-1320.

Description:

The Women, Food and Agriculture Network (WFAN) is a community of women involved in sustainable agriculture. Members include farmers, landowners, researchers, students, advocates and mothers concerned about their families’ health. Members come from all over the US and several other countries, but the majority of WFAN's work is done in the Midwest.

Their Women Caring for the Land program works with women landowners to educate them about conservation methods they can implement on their land. Harvesting Our Potential, their on-farm apprenticeship program, brings together women in sustainable agriculture for annual gatherings that provide education and networking. Their Plate to Politics program provides information and tools to help women become advocates for sustainable agriculture and healthy food systems in their own communities and at the state and federal levels and informs women about opportunities to serve on boards and commissions to make sure women's voices are heard.

How to Help:

People can stay up to date on WFAN and its programs by joining their listserv or visiting their Facebook page. Support can be provided through donations. Those who are interested in joining WFAN programs or exploring opportunities for collaboration can also contact them directly.

Description:

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom - Des Moines Branch (WILPF) works to create an environment of political, economic, social and psychological freedom for all members of the human community, so that true peace can be enjoyed by all. WILPF International was founded at a multi-national conference of over 1000 women in 1915 to protest World War One and lay the groundwork for sustainable peace.

In today's context WILPF advocates for five aims: 1. the equality of all people in a world free of sexism, racism, classism, and homophobia, 2. the guarantee of fundamental human rights including the right to sustainable development, 3. an end to all forms of violence: rape, battering, exploitation, intervention and war, 4. the transfer of world resources from military to human needs, leading to economic justice within and among nations, and 5. world disarmament and peaceful resolution of international conflicts via the United Nations.

How to Help:

People who live in Greater Des Moines can support the work of WILPF's Des Moines Branch by joining their meetings, study sessions, and local activism. Interested individuals should visit their Facebook page or contact them directly for more information. Anyone can support WILPF International through taking action online through their website.

Description:

The World Food Prize was established in 1986 to be the foremost international award recognizing the achievements of individuals who have advanced human development by improving the quality, quantity, or availability of food in the world.

The Foundation has the following goals:

- Recognizing and inspiring exceptional breakthrough achievements that increase the supply and availability of food in the world through presentation of its $250,000 prize, referred to by several heads of state as the “Nobel Prize for Food and Agriculture”;
- Conducting educational and informational programs addressing the most important issues in global food security by holding the Borlaug Dialogue International Symposium and other programs;
- Holding events and carrying out programs that provide unique educational opportunities for high school students and teachers, and inspire the next generation of youth to pursue education and careers in agriculture and global development;
- Operating the Norman E. Borlaug Hall of Laureates as a public museum, convocation center, and educational facility to inform the public about the great achievements of agricultural heroes like Henry A. Wallace;
- Coordinating the Iowa Hunger Summit and Iowa Hunger Directory to celebrate Iowa's agricultural and humanitarian heritage, facilitate networking, and inspire further action against hunger at home and abroad.

Online Profile Link:
http://www.worldfoodprize.org/en/events/iowa_hunger_summit/the_iowa_hunger_directory/organizations_fighting_hunger/?action=detail&memberID=49436

Description:

Youth & Shelter Services (YSS) exists to provide prevention, education, treatment and residential services to children, youth and families; to advocate on their behalf; and to help them solve problems, grow and be self-sufficient, responsible, contributing members of society.

YSS programs include residential, counselling, family foster care, and direct care services; with locations in Ames, Boone, Des Moines, Marshalltown, Nevada, and Webster City.

Through its direct care services, YSS addresses the presenting problems of a wide range of children and youth who have experienced physical and sexual abuse, neglect, trouble with the law, emotional and mental problems, experience running away from home, homelessness, pregnant and parenting women, youth aging out of the foster care system, chemically-addicted youth, and families experiencing conflict.

Youth & Shelter Services has also established several networks of youth serving agencies and administers and funds nearly 100 subcontracts with other non-profit organizations, including the Iowa Homeless Youth Centers.

How to Help:

Individuals and organizations can support the work of Youth & Shelter Services by attending events, through financial or in-kind donations, and by serving as a volunteer.

Iowans are encouraged to contact Youth & Shelter Services by phone at 515-233-3141, by email at yss@yss.ames.ia.us or through their online form for more information and to explore opportunities for partnership.

Description:

Youth Emergency Services & Shelter (YESS) meets the critical needs of the community by providing a continuum of quality programs designed to keep children safe and families together. Every day, nearly 1,000 children from across the state of Iowa rely on YESS for safety and care.

YESS is home to Iowa’s largest and most comprehensive emergency shelter as well as a variety of services that keep children safe in their own homes. The agency’s combination of crisis stabilization, emergency shelter, mental health services, and care coordination does not exist elsewhere in Iowa - allowing YESS to uniquely serve the community’s most vulnerable children. No matter the background or age of the child, YESS can provide supportive services to create hope for a brighter future.

How to Help:

Individuals and organizations can support the mission of YESS through gifts of money, in-kind donations, volunteering, and participating in community events such as the YESS Duck Derby and the Human Foosball Tournament.

In-kind donations provide the basic necessities and personal care items that connect children with comfort and safety when their lives are surrounded by chaos. Iowans are asked to contact Jana Daisy, Community Activities Manager, at daisyj@yessiowa.org or 515-282-9377 prior to dropping off in-kind donations at the shelter or beginning a donation drive. Unscheduled drop-offs may be turned away.

A variety of meaningful volunteer opportunities are available for individuals and groups. Anyone interested in ongoing volunteer service at YESS must be approved by the agency prior to participation. Iowans are encouraged to contact Jana Daisy, Community Activities Manager, at 515-282-9377 or daisyj@yessiowa.org for more information.
